

WINCHESTER MAN KILLED BY TRAINDonald J. Elliott Struck by Inbound Engine at Station

Many Winchesterites on their way home after a day's work witnessed last Monday evening the first fatal accident in the square since the erection of the fence between the railroad tracks at Winchester Station when Donald J. Elliott, 34, of 15 Linden street was struck by an inbound train at a point about 50 yards north of Winchester Station and hurled to the platform at Common street, receiving injuries from which he died almost at once.

It is thought that a change in running time on the railroad may have been responsible for the accident. Mr. Elliott had left Boston on the 5:45 p. m. train arriving at Winchester at 8:12. As the car in which he was riding came to a stop he jumped the fence separating the two tracks, a common practice with many living to the north of the square, and landed directly in the path of the south bound train, due at the station at 8:13. The fact that the latter train had been only that day set ahead eight minutes from 8:11 may account for the seeming carelessness of the young man in jumping without looking to see if all was clear. The train on which he was riding had passed the 5:45 at Wedgewood and Mr. Elliott evidently did not know that another followed so closely upon it.

He was picked up and taken to the hospital by Sgt. Rogers and officer Farrell in the police ambulance which was driven by driver Everett W. Kimball of the fire department. Upon arrival he was pronounced dead before the arrival of Drs. Quinn and Emory who were summoned immediately. Medical Examiner Vernon C. Stewart of Woburn was notified and viewed the remains, after which they were removed to the local undertaking rooms of Eugene P. Sullivan.

Donald J. Elliott

Donald J. Elliott had lived in Winchester all of his 34 years and was widely known and universally liked. He was the son of George W. and Katherine (Nagle) Elliott of 15 Linden street with whom he made his home. He was educated in the public schools and until four years ago was employed by the Boston & Maine Railroad. Since that time he had been a clerk in the employ of the American Hawaiian Steamship Company at 90 Broad street, Boston. He was a widower and is survived, besides his parents, by two children; a daughter, Charlotte, aged 12, and a son, Donald, Jr., aged nine. Four sisters, Mrs. Scott McNelly of Brookline, Mrs. Henry Haven of Winchester, Mrs. Kenneth Walters of Wollaston and Miss Dorothy Elliott, a teacher in the Auburn schools; and three brothers, Harold K. and Alfred D. of Winchester, and Sydney Elliott of Long Island, Long Island also survive him. His wife died about seven years ago.

The deceased had been a member of Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E., and the Elks' funeral ritual was exemplified at the late residence on Tuesday evening by Exalted Ruler Fred H. Schell and the officers of the lodge. There was a large attendance which thronged the home and the floral tributes were profuse and beautiful. Following the eulogy George H. Lochman, E. L. K., sang "The Vacant Chair."

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the late residence at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Dr. John W. Suter, rector honorarius of the Church of the Epiphany. The bearers were Bartholomew Connolly and Garrett Cullen of Woburn, Edward Toomey of Wilmington, Albert Morgan, and P. F. Foley and Edward Welch of this town. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Skillings of Rangeley observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Sunday, receiving the congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends, as well as a quantity of beautiful flowers and other gifts in observance of the occasion. They were given a tea from 5 until 8 o'clock by Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Chase Kelley of Sheffield west, about 100 attending, including guests from Grand Rapids, Mich.; Vermont, Lawrence, Brookline and many surrounding places. Mr. and Mrs. Skillings received with their daughters, Mrs. Joshua Chase Kelley and Mrs. Alice S. Cook, and Mrs. Edward B. Horne and Mrs. James W. Russell poured, and Miss Blanche Eaton served at the frappe table.

A feature of the reception was the cutting of a huge wedding cake from friends at Portland, Me. Mrs. Skillings doing the honors and distributing the portions.

Mr. and Mrs. Skillings were married at Belmont, June 27, 1876, coming to Winchester to make their home immediately after the wedding. They have made their home here since. Mrs. Skillings was before her marriage Miss Lucy M. Heustis of Belmont, and her husband is the son of the late David N. Skillings, one of Winchester's foremost citizens in its earlier years. They are the recipients of the congratulations and good wishes of a host of Winchester friends.

GRAM ARRANGED

Events to Be About as Usual—Children's Entertainment, Band Concerts, Ball Game and Fire-works on List

Winchester's plans for its formal observance of the Nation's birthday next Monday are complete and the program as announced by Selectman Walter H. Dutton follows rather closely those of preceding years.

The official celebration starts as usual with the ringing of all the town bells at 7 a. m., said pealing to be repeated at 12 noon, and again at 6 in the evening.

From the standpoint of the youth-ful inhabitants of the community the most important feature of the day's activities takes place in the morning at 10:30 o'clock when the children's entertainment will be held in the Town Hall. This year's program seems a bit more elaborate than hitherto and includes a Chinese magician in a series of mystifying tricks and an indoor circus featuring two wonderful ponies and a couple of clever dogs. Following the program the usual ice cream tickets will be distributed to each child in the hall.

At 3 in the afternoon there will be a band concert from the handstand on Manchester Field by Stiles Military Band of Boston, which will be remembered as furnishing the music last year in Memorial Day and which also gave the concert on the 4th of July ago. Its work on both occasions was eminently satisfactory and its management has announced two well rounded programs of selections for next Monday. The program for the afternoon follows:

March Overture	..... Lithgow
Overture	..... Nibbelung
Selection	..... Gens from Sullivan's Opera
Intermission	.....
Three Popular Numbers	..... Selected
Selection	..... Glow Worm
March	..... American Legion
Intermission	.....
March	..... Semper Fidelis
Selection	..... from Babes in Toyland
At the Country Fair	..... Selected
Three Popular Numbers	..... Selected
Wedding of the Winds	..... Hall

Star Spangled Banner	..... Bachel

No holiday for the red blooded American is complete without a ball game and arrangements have been made to stage a real contest on Manchester Field at 3:15 in the afternoon. The St. Mary's C. C., a strictly local outfit which is representing the Town on the diamond this summer, will cross bats with the strong Lincoln B. C. of Somerville and those who enjoy a snappy game of ball should not fail to take in this attraction.

At 7:30 in the evening a second concert will be played on Manchester Field, to be followed by a display of fireworks commencing at dark. There will be a limited number of chairs near the handstand both afternoon and evening which will be strictly reserved for adults. The program for the evening concert follows:

March	..... 2nd Regt., Conn. N. G.
Overture	..... Massello
Waltz	..... Espana
Three Popular Numbers	..... Selected
Poet's Trumpets of the World War	..... Arr. by Puzello
March	..... Tromps Tromps
Intermission	.....
March	..... All Hail to the American Legion
Overture	..... Selection
Trombone Solo	.....
My Heart in Thy Sweet Voice	..... St. Seans
Intermission	.....
Three Popular Numbers	..... Selected
Overture	..... Post and Postant
Waltz	..... Iron King
Star Spangled Banner	..... St. Child

While the above constitutes the list of events to which the public is eligible there will be plenty more going on in town to claim the attention of many. There will be holiday golf as usual at the Country Club, and the customary programs at both the Winchester and Medford Boat Clubs. All in all it looks like a good day, and with a decent break in the matter of weather no one should complain at any lack of opportunity to enjoy himself to the utmost.

MRS. ALBION KEITH

KEITH-KERRISON

A wedding of more than passing interest in Winchester was that observed at the Country Club Monday evening when Miss Dorothy Willis Kerrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Kerrison of Lakeview road, became the bride of Albion Keith of Portland, Me. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church.

The elch hall was transformed, a chancel and altar having been created for the occasion and decorated with smilax and pink gladioli. The wall decorations were of green foliage and roses and the wedding procession to the altar traversed a long aisle bordered with white satin ribbon and flowers.

Miss Kerrison was escorted by her father. She wore a gown of gleaming ivory satin, trimmed with pearls and brilliants and having a court train. Her bridal veil, held in place by a coronet, was of duchess lace and tulle.

Mrs. Warren F. Gould of Winchester was matron of honor. She was attired in sea green taffeta, while the bridesmaids, Miss Helen Maguire of Melrose, Miss Mildred Cummings of Winchester, Miss Doris Ridding of Winchester, Miss Alice Little of Everett, Mrs. Morris B. Kerr of Winchester and Mrs. Allen M. Fay of Water-town, wore dresses of pink in bux-fant style with tight bodices. The bouquets were of roses and gardenias in shower design. Willard F. Keith of Portland, Me., a brother of the groom, was best man.

KIDDIES' DAY

July 28. Put a circle around the date. No need to tell the kiddies to remember the occasion. It's the big day of the summer for deserving youngsters of the Town between the ages of 6 and 12 years who aren't perhaps quite so fortunate in the matter of hot weather vacations as some of their friends in wealthier homes.

Once again, after a year's lapse, the party will be held at Lynn Beach where salt water bathing, games and sports dear to the childish heart can be enjoyed in perfect safety at an ideal spot within easy reach of Winchester and home.

Although it seems hard to believe, the Social and Community Welfare Committee of the local Lodge having the affair in charge promises that this year's Kiddies' Day will eclipse all others and with two hustlers like P. E. R. George T. Davidson and James J. Fitzgerald on the job things are bound to keep moving. Tickets are about ready for distribution and once again the Elks are assured of the co-operation of the Emblem Club which has stood by so nobly in the past. The cards are stacked for a good time. Anyone wanting to help with the transportation problem should get in touch with either of the above mentioned Elks.

The funeral services will be held at "The Homestead" at Amherst this Friday afternoon.

Among those receiving degrees from Harvard University June 24 was Miss Ella M. Emerson of 29 Rangeley. She has studied at the Harvard Graduate School of Education, and the degree of Master of Education. Ed. M., was conferred upon her.

FLANDEIS-STRETCH

At a very pretty wedding Wednesday afternoon Miss Elizabeth Humphrey Stretch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Stretch of Scituate, was married to Franklin Addison Flanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Flanders of Winchester. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock at the First Parish Church, Scituate Center, with the Rev. Cornelius Heyn officiating.

The bride wore a period gown of white satin and tulle. Her veil was of tulle trimmed with rose point lace and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas, lilies of the valley and orchids. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel R. Stretch, maid of honor, who wore a gown of ecru lace over orchid and an orchid picture hat and carried opelia roses and lilies of the valley. Her two bridesmaids were her cousin, Miss Margaret Taylor of Easton, Pa., and Miss Julia Turner of Cambridge. They were gowned in ecru lace over peach, wore picture hats and carried bouquets of orchid sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The bride's mother wore a gown of French blue georgette and lace and carried opelia roses and delphinium. The groom's mother was gowned in beige georgette and lace and carried roses and orchids.

Mr. David Todd Bulkley of New York was best man and the ushers were Mr. Hollister K. Olmstead of Boston, Mr. Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., of Winchester, Mr. Charles Frederick Smith, Jr., of Swampscott and the groom's brother, Kenneth G. Flanders of Winchester.

The bride was graduated from the Cambridge Haskell School about a year ago. The groom is of the class of 1924 at Yale and prepared for college at Andover.

Mr. Donaghey was a member of the Class of 1919, later taking a course in Electrical Engineering at Wentworth Institute and a special course in Salesmanship and Store Management at Boston University.

FIDELIS CLUB

Last evening the Fidelis Club of this town held a social gathering at the home of their President, Miss Mary A. Boyle. This little party was given in honor of those members that have been faithful all the year and helped in every way to make all the club's undertakings a success.

Last Sunday the girls, piloted by Nantasket Beach aided by the strains of Mandolins, Banjos, Ukies, etc., ably assisted by the unusual tenor voice of Miss Mary Lawrence of Stoneham who was their guest.

The girls sang, played and danced and during the course of the evening enjoyed a dainty collation which all agreed was the end of a perfect evening.

Rev. Fr. Fitzgibbons, Director of the club and the following members were invited: Miss Anna Oliver, Secretary; Miss Mary Norton, Treasurer; and the Misses Mildred Barrett, Esther Lydon, Mary Monahan and Mary Fitzgerald.

Lyndon Burnham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnham of Everett avenue is at home from Deerfield Academy. He participated with much credit to himself in the athletic life of the school and evidently is following in the footsteps of his dad who was also quite an athlete in his day.

PATTERSON-GINN

Miss Margarita Christina Ginn, daughter of Mrs. Hunter Robb of Boston and Winchester was married last week Thursday afternoon to Lieut. James Bernard Patterson of the 3rd United States Cavalry, now stationed at Fort Meyer, Va. The ceremony was performed at the Winchester estate of the bride's mother by Chaplain Edward T. McNally of the 13th Infantry, stationed at Camp Devens. The bride, whose father was Edward Ginn, was given in marriage by her brother, Edwin Ginn of Boston.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Edwin Ginn (Margaret Cutler). Other attendants were Mrs. Alexander Bull Trowbridge, Jr. of Ithaca, N. Y.; Mrs. George Pope Buell of West Newton and three little flower girls, Margaret, Katherine and Anne Piper, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Piper of Concord.

Lieut. Patterson's best man was Lieut. C. D. Palmer of the 11th Field Artillery, U. S. A., and the ushers were all army officers, including Maj. N. C. Nash, Jr., Capt. E. C. Meade, Lieut. M. E. Jones, Lieut. W. J. Crowe, Lieut. Ralph Ostie and Lieut. George Pope Buell, the latter of the Marine Corps.

An elaborate reception followed the wedding ceremony. The large music room, where the ceremony was performed, was beautifully decorated with flowers. The bridal party approached the altar through an improvised aisle formed of pillars, topped with flower-filled bowls.

While the guests were assembling, a program of nuptial music was played on the organ by John Adams Loul of Boston. Since the bridegroom's leave of absence is very brief, Lieut. and Mrs. Patterson are making a quick motor trip to the South and plan to take a regular wedding tour later on. Their home will be in Washington, D. C.

The bride prepared for college at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and was graduated from Vassar in 1920. Lieut. Patterson was graduated from Georgetown University in 1914 and from the United States Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kan. in 1921.

BASEBALL SATURDAY AND THE FOURTH

The St. Mary's C. C. management has announced two stellar baseball hookings for Saturday afternoon and the holiday matinee. Tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 the locals will play the strong Medford City Club which has been going along very well in the independent ranks. Its roster contains such players as Webster Knox, former all-scholastic twirler of Medford High; Wholly, old Medford A. A. backstop; Kersy and Odams of Medford High fame; Morton, ex-South Boston "Tw" star and "Fish" Ellis, all-around luminary of the Tufts freshman forces.

"Joe" Mathews looks like the pitching choice against Medford with his "Mex" Kelley, recently acquired by the locals, billed to work on the holiday against the Lincoln.

The latter aggregation will be strong as Somerville is distinctly a baseball town and the home of many fine players ready to go at a moment's notice. The visitors will need to be at their best to take the St. Mary's into camp with Kelley on the slab and another good game should result.

More and more of the local fans are learning that they can see a good game of ball on Manchester Field each Saturday and the crowds are increasing with each contest. As yet the receipts are not balancing the expenses and it is hoped that every one will dig deeply tomorrow and the holiday.

As we said last week the boys are playing for the fun of it and every dollar taken in goes toward the actual running expenses of the games. The management expects every one to buy a tag at the games. It's the least anyone can do.

LIFE SAVING COURSE AT SANDY BEACH

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter, American Red Cross, has announced that its free classes in life saving will be held this year at Sandy Beach from Aug. 23 to 28.

This is the fifth season of these classes and this year the chapter expects that many more swimmers will take advantage of them than ever before. In the last 10 years 3400 junior and senior life savers have been trained. Capt. Jack Wallace, in charge of the work in Boston, states that there is no need for a person to be a champion or to have been reached in proper swimming methods in order to be a life saver.

WAS OLD WINCHESTER RESIDENT

Mrs. Marietta J. Frost, who died at the home of her son at Lynn Tuesday, was an old Winchester resident. She was the widow of Alston E. Frost, and for many years made her home on Mystic avenue. She was 76 years of age and had resided for the past 14 years with her son, Charles J. Frost, at 267 Essex street, Lynn. He is the only surviving relative. The funeral services were held at the residence on Thursday afternoon.

"DEAREST ENEMY" AT THE TREMONT THEATRE

"Dearest Enemy," the "different musical comedy," has developed into the happiest of Boston summer show successes, at the Tremont Theatre. Helen Ford, who has made the hit of her life as Betsy Burke, the peppy and patriotic little Hibernian heroine, and Charles Purcell, who never had a more grateful role than the gallant British Captain Tryon, head the splendid cast and ensemble of singing and dancing comedians.

The "difference" consists in the fact that "Dearest Enemy" has a real story with a Revolutionary background; picturesque costumes and scenery, lyrics, score, dances and even "stunt" numbers all quite in the period, but lively, luring and exhilarating as any modern "revue" a la mode. Another difference is that you can bring your grandmother, or your grandchildren, as the case may be, and they will not only be thoroughly entertained, as well as instructed, if they be in a receptive state of mind;—and nothing in the entire performance, either word, action or suggestion, need bring the blush of embarrassment to the cheeks of those who have not forgotten how to blush. This is "different," indeed.

Furthermore, the school children, a trifle blase at the end of the school season, find a new thrill in their reading of United States history; for "Dearest Enemy" pictures both the British invaders and the American defenders of colonial New York as quite humorous human beings, and the result is that while they laugh at the Redcoats and relish the way Betsy Burke, Mistress Murray and the boy spy, Jimmy Burke combine to "put it over on the lobsterbacks," they have a better realization of the "times that tried men's souls," but did not dry up the wells of laughter. "Dearest Enemy" offers special bargain matinees for the benefit of the youngsters just released from the school-rooms, and they will take this entertaining lesson in history away with them for their vacation. Mail orders will be carefully filled.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

That's the way the driver of a Ford roadster felt last Saturday evening when he was released by the police after satisfactorily explaining to Lieut. John Harrold how he happened to be riding in a machine which had been reported stolen and for which the authorities were on the watch.

The man had been spotted driving through Symmes corner by Sergt. Cassidy and officer Dempsey who had notified headquarters that he was headed toward the square. As the Ford pulled into the center motorcycle officer Hogan stopped it and escorted the driver to the station where he was asked, "how come."

It seemed his car had been returned to him by the thief who had taken it, and in his rejoicing at the recovery of his property he had neglected to inform the authorities of the fact. Instead he had gone for a ride, and soon learned that an advertised stolen machine is an uncertain vehicle in which to get any great distance. He was able to satisfy Lieut. Harrold that he actually owned the roadster and was allowed to depart in peace.

MISS SULLIVAN SURPRISED

Miss Marion Louise Sullivan, our popular "Information" Operator at the local Telephone Exchange was pleasantly surprised last Tuesday evening when her fellow-employees took possession of her home during her absence. She was enjoying an auto trip in the early evening with a party of friends and on her return as she entered her home was completely amazed to find about 30 young ladies dressed in various costumes.

After considerable hilarity, Miss Mary Jane Kelly in behalf of the girls at the office, presented her with a purse of gold. Miss Sullivan was completely surprised and after regaining her usual happy composure, thanked the girls for their gift.

Marion has been one of the most popular operators at the Winchester Exchange for many years and was only recently promoted to the Boston Trifle Engineers' Office and takes with her to her new field the best wishes of her hosts of friends.

A dainty lunch was served, after which vocal and instrumental numbers were rendered.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

On last Saturday afternoon, the Omicron Delta Canoe Club of Waltham, entered in a regatta against the combined crews of the Winchester and Medford Boat Clubs, on Mystic Lake. Most of the races were run during a heavy downpour of rain which prevented many people from attending. From a racing standpoint, conditions could not have been better, however. The water was smooth and there was little or no wind to hamper the paddlers.

The O. D.'s are known to have a crew of powerful paddlers in their organization and they demonstrated this to the complete satisfaction of the Winchester and Medford paddlers. The local crews did not finish in a first place throughout the afternoon. In some events, however, they did cause their opponents trouble, but a second or third place was the best position they could claim at the finish line. The regatta was run on a point basis and the final score resulted in the O. D.'s having 67 points, to the Winchester-Medford crew's 29 points. The visitors not only had a group of strong paddlers with them, but they also out-numbered the Mystic Lake combination. This meant that some of our own men were compelled to enter into as many as three or four half-mile events.

Without question the Winchester-Medford contestants were outclassed by their Waltham rivals. This was definitely proven. In spite of this, some of the local racers showed considerable ability and their showing does much to make the defeat less bitter. The club four, single blade race, was a close one. The O. D.'s managed to win by three-quarters of a length, but in order to do this, they were forced into making a time which if recorded, would probably have been well above the average race. In the single-single blade race, Kenneth Pratt caused his opponents much concern, only to be nosed out of second place at the finish line. The same thing could be said of the tandem-single blade race, in which John Caldwell and Pratt made up the local team. In the double blade races, the first entered into by Mystic Lake paddlers in many years, Edward Sandberg excelled. In the two-bladed solo event, Sandberg kept up in the running throughout the entire half mile course. He was racing against experienced men and had the course been one half a boat length shorter, he would have taken second place. As it was, his third place was well ahead of several others who straggled in some distance behind him. Not satisfied with this showing, he teamed up with Hovey in the tandem-double blade race, and stroked that combination into second place. Then, just to complete a day's work, he stroked the double blade club four. It might be added, too, that the energetic Mr. Sandberg took the helm in the war canoe race. Kenneth Pratt, Edward Sandberg, John Caldwell and Clifford Lougee, were probably the outstanding paddlers for the locals, though all of the others contesting did their utmost.

The summary of events is as follows:

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The older a man gets the gladder he is that he wasn't allowed to have his own way when a boy.

Children learn a good many lessons at their mother's knees and some useful ones across it, too.

There is no investment a man can make that yields such unbounded returns as optimism.

The sunset of your life will not be beautiful unless your home life was pleasant during your day of work.

Never judge a man by the clothes he wears, for many a pair of patched pants cover an honest heart.

Winchester is fortunate in having a most efficient fire department. Its personnel is capable and competent. Its members are always ready for every emergency. The town seldom has an accident of importance wherein the fire department does not figure and perform yeoman service. At the fatal accident Monday evening members of this department assisted in stretcher work and one member drove the police Reo ambulance, which was finally secured and used for one in its history, to the hospital with the victim. At time of drowning and automobile accidents, the fire department is always called upon, and it is always ready to perform the necessary and major work. Few towns of our size have a better or equally able group of men for emergency work.

We have never tried it, but we would hesitate a long time before we decorated the front of our automobile with the group of tall, thinning United States flags now so popular with many motorists. It appears to us fully difficult enough to drive a car and watch out for the herd of inexperienced and incompetent persons on the highway when using the car as the makers turn it out, without adding to the hazard by placing a group of waving flags in front of our eyes. We have been informed upon our refusal to use one of these devices that our patriotism was not well developed. The point to us is unimportant in this incident, and we are well willing to become even more unpopular in recommending that Commissioner Goodwin forbid their use.

HOW TO KEEP COOL

The small boys find the Frog Pond on the Common, or any swimming hole the best place to keep cool. For those of us who have to work, especially in city offices, the State Department of Public Health suggests the following rules:

1. Drink plenty of water. Sweet drinks are heating to the body.
2. Sprinkle the body off frequently with cool water.
3. Eat simple, wholesome food. Avoid fats and sweets. Do not overeat.
4. Wear light clothing for work and get into a bathing suit frequently in "play" time.
5. Exercise is necessary, but be careful not to over-exert, especially if you are not in the habit of taking strenuous exercise in the winter.

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

I give the children lots of milk
At least 4 cups a day
Because it builds their teeth and bones
In a fun and lasting way.

I see that it is pasteurized
To kill all sickness germs,
I wouldn't think of using milk
On "raw" till I hear it's germ.

C. D. OF A. OBSERVED 15TH ANNIVERSARY

Winchester Court, C. D. of A., observed its 15th anniversary last evening with a largely attended roll call and covered dish supper in Lyceum Hall. Mrs. Frances Conlon, Grand Regent, presided and Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald gave the invocation. The hall was artistically decorated with beautiful cut flowers.

Following the supper an entertainment program was enjoyed in charge of Miss Mabel Cote. There were vocal solos by Miss Cote and Mrs. Mollie Maguire, and as an especial feature a history of Court Winchester from its inception to the present was read by Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, Charter Historian.

Three tableaux were staged to represent the Court colors, motto and "America." Those who participated were Mrs. Nellie Moffett and Miss Mary Martin, representing the colors; Miss Mary O'Melia and Mrs. Molly Maguire, representing the motto; and Miss Mary Donnelly as "America." Mrs. Conlon gave the accompanying reading.

The evening was brought to a close with a salute to the flag and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by all present.

Plans are under way for a whist party to be held in Lyceum Hall on June 15 in charge of Miss Mary Conlon and Mrs. Catherine Milne.

CHILD HIT NEAR ICE BRIDGE

Little William Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stevenson of 31 Hemingway street was painfully but not seriously injured shortly after 5 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon when he was struck and knocked down by a motor car on Main street near the ice bridge. The car, a Flint touring, was driven by Edward Nault of 155 Water street, Lawrence.

The little boy was picked up and taken to his home where he was treated by Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne for a cut on the left side of his face and another on his left arm.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Early last Monday morning the police were notified by Mrs. Edna M. Bean that upon her return to her home at 159 Forest street after a visit she found the house had been entered and ransacked. The authorities commenced an investigation and found in addition to the Bean home the residence of R. B. Adams at 171 Forest street had been entered and considerable loot taken. The Adams family were away and were notified by the police of the robbery. Clothing, jewelry and silverware as well as two radio sets were taken from the houses to a total somewhere in the neighborhood of $500. The police are at work on the case, but thus far have been able to report little progress.

HAMLET'S HOME TOWN CELEBRATES 500TH ANNIVERSARY

Helsingor, alias Elsinore, will celebrate in June its past which began 500 years ago.

One ghost, at least, of Elsinore's past is known the world around, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society giving an account of this famous Danish town, that is the shade of a King of Denmark, father of Prince Hamlet.

But the other members of the cast of Shakespeare's drama are no ghosts to the Helsingorians. Ophelia and Hamlet, Polonius and the rest bring considerable income to the town annually from tourists. Most real of all is the King's castle. What tourist will pass Helsingor, when he can pace the very same rampart where Hamlet met his father's ghost!

Satisfying the Tourist

One American who happened to visit Elsinore in the winter some years ago, approached a native of the town asking the way to Hamlet's grave. A search at that time of your would be fruitless, the candid Dane told him, because the grave was not usually built up before spring. English and American tourists annually carry it off bit by bit, the Dane explained, until there is nothing left of the artificial mound by fall.

Hamlet's home town is a sort of out-dated Gibraltar of the Baltic. The entrance to the Baltic is even more constricted than the Straits of Gibraltar. One sails into Skagerrack northeast along the lobe of Norway, then southeast down the Kattegat, separating Denmark and Sweden to the Sound of the narrows. Here a traveler can easily pick out houses and people on both banks, for the shores are only two and one-half miles apart. On the Danish headland is Helsingor, while its Swedish twin on the opposite side is called Helsingborg. The Sound continues narrow for 40 miles. Its Baltic throat is clogged with an island. Between the island and the Danish mainland shore is the metropolis and capital city of Copenhagen. The latter has outdistanced Helsingor because it could be guarded better. Copenhagen's quay-lined channel also offers protection from storms which Helsingor could never provide.

In 1426 when Helsingor was founded there was, indeed, something rotten in the State of Denmark, although it was 250 years before Shakespeare got around to say so. The King needed money to run the country and to buy butter for the royal slice of bread. But the nobles of Denmark, who were the tax collectors told the King they needed the money much worse than he did. The general strike of the nobles was com-

Began Life as Customs Station

So Helsingor was born, since it was the logical place for a customs station.

Prospering also at this period was the Hansa League, a sort of glorified international Chamber of Commerce. Thousands of the League's ships had to pass Helsingor on the way to north Germany, Poland, Russia and Scandinavia. Their mission was to deliver the beautiful silks and the palate-exciting spices which were coming in cargoes from the Orient.

To enforce the royal ship dues a later King, in 1577, began the towered castle which Shakespeare makes the scene for Hamlet. At that time the Baril was 13 years old so the castle was probably nearly as much of a marvel to him and to his public as the Woolworth Tower is to us. It is interesting to note that the United States was one of the signatories to the treaty in 1857 which abolished the Sound dues and ended the usefulness of Hamlet's castle.

There are 13,000 souls in Helsingor and all of them old enough to think about it are sure that Shakespeare came to their city as a wandering player. Else how could he have described the castle so well and caught the spirit of the people so accurately! The Kronborg, as the

More recently a hotel proprietor has erected a monument on a grave which he calls Hamlet's. Tourists drop flowers on it. But he pushed the story a little far when he exploited a pool near-by as the pond where the mad Ophelia drowned herself.

WINCHESTER VISITING NURSE ASSOCIATION

The following account of an up-to-date citizen in an up-to-date town was brought back by Mrs. Gormley from the Health Congress which she attended at Atlantic City.

"Our friend, John Smith, wakes up on this particular morning bright and early, refreshed by a good sleep, since his sleeping room was flushed with an ample flow of fresh air secured for him by the building regulations which have wisely limited the height of the buildings across the street. He pulls up the shades and admits a flood of sunlight guaranteed by the vigorous enforcement of anti-smoke ordinances. He does his Daily Dozen, quite oblivious of the fact that his friend who told him about the value of such exercises learned his lesson from an educational bulletin of the health department. He drinks a glass of water on rising and splashes in his tub, unregardingful of the engineering works which have brought the rain and the melted snow from distant hills to his bathroom and of the daily bacteriological supervision which ensures the purity of the supply.

After dressing, John proceeds to breakfast which is served on the porch because it is summer time. (He does not know that before the health officer's campaign against flies and mosquitoes such a course would have been unthinkable.) He drinks his glass of milk made safe by farm and dairy inspection and by a pasteurization ordinance. As he finishes breakfast, he glances at his mail, and finds to his satisfaction official notice that Susan (who had been exposed to diphtheria in a neighboring family) can go back to school, since bacteriological tests made by the health department have shown she is not a carrier. This reminds Mrs. Smith to tell him that Billie, her second, was examined by the school doctor yesterday and that the nurse came into explain that he needed glasses, so that she must take him to the oculist.

Friend John grumbles a bit at the officiousness of these busybodies, who as he supposes, must find some way to earn their salaries. He and his children then start off together, since school and factory lie in the same direction. They note, with approval, that a certain obnoxious vacant lot on the way has been cleared up, but they do not know how many hours the sanitary inspector spent in locating the owner and securing action. They cross the river and quite forget how different a stream it was, before the intercepting sewer and disposal works were built. They take the trolley car and they certainly could not imagine that if Eleanor Babbitt down the street had not been quarantined as a scarlet fever contact she would have occupied the seat next to Billie, with perhaps the gravest consequences for him.

Mr. Smith has a busy morning at the factory, but he is very glad to find time for two public health "conferences," one with the district nurse who has just got one of his best workmen, who had unfortunately developed tuberculosis, into the country sanatorium, and the other with a state inspector who comes in to show him how his polishing wheels can be protected, so that no more of the workers in that particular shop need be prematurely hurried into a similar institution.

He lunches at a restaurant around the corner, just put in good sanitary condition under the orders of the food-stuff inspector, and returns to the office to find that all danger of trouble due to a case of smallpox in the assembling room has been avoided by the vaccination of the whole working force. He is called to the phone to hear from Mrs. Smith the good news that she has just taken Alfred, their youngest, to the infant welfare station and that he has gained two pounds on the new formula. He goes over with the head of his personnel department the records of a group of employees found to be mentally deficient by the psychiatrist and decides on their transfer to jobs suited to their capacity. Finally, on his way home he stops at the clinic for his own annual health examination. It is needless to say after this recital of his daily activities and the glimpse given of the health facilities offered by his community, that John is found to be sound as a bell.

Original Bailiffs

Bailiff is a name which was introduced into England in the time of William I, and came to be applied to various officials representing or acting for the king. The sheriff was the king's bailiff, whose business it was to preserve the rights of the king within his "jurisdiction" or county.

Cheap and Lasting

To cover any wooden roof, such as on dog kennels and summer houses, tack down a large piece of strong brown paper. Make sure there are no holes in it for rain to get under. Then give it two coats of paint. This will last several years, is as good as tarpaulin, and much cheaper.

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

ENGINEERS NATIONAL GROWING

K. J. Ferguson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers National Bank, Boston, just returned from Florida, where he attended an important meeting of the executives of the Brotherhood's interests.

Mr. Ferguson was deeply impressed by the great success of the banks organized by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. This great industrial organization has founded 14 successful banks and six investment companies in different parts of the country.

The total resources lack of these banks is now well over $300,000,000. This organization owns the Equitable Building of New York, the largest office building in the world. It also owns two large office buildings in Cleveland, and other large buildings in many cities of America. This is an evidence of what labor can accomplish when directed by such financial experts as Mr. Ferguson and his associates.

The Engineers National Bank of Devonshire street, Boston, founded by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is one of the most successful institutions of its kind. In two years its deposits have increased from $386,834.81 to almost 10 times that amount in May, 1926, when the deposits reached $3,503,279.05. This success has been achieved by safe, sound and careful banking.

Mr. Ferguson stopped off at Washington the other day on his return from Florida and had a long interview with government officials, who congratulated him on the wonderful success of the Engineers National Bank of Boston.

In order to show the esteem in which the Government holds this institution the United States Bureau of Efficiency has lent the bank a very choice collection of models used in the early stages of banking in the United States. These models include articles which had been salvaged, many of them back in the last century, such as checking devices, cash registers, interest calculators, cancelling stamps, safe deposit boxes, toy savings banks, and numerous other contrivances which are both ingenious and serviceable.

This exhibit can be seen in the windows of the bank and also in a special department of the bank at 60 Devonshire street, Boston.

Visitors are cordially invited to examine them. The intricacies of these inventions will appeal strongly to those who are interested in novel devices.

THE PHILIPPINES AT THE TURN OF A QUARTER CENTURY

The commission for investigation of the Philippine Islands appointed by President Coolidge has sailed to make a new survey of the United States' territory in the Far East.

With the commission's departure the spotlight of public interest again turns to the Philippines, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C. headquarters.

The quarter century since the first Philippine commission finished its work in 1901, has seen vast changes in the islands. An inventory of Philippine trade, of education, and general welfare shows advances all along the line.

How Trade Has Changed

Scratch off coffee, insert embroidery, then the list of the islands' five chief products for export remains the same. But the order of their importance and most of all the rolled up total of their importance to the Philippines has changed. For years Manila hemp was the leader. The most valuable export today is sugar and the next most valuable is the coconut. Then follows hemp. Tobacco is in fourth place just as it was during the latter years of Spanish control. Philippine embroidery is the new entry. Coffee in the Philippines succumbed to a tropical disease.

The year 1901 was the first normal year for the Philippines after they became United States territory. Aguinaldo's insurrection had been suppressed. The soldier made way for the civilian. That year Philippine trade, exports and imports, doubled the Spanish average for many years. Today Philippine trade exceeds the quarter billion mark which makes it more than four times as much as in the first peace year under the American flag.

A College Older Than Harvard

If age were the only test, the Filipino could call the American school system mere mushroom growth. A graduate of the University of Santo Tomas in Manila can refer to Harvard as a young upstart college because Santo Tomas opened its doors in 1607, the same year John Smith and his hundred colonists began their trials with mosquitoes and malaria at Jamestown. The Philippine school system, however, is almost entirely American made. Spanish law required that there be two teachers, one for instruction of boys and one for instruction of girls to each 5000 people. Actually it worked out to one teacher to more than 4000 people.

Today there are more than 25,000 teachers in Philippine public schools. These teachers, 98 per cent of whom are Filipinos, are training 1,132,000 pupils.

English Superseding Spanish

Although there are 87 dialects spoken in the islands, English has become the national language in 25 years. There is not a town or remote village now where some children at least do not speak English. Spanish is spoken but not nearly as much as English.

Probably the most significant detail in an inventory of the state of the Philippines is the decrease in the number of white residents. The census of 1903 showed 14,000 white people, most of them American while the last authoritative census, 1918 showed 12,000. Meantime the population of the whole archipelago had increased by 3,000,000.

Straws in the wind are probably more important than the tablets of 25 years of progress in the Philippines. These are some of the straws. Plans are under way for planting 30,000,000 Para rubber seedlings during the current year. A new profitable export has been discovered in buntal or Bangkok straw hats which has leaped in four years from the $200,000 peg to $2,000,000. Although 10th among the world's sugar producers, the Philippines are first in area of land available for cultivation. Before 1909 there was not a single modern mill. Now there are 31 producing centrifugal sugar, while the muscovado sugar boiled out by the rough and wasteful methods of Vermont maple sugar making, is decreasing in proportion.

Canning Industry Growing

The world is waking up to an appetite for delicious tropical fruit and the Philippines are waking up to the fact that the islands are eminently fitted to grow such fruit. The Filipinos look with envious eyes on the profits of Hawaiian pineapple and now claim they can raise even better pineapples. Mango, lanzon, chiro and pomelo are stranger names to the American housewife, but they may not long remain so if the Philippines are successful in canning and marketing their fruit products. Rattan which the forests produce in abundance remains yet to be exploited. American furniture makers can use this product as they are beginning to use Philippine wood for American chairs, tables and dressers and radio sets.

But if the custom of pig-raising a nation for a district by its product, such as Illinois, the Corn Belt State; San Paulo, the Coffee Country; the South, the Land of Cotton, is accepted, then the Philippines should be known as the Land of Fiber. From a banana plant Filipinos obtain probably the strongest known plant fiber. Manila hemp, from the fibrous stalk of the hemp, produce sugar, the long hairs on the husks of the billion and half coconuts are now put to many uses, the fiber of the manioc, a member of the amaryllid family and close relative of the century plant is an important export. Buntal hats are made from the kauri palm, and then there is the wood and rattan from the forest. Finally their embryonic industry depends on the imported fibers of silk, cotton and flax.

LANFAIRPWLLGWYNGYLLGOGE RYCHWYRDROBWLLELAND YSILLOGOGOGUCH

Purses, passport officers and printers were disconcerted the other day by the arrival of a steamship passenger in New York who gave her home address as:

Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwlilanysylllogogoch.

There is such a place, though practical map makers irreverently label it briefly, Llanfairpwllgwyngyll, or even merely Llanfair P. G., says a communication to the National Geographic Society by Ralnh A. Graves.

What Name Means

However, the 58-letter title is its unbridled, honest-to-God name, which means "Church of St. Mary in a hollow of white hazel, near to a rapid whirlpool and to St. Tysilio's Church, near to a red cave."

Orthography may be one reason why so few of thousands of American tourists include Wales in their itinerary though it is one of the most alluring regions of the British Isles.

The average American traveler takes one glance at his guidebook or at the tourist-agency fiddler, strides to go to the English Lakes district, to Scotland to the Lorna Doone country, or Paris.

He lacks the courage to wrestle with such place names as Bettws-y-Coed, Bontlyddan, Dwygyfylli, Cwylly, Llandudno, Pwllheli, and Pen-y-Gwryd.

Can't Pronounce Itinerary

If the traveler goes to a railway station to get his transportation, he cannot tell where he wishes to go. If a ticket agent in a tourist office asks whether he would prefer to go by this route or by that, with stop-over privileges here or there, the sounds convey to him no impression of any of the places he may have read about.

He may have equipped himself in advance by studying some easy rule for pronouncing Welsh names, such as to pronounce Ll, place the tip of the tongue back of the upper front teeth and blow through the side of the mouth; Ch is a strong guttural having no equivalent in English, but is a prolonged k (ach); W is as in good. But if ever he imagined he could remember such rules, he forgot their practical application the moment he hears glin-div'r-doo-d, meaning Glyndyfrdwy. It's so much simpler to go elsewhere.

No Waiting Line for Wales

Consequently, at tourist agencies the Welsh window never has a waiting line, and few clerks are able to give one advice as to where to go, how long to stay, and how to come back.

It is a pity, for within this little principality, having an area considerably smaller than New Jersey, one will find the loftiest peak and the finest mountain scenery of England and Wales; the loveliest waterfalls of the British Isles; beaches, Deauville of the Atlantic City, Deauville, or Brighton; streams that team with trout and other fish dear to the heart of the angler; footpaths through vale and forest which cannot be surpassed in the Tyrol or the Pyrenees; and the gray ruins of castellated towers and crumbling battlements, each of which has its own tale to tell of romantic adventure and of daring in the Dark or the Middle Ages, when English kings battled ceaselessly to curb turbulent Welsh princes whose chief end and aim in life was warfare.

Tip to Busy Men

There arrives in Berlin this story of a new dean of the faculty of philosophy at Leipzig university; besieged by a caller who would not depart, the dean eventually rose, took up his hat, said to the caller, "Excuse me, sir, for taking up so much of your time," and howled himself out of his own house.

This impresses us as the perfect technique, with distinct advantages over any other method which has yet been tried.—New York World.

"HIS MASTER HAD TRAINED TOWSER TO PLAY LEAP FROG"

THE HOMING DOG

Myatifying Power of Towser Adds
New Chapter to Dog Lore

By Albert Payson Terhune

His name was Towser. He was the chum and the loyal possession of C. E. L. Wingate, of Winchester, Mass. Incidentally he was perhaps the best liked and best known little dog in that part of Massachusetts, as presently he proved he deserved to be.

He was yellow in color and was blessed with a rare sense of humor; a true canine joker, with his own strong ideas of what constituted fun. Moreover, his master had trained him to play leap frog, and Towser would play it delightfully with a dozen children at a time.

His first sign of having the genius to find his way home occurred when the family went to a summer resort, leaving Towser as the honored guest of some friends who lived some distance away.

The dog was locked securely—or so it was supposed—in a comfortable kennel yard, for the night. Next morning it was discovered that Towser had had the wit to break jail. He had vanished.

Nowhere could he be found. At last it occurred to someone to look for him at his closest home. There sat Towser on the Wingate's veranda, looking worriedly up and down the street, waiting in perplexed impatience for his dear master to come home.

There, doubtless, he would have waited until he starved, for he would not consent to follow his temporary owner away from the house he had always guarded.

The fact that that house was now empty and silent meant nothing to Towser. It was his home. It was no fault of his if his loved ones had deserted it. He himself was not going to desert his post as guard.

It was a bit of Casablanca fidelity which so touched the man who found him that he called up Towser's master on the long distance wire and told him about it.

Instead of giving orders of trusting the dog's common sense to overcome his puerile sense of loyalty when hunger should begin to torment him, Mr. Wingate took the next train to Winchester and rescued his four-footed little pal from the desolate guard duty.

Later, Towser was stricken with distemper, a scourge which has killed hundreds of thousands of fine dogs, and for which no preventive has ever been discovered. Half or more than half its victims die, and Towser seemed in peril of death from the dread malady.

Having more faith in dog hospitals than in home treatment, Mr. Wingate took his half-dead chum to the best veterinary he could find; a doctor who ran a hospital for sick and injured dogs in the city of Woburn, several miles from Winchester.

Now here I am going to digress for a few words, and here I am going to get into trouble with my good friends the veterinarians, a thing I don't want to do. But it is a subject on which I feel somewhat strongly. This is the idea:

A dog is desperately sick. His mind as well as his body ought to be kept calm, and he needs the care and affection of his human gods far more than ever he needed them in health.

He is picked up and carried over a journey road to a veterinary hospital there to lie sick in a strange place and tended by strangers. His own people apparently have deserted him in his hour of need and have sent him away when most he wanted their helpful presence.

A human, sent to a hospital, knows he is sent there for his own good, and that everything possible is being done to get him well enough to go back home. But a dog has no way of knowing this. All he knows is that he is cast adrift in a new and perhaps hostile world when he is at his weakest and sickest.

Small wonder that so many highly-strung dogs lose what chance of recovery they might have had, and that so many of them die, heartbroken, in such places. I am not belittling in any way the brilliant skill and wise care of the average veterinary, nor the way his hospital is run. But, when it is possible to keep a sick dog at home and have him tended there by the veterinary, I think his chances of recovery are often stronger than they would be at the very best hospital. Perhaps I am wrong.

Towser was carried out to a closed car (he was too weak to walk) and was taken to the hospital at Woburn. There he was left. Remember he was taken there in a closed car, and that he had never been to Woburn. He did not even know his way around his own home town of Winchester, except for a block or two from his master's house. Also he was too feeble to stand on his feet.

Towser's master came home, still wretchedly unhappy over his dog's dangerous illness, but satisfied he had done the best thing for the poor little fellow by taking him to a good hospital.

Late that night he heard a feeble cry at the front door. There on the veranda crouched Towser. He was reeling with sickness and fatigue. But his gallant spirit and his queer homing instinct had enabled him to escape—nobody knew how—from the hospital, and start back to his adored master.

He did not know the way. Yet he made the journey from Woburn to Winchester, creeping and hobbling along as best he could. Thence he passed through the entire business section of Winchester and out to the residence district to his own home.

How he did it—physically as well as mentally—is a mystery. It was all new ground to him, and his strength was sapped by long illness. But there he was, safe at his own dear home again, at the feet of his master.

There was no question of sending him back to the hospital. Mrs. Wingate nursed him through the rest of his siege of distemper, and he got well, there in his own home and surrounded by his friends.

There are instances of dogs making far longer homeward journeys through unknown country. But these dogs were healthy and strong and were able to take their own time and to forage as they went. Never before have I heard of an almost dying dog doing such a remarkable thing. It called not only for tremendous cleverness, but for much greater will-power and devotion. Ozone Produced by Seaweed in Decaying

The ozone simply means "a smell," since long ago it was noted that oxygen through which an electric spark had passed gave off a peculiar smell, the smell which we perceive in electricity works or in some of the tube railways, where artificially produced ozone is employed to purify the air. In nature, ozone is found often in the atmosphere after a thunderstorm, or in very tiny quantities on mountains or at the seaside, or even in the country. Town air, laden with impurities, is impossible for it. So that there really is a certain amount of ozone present near the sea. It is not this, however, that the visitor smells—the proportion being far too small for notice—but the gas given off by decaying seaweed, the very pronounced odor from the latter being almost invariably put down as due to "ozone".

Discretion

A platoon of territorials was taken out for hand grenade practice, and real grenades were to be used for the first time. The officer gave instructions to pull the pin, count ten, and then throw.

The men had commenced, with bated breath, counting and throwing, when suddenly one broke away from the company with a wild yell.

Later he was found and paraded before the officer.

"Well, sir," he replied, when asked for an explanation, "there was a fellow next to me that stuttered, and when he began 'one, t-t-t-two, t-t-t-three,' I thought mother wouldn't like me to hang about."—London Answers.

ST. MARY'S JUNE FESTIVAL.

Complete List of Workers Contributing Toward Its Success

The report in last week's Star of St. Mary's big June Festival contained an unfortunate error. In listing those who in one way or another contributed to the success of the event, which has been characterized as the "best ever" in a long series of notable parties, several names were inadvertently omitted. The error is entirely the Star's. The Festival was faithfully, painstakingly reported and the names omitted were included in the copy which was given into our hands by the correspondent. No one can regret the mistake more than the Star, and more especially since it has been appraised of the fact that among those whose names were not printed were some of the hardest workers for the affair. That we may partially at least correct our mistake we are printing this week a complete list of those who contributed toward making St. Mary's Festival the splendid success it turned out to be.

The committee in charge included Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, Miss Nellie Sullivan, Chairman; and the following Captains: Mrs. Nora Ambrose, Mrs. Annie Bennett, Mrs. Catherine Callahan, Miss Margaret Callahan, Miss Margaret Haggerty, Miss Frances Lynch, Mrs. Alice Martin, Mrs. Susan Quigley.

THE MAN-MADE "FLOATING ISLANDS" OF THE ATLANTIC

Crossing the Atlantic has become from what it was when the first steamship made the passage barely three generations ago, or even when men and women not yet old made their first transit, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The larger ships have come to be called "ocean ferries," and the name is in many ways appropriate. You do not expect to be tossed about much on a ferry; and you needn't be shaken up much now in crossing the Atlantic, unless you choose the stormiest seasons. Ferries run on close schedules; and when you go aboard a crack trans-Atlantic liner nowadays you know pretty well within a few hours when you will step ashore 3200 miles away.

The two biggest of them are practically great wandering steel islands that, defying the usual rules of geography, make themselves now a part of the Eastern Hemisphere, now a part of the Western. Their length approaches 1000 feet, almost a fifth of a mile; their beams are 100 feet, as wide as a boulevard. Many a proud building, housing the population of a town, rises from a land area smaller than the hulls of these great ships.

Ships With Populations of Towns. The ships are themselves practically great buildings, whose "land" as well as their superstructures was fashioned by man; and they, too, house the population of a town. When you cross to Europe on such a boat it is no longer a matter of being marooned for a week or 10 days with a small group of people. It is as though you spent six fleeting days (they are days of 23 hours) in a town whose population was far above the average in culture, prosperity, and intelligence; whose government functioned perfectly; and which maintained numerous attendants to look after your comfort.

There are few shore comforts that you cannot have on such a ship. You sleep in beds, not bunks. There is running water in your stateroom. You dine as you would at a great land hotel; and you will feel uncomfortable if you are not prepared to dress the part of a metropolitan diner. There are good orchestras which play for tea, and for dances in a great ball room each evening. The promenade deck on which you take your walks is nearly a quarter mile in circuit. There are numerous deck games, including two sorts of deck tennis, and even golf tournaments for the championship of the boat. On the lowest deck is a large swimming pool. There is a card room for votaries of bridge; a well stocked library; and a smoking room that surpasses in comfort that of many an exclusive club. There is a barber, a hair-dresser, a tailor, a doctor and dispensary of course. Whether you are well or ill, and whether you crave mental diversion, athletic sports, or luxurious ease, you can find what you wish.

Power Houses of the Sea. Operating a ship of this sort is a tremendous enterprise. In the linen closets and in use are close to 200,000 pieces of linen. On the trim from New York to Cherbourg the biggest liners might throw overboard a piece of linen every three seconds, leaving a "hare and hound" trail of towels, sheets, stewards' aprons, and the like entirely across the Atlantic, no two pieces many feet apart. And the ship would arrive on the other side with several thousand pieces left.

Far down in the hull of such a ship, in the section seen by few passengers, and well below the water line is the tremendous complicated machinery that shifts these "islands" from hemisphere to hemisphere; in effect, huge power houses.

Four great shafts 16½ inches through and more than 100 feet long are spinning around at 180 revolutions per minute, nakedly between their bearings and the turbines that turn them. Toward the rear of the hull you see them disappear through the steel wall. Just outside, fixed rigidly to the shafts, the big propellers are churning, pushing nearly 60,000 tons of steel and humanity through the ocean at 25 miles an hour. The briny ocean trickles in about these final shaft bearings in sturdy streams. You ask the chief engineer about it with some nervousness. He laughs reassurance above the din. It is necessary that the packing be not too tight. And the pumps are always busy. They suck up these rills and many more like them and spew the water back into the sea.

BADLY CUT IN AUTO SMASH AT WEDGEMERE

John Mavrogianis of 12 Wade avenue, Woburn, owner of a Ford beach wagon, was badly cut about the head last Saturday shortly after noon when his machine, which was driven by his son, Stely, was in collision with a Ford coupe, on the Parkway near the entrance to Wedgemere station.

The Ford, which was owned and operated by John H. Sullivan of 41 Lincoln street, had crossed the bridge over the railroad tracks and was headed around the turn from Bacon street going in the direction of Mystic lake. The beach wagon was approaching it when suddenly, and according to one report, without warning it cut directly across the coupe's path to the left as if to go into Bacon street. The latter's car struck the beach wagon just behind the forward wheels and both machines skidded across the road to the gutter in a tangle of wreckage.

When passing motorists got to the two cars, Mavrogianis was pinned beneath the beach wagon and it was at first thought that he might have been killed. He was able to extricate himself, but it was found that he had sustained a bad gash on the head which bled profusely. He was taken to the office of Dr. Allan R. Cunningham on Church street where it was necessary to take 12 stitches to close the wound. Later he was taken to his home. The Ford beach wagon was badly smashed up, the coupe had its front bumper broken off.

POWER OF AMERICA'S KING GROWS

The serious prediction of chemists that within a few years we may order palatable synthetic beefsteak made from cotton-seed, fixes a royal personage more firmly on his throne—His Majesty Gossypium Hirsutum, otherwise known as King Cotton. Something of this potentate's power in the world is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Night and day the average man seldom escapes the influence of King Cotton, says the bulletin. He sleeps between cotton sheets on a mattress stuffed with the fluffy white fibers. After he discards his cotton pajamas and takes his morning bath, he uses a Turkish towel made of cotton; he dons cotton underclothes; and if it is summer, he probably wears outer garments at least partly made of cotton. The celluloid comb and brush which he uses in making his toilet, and even the handle of his tooth brush are probably made from the same indispensable fiber.

Under Scepter in Home and Office
Breakfast is not entirely cottonless even though the table is spread with linen. If margarine is used instead of butter it is probably made largely from cotton-seed oil; while the same oil or solid shortening made from it may be used in griddle cakes, biscuits or muffins. The morning paper, too, which Mr. Average Man thumbs through is dependent on cotton for the film from which its photographs were made.

If he motors to town, he rides on tires that could not be made so cheap and strong and durable except for their "carcasses" of cotton fabric or cords. Perhaps the upholstery, the brake-linings, and even the lacquer finish on the car have drawn upon cotton as raw materials. Arrived at his office he makes use of cotton in some of his stationery, his telephone insulation, his typewriter ribbons, his window cords, his shades, and probably in numerous other ways.

At luncheon Mr. Average Man doubtless eats from a table covered with cotton and uses a cotton napkin, for most restaurants and hotels use cotton "table linen." More than likely the roast of his evening meal is from an animal fattened in part on cotton-seed meal. If he goes to the "movies" in the evening he is patronizing a huge industry into whose miles of film cotton enters as the chief raw material. The seat covers, the hangings, and even the screen on which the story he has come to see is unfolded owe their allegiance to King Cotton.

Indispensable for Housewife
Mrs. Average Woman leans even more heavily on the royal and potent Gossypium Hirsutum. The shelves of her linen closet are stacked high with white cotton goods used in bed and bath rooms. In her clothes closets hang dresses after dress of the same material, while her dresser drawers are filled with cotton garments. Her dishes are dried on cotton dish cloths, her laundry (itself largely cotton) hangs on cotton lines, she dries and mends with cotton thread, and retires for the night to sleep in and between and upon cotton.

From where does this indispensable cotton come?

Most of it from American cotton fields of the South and Southwest. Just now the first little green plants whose lives and progress will mean so much to market exchanges and commerce in the summer and fall, are pushing through the black earth in southern Texas. Each week, as the sun gets warmer, will see the green army advance further north until it will stand in possession of close to 40 million acres of the South. This is equivalent to 62,500 square miles, and if it were a single field it would be large enough to cover every square foot of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, and most of Connecticut.

Crop Worth a Billion
The little plants which will supply the great American cotton crop of 1926 (great because even in poor years American cotton is seldom worth less than a billion dollars) are growing in rows three to four feet apart. They are planted rather thickly but when they are several inches tall the farmers and their laborers go along the rows with hoes chopping out surplus seedlings, and incidentally, weeds and grass, leaving the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart.

After this most of the cultivation is given with broad shallow plows and riding cultivators. Under the warmth of the Southern spring and summer the plants grow rapidly. When they reach maturity each is virtually a sturdy little tree three to four feet high, its branches touching those of its neighbors in its row and almost meeting the branches from plants in rows on either side.

The first blooms appear in the southernmost part of the cotton belt about the middle of May and sweep to the northern edge in northern Tennessee and southern Virginia by the middle of July. They are beautiful snow-white blossoms at first, then change through pink to red. They never fade, but the red petals fall, leaving at their bases little green "squares" in the center of which nestle the green "bolls" about the size of a finger end. These swell steadily through the warm summer weeks until they are the size of an egg, when they are tinged with reddish brown. They then crack open along five lines and expose in each orangelike segment a closely packed moist white substance. In a few days the segments have faded back, the moisture has evaporated, and a ball of fluffy white cotton rests in its fragmentary saucer. If left unpicked too long the cotton hangs downward from the open bolls—now dry and brown—like snowy moss.

Cotton Picking Partly Holiday

Cotton-picking time is as much a Nature-marked season in the South as is the overflow of the Nile in Egypt or the appearance of the summer sun in the Arctic. The work appeals to the Southern negro. Industries lose their employees, housewives their maids, when the late summer exodus to the cotton fields begins. Many of the pickers earn out for weeks near the fields in which they work and look upon the outing as a sort of holiday. Even children and aged persons take part in the work, deneging their canvas sacks behind them.

A generation ago pickers received 40 to 50 cents for each hundred pounds picked, but the pay has increased greatly in recent years. Last year pickers received $1.25, $1.50 and even $1.75 a hundred in some regions. The average workers pick about 200 pounds a day, but experts pick 500 pounds or more.

Approximately two-thirds by weight of seed cotton—the cotton as it comes from the bolls—is seed, one-third lint or fiber. The latter adheres tightly to the seed, growing out from all parts of it in tiny white hairs. To separate lint from seed the seed cotton must be passed through a gin. The pickers have their sacks weighed when they have picked down a row and back, and down the cotton in great, deep bedded farm wagons. When 1500 pounds or more of this has accumulated it is hauled to the gin, usually located at a near-by town. Where lint and seeds part company there a movable suction pipe sucks up the still intimately mixed seed and lint to an upper floor where it falls into a hopper and starts on its journey through whose development made possible the great cotton industry. Numerous whirling saws tear the fiber from the seeds. The latter drop into chutes which carry them to huge green piles in the seed room.

The lint passes on belt conveyors in a local endless stream to the presses where it is squeezed into bales weighing approximately 500 pounds. These bales are covered with very coarse brown jute burlap and bound with iron bands. It is in such bales or in bales still further compressed that cotton moves to American cotton mills and across the oceans to the mills of Europe and Japan.

Until after the Civil War the value of cotton seed was not recognized. Millions of tons were burnt, thrown into the sea, or shoveled into rivers. Now the seed from between three and four bales of cotton are worth as much as a bale of the fiber. They are pressed through a roller to remove the short lint known as linters. This is valuable for dozens of uses, from making gun cotton and mattresses to surgical dressings and photographic films. The brownish-green seeds are then hulled and the kernels are pressed between canvas-hair rolls which hold the golden yellow meal and express the oil. Even the hulls make good cattle feed, while the meal and oil furnish bases for a growing number of valuable products.

The United States is the world's greatest cotton producer, furnishing more than half of the total crop, usually from 10 million to 16 million bales. A single State, Texas, produces about one-third of the American crop, or about one-sixth of the world crop.

KASHMIR: A MOUNTAIN GARDEN

News of the death of the Maharajah of Kashmir recently directs attention to one of the wealthiest thrones in India. The country famous as the "land of nightingales and roses" is said to bring an income to its ruler in excess of $5,000,000 yearly.

Kashmir's real wealth, however, cannot be measured in terms of money, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Anyone making a list of the 10 most richly endowed of Nature's beauty spots would have to include, in a representative list, this vale set amidst the towering Himalayas. One traveler asserts it is impossible to know what color and depth, and proportion are until one has visited this Happy Valley in the Himalayas.

Complete Circle of Mountains

The State of Kashmir in India spreads over an area equal to that of Minnesota, but it is usually the so-called "Happy Valley" that is associated with the name of Kashmir. Not on the slopes of the Himalayas, but set down deep among them, is the vale that has inspired so many writers of poetry, prose, and music, and which, in former years, gave to the world one of the most beautiful and delicate of all fabrics made by human hands—the Kashmir (or cashmere) shawl.

The Vale of Kashmir, a wide, level plain 84 miles long and 20 to 25 miles wide, has been compared to a transplanted, peaceful Thames Valley, with a girdle of high, snow-capped mountains. Its charming combinations of lake and mountain scenery, wooden chalets and winding roads, are much like those of Switzerland, except that there is always a white horizon, a complete circle of snowy peaks. On a clear day, the mountains glisten in the sunshine like the battlements and towers of some fairy city of purest marble.

These mountains, the loftiest in the world, have helped to make Kashmir the primitive beauty spot it is today. They are Kashmir's strongest battlements against the encroachments of the white man's civilization—which has so greatly altered the more accessible parts of India. No railroad enters Srinagar, the capital of Kashmir, because the loose rocks in the mountain passes carry away everything along the mountain sides—and not infrequently take a toll of human life.

Latitude of the Carolinas

With a latitude about that of Damascus, or of the Carolinas in the United States, and a protecting wall of mountains, the Vale of Kashmir has none of those extremes of heat and cold which make the districts to the north and to the south so uncomfortable at times. Flowers and trees of many varieties grow in profusion. Sometimes a sudden change in temperature nearly will result in a snowfall on the surrounding mountain peaks, a vivid and interesting spectacle from the valley. In the winter the mercury drops a little below freezing. During the summer the thermometer sometimes shows a temperature of 105 degrees.

The weaving of shawls used to be the main industry, but those who made them were practically slaves, who were never allowed to leave Kashmir. It has been said that every shawl cost the eyesight of one or more persons. The shawl industry was brought to an end by the Franco-Prussian War in 1870. France has been the largest buyer of Kashmir shawls, but the indemnity imposed upon her by Germany left little money for foreign trade. About the same time famine wrought havoc among the weavers. The industry never recovered in Kashmir, although good imitations are made elsewhere.

A treaty between the State of Kashmir and the British Government, by which six shawls of fine quality must be paid yearly, is said to be the only thing that prevents the knowledge of the art from dying out among the natives. One of the most beautiful designs is the "cone" pattern; another favorite is the "ring" shawl, which, though not transparent, is so soft that it can be easily drawn through a finger ring. American whalers and sailing vessels plowing the Pacific 50 years ago invariably made their way into the ports of India to obtain one of these prized light wraps as a gift for the women waiting at home.

Main Street a River

The main surprise and the delight of this romantic valley today is Srinagar, the capital, the Venice of the East. Through the vale winds the Jhelum River, fed by the icy Himalayan springs, occasionally forming beautiful lakes of sky-blue water. The "Main street" of Srinagar is this river, and facing the river are the palace of the Maharajah, the government buildings, and dwellings. On the river, and the numerous canals that intersect it, live 15,000 people in boats. Over the Jhelum are many large bridges of wood, built on piers of crossed horizontal logs. What the little chaletlike houses lack in architectural elegance, they make up in picturesque quality, and in the spring their roof-covered roofs blossom forth with fresh green grass, delicate mauve lilies, and in some cases with gorgeous scarlet Kashmir tulips.

Near the capital, and graving the shores of the lakes of the Jhelum, are the beautiful summer gardens of blue and purple, and the long lines of fountains sparkle in the rays of the setting sun, it would be difficult to find a match for them elsewhere.

WINCHESTER'S FOURTH QUIET

Usual Events in Celebration Program Run Off Without Incident

Winchester's observance of the glorious Fourth could be characterized with entire truthfulness as safe and sane and exceedingly quiet.

By this, one should not understand that there was nothing going on in town last Monday. The usual civic program was run off without a hitch, the ideal weather giving an added impetus in direct contrast with a year ago when intermittent rain throughout the day kept every one more or less on the anxious seat.

The night before proved in the main uneventful. The women were left in peace until after 10:20 p. m. when a grass fire was put out at Winn's Coal Yard while the police were obliged to take only three revolvers into custody. Indeed the grand total of those allowing their own private celebrations to become so boisterous as to hinder them in the authorities' hands was only four during Sunday night and Monday, and of these two were released. Five and $10 fines were imposed upon the others in court Tuesday morning.

The official celebration began as usual with the ringing of the Town bells at 7 in the morning, repeating at noon and again at 5 in the evening. There was golf at the Country Club and many went out of town either to attend the ball game at Woburn or the Harbinger's parade at Medford. But for Winchester the big event of the forenoon was the annual children's entertainment in the Town Hall.

Ten-thirty, the hour for starting, found some 800 or more enthusiastic kiddies impatiently waiting the appearance of the entertainers including a Chinese magician who performed to the entire satisfaction of his youthful audience feats of ledger-lemain too mystifying to attempt to explain, and an indoor circus featuring some clever little ponies and dogs. This last named delighted the kiddies who went into ecstasies at the phonying and stunts put over by the four fabled performers.

Between the two acts of the program there was piano music by Miss Lucy Wilcox who has so often throughout the past winter pleased large local audiences over the radio.

There were plenty of public spirited citizens at the hall to assist. Selectmen Walter H. Dutton and William J. Callahan with the children while officer James Farrell and special officer Thomas J. Mackey were also in attendance. Included among those who lent a helping hand were ex-Selectman James J. Fitzgerald, Selectman J. Harper Blaisdel, John Higgins, Arthur King, and Daniel F. Higgins.

The afternoon program included a band concert by the handstand and Manchester Field while the St. Mary's C. C. baseball team was defeating the Lincoln B. C. of Somerville on the diamond 5 to 2. There was a fair sized crowd on the field about evenly divided between the concert and ball game. Both were well worth while and thoroughly enjoyed as were the refreshments dispensed from a huge booth near the entrance to the field by members of the Methodist Episcopal Church who reported a goodly sum realized from their business during the afternoon and evening.

The police escort at the field during the ball game and concert was in charge of Sgt. Thomas Cassidy and included officers A. O'Connell, Nonnan Dempsey, Mark Kelley and Mackey. The police were given little trouble, the sole mishap being that which occurred when a small boy was struck on the head with the ball during the fielding practice before the start of the ball game. The little fellow was apparently not badly hurt.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

A regular club dance was held Friday evening, which was well attended by the members and their guests. This dance was one of a series of attractive entertainments arranged by the entertainment committee.

As many members were away over the holiday, no special celebration was held at the club house. A number of canoeists enjoyed paddling on the lake however, and in the evening, the majority of them viewed the fireworks display on Manchester Field, from their canoes on the river.

On the holiday morning, Kenneth Pratt, John Pratt, John Caldwell, Harry Gardner, Edward Sandberg and Alan Hovey, journeyed over to the Charles River Basin, where they entered into some of the races held under the direction of the New England Amateur Rowing Association. Winchester was entered in the club fours, single and double blade races, and the tandem single and double blade races. The Winchester tandem double-blade team finished second in its race and while no other crews placed, the trip over to the Charles gave the boys a chance to compete against a number of their canoe club rivals.

The Medford Boat Club is to run a regatta Saturday afternoon, July 10, starting the races promptly at 2 o'clock. All Winchester paddlers are urged to attend. The events will consist of a club four race, a tandem single blade race, the single-singles, splash races over a short course, and a tilting tournament. Medford did much to assist us in making our 25th anniversary celebration a success by entering into the water sports, and now they ask our aid by turning out for their races. Every paddler, experienced or not, is asked to be on hand.

CUT HEAD IN DIVE AT SANDY BEACH

It was estimated that about 2500 visited Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake last Saturday which makes the two accidents reported for the day and evening rather a remarkable showing.

Neither of the accidents proved particularly serious, though James Reagan, 20, of 197 Thorndike street, Cambridge had a narrow escape while diving in the lake near shore. He struck his head against a rock and sustained a nasty scalp wound which bled profusely. Reagan was able to make his way ashore unassisted and drove his car to the center where officer Farrell got a man to accompany the former to the hospital and also notified Doctor Quinn of the accident. Several stitches were necessary to close the wound.

Assistant Lifeguard Mathew Norton, a second-year student at the Tufts Medical School, administered first aid to Esther Puffer of this town who, the latter stopped upon a nail while bathing at the beach. He also assisted a girl, whose name was not learned, when the latter got beyond her depth.

SEASON'S FIRST FATALITY AT SANDY

While a big throng of bathers dispersed themselves in the water or lolled upon the shore, totally oblivious of the tragedy which was being enacted near them, Fred H. Woodward, 63, of 29 Clayton avenue, Medford, lost his life in about 10 feet of water off Sandy Beach in Mystic Lake last Sunday afternoon.

It is estimated that fully 1000 were at the beach at the time but the first intimation any one had that the accident had occurred was when assistant lifeguard Mathew Norton discovered Woodward's body beneath the surface of the water. Norton dove and brought it to the shore where until the arrival of Dr. Milton J. Quinn, lifeguards and bathers worked feverently in a vain effort to resuscitate the unconscious man. After employing a pulmotor for more than an hour and a half Doctor Quinn and his assistants gave up their vain attempt to revive Woodward, and Assistant Medical Examiner Tyler of Lexington was notified and viewed the remains. He pronounced the death due to heart disease.

The dead man was a native of New Haven, but had made his home in Medford for the past eight years. He was a former well-known athlete and swimmer. His wife, a son and a daughter were among those at Sandy Beach when he lost his life.

ITALIAN FIREWORKS AUGUST 16

The Feast of the Assumption, the national holiday celebrated annually by the local Italian residents, falling on Sunday this year, the observance, including a band concert and display of fireworks on Manchester Field, will take place on Monday, August 16. The program will follow customary lines. Opening at noon, there will be the regular parade through the principal streets of the Italian quarter, followed in the evening by the band concert and fireworks. As usual this will be an important event for Winchester and surrounding places in the mid-summer festivities.

The committee of Italian residents in charge of this year's celebration is as follows:

- Joseph Rania, Chairman
- James V. Barbaro, Treasurer
- Alfred Rolli, Secretary
- Frank Dattilo
- Domenico Della Sventura
- Giovanni Gattineri
- Antonio Maragioglio
- Ugo Rolli
- Pietro Sciascia

CHILD BADLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Saturday night shoppers in the square witnessed the accident which resulted in little Mary Longfield, 8-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Longfield of 54 Nelson street, being taken to the Winchester Hospital with a fractured skull after being struck by a Ford sedan operated by John Carter of 55 Plain street, Lowell, while she was crossing Main street near Thompson street about 9 p. m.

According to the police account of the accident Carter was going south on Main street and was moving slowly when the child stepped directly into his path so quickly that he was unable to avoid striking her. The little girl was picked up by John J. Mulrenan of Oak street and taken to the hospital in her father's car. She was attended by Dr. R. F. Brown who ordered her name placed upon the danger list. The car was owned by August L. Palesoul of 178 W. London street, Lowell, who was in the car at the time with four other men. The party was detained by the police until the doctor's finding had been received and then was allowed to go.

Late reports indicate that the little patient at the hospital is somewhat improved.

BOY STRUCK ON MAIN STREET

Daniel McCarron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah McCarron of 63 Wendell street, was painfully but not seriously injured at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday when he was struck and knocked down on Main street near the corner of Water street by a Ford sedan owned and operated by Michael J. Wyse of 6 Raven street, Dorchester. According to the police version of the accident Wyse was driving his machine south on Main street when the McCarron boy ran from the sidewalk into the path of the machine. He was picked up and taken home where he was attended by Dr. M. J. Quinn for several cuts and bruises.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT ON THE HOLIDAY

John Vincent DeVoe, of 107 Millet street, Dorchester was almost instantly killed about 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the holiday when he was struck by a Ford coupe, owned and operated by Floyd C. Smith of 16 Davis avenue, Brookline, while engaged with John Donovan, also of 107 Millet street, Dorchester in shifting a tire on their own machine, a Dodge touring car which was parked on Cambridge street at a point about 200 feet from the Arlington line.

According to the police the Ford coupe was traveling northward while the Dodge was also headed north on Cambridge street. As the coupe approached, another machine came into view going southerly and at high speed. To avoid a head-on collision Smith swung his coupe sharply to the right and into the parked car at the side of the roadway.

The crash was heard at the Country Club and there was soon a large and excited crowd at the scene of the accident, aided to constantly by motorists from the stream of cars passing along the State road.

A telephone call was sent in to police headquarters, and the department's ambulance with Sgt. William Rogers and officer Edward O'Connell made haste to the scene. They lost no time in getting DeVoe to the hospital, stopping only long enough to pick up special officer Mackey en route. Less than 20 minutes elapsed from the time the first call was received at police headquarters until the injured man was placed upon the operating table at the hospital. He was pronounced dead upon his arrival by Dr. M. J. Quinn and Medical Examiner Vernon C. Stewart of Woburn was notified and viewed the remains. Later they were taken in charge by a Dorchester undertaker.

The other occupants of the Dodge car, including John and Rita Donovan, and Margaret and Helen DeVoe, mother and sister respectively of the dead man, were uninjured and were taken to their home by Thomas Cantell, a Medford taxi driver.

With Smith in the Ford was Stanley Copithorne, an Everett man making his home at 16 Davis avenue, Brookline. Both were injured in the crash and were taken to the hospital by passing motorists and treated by Dr. F. R. Brown. Smith sustained a broken knee-cap and Copithorne, a large cut upon the throat and other injuries about the body.

Special officer Thomas Mackey was left on guard at the hospital and Smith was notified that a warrant on the charge of manslaughter would be served upon him as soon as he is able to leave the institution.

Neither car involved was badly wrecked as a result of the collision.

EMBLEM CLUB WHIST

Next Wednesday evening, July 14, a whist party will be given under the direction of Mrs. Bernice F. Gorman chairman of the Sick Committee, in Lyceum Hall. Many valuable prizes have been secured to make it especially interesting, and the popularity of the chairman ought to insure a good crowd. Every member who has had occasion to know just how welcome a little sisterly attention is in times of trouble, can vouch for the good work performed by the Emblem Club Sick Committee which is made up this year as follows: Mrs. Bernice F. Gorman, Mrs. Emma M. Cullen, Mrs. Josephine Arnold, Mrs. Zella A. Kempton. Cards, flowers and delicacies for the sick are covered by the budget raised every year by card parties etc., and increasing the fund means increasing the good work we may do.

At a meeting of the Entertainment Committee, held at the home of Mrs. Fred Scholl last Wednesday evening, plans were discussed for the Beach Outing scheduled for July 21 at Nantasket. Announcements will be made at the whist party and it is hoped that the promoters of the affair will all be present. To make it successful a program of entertainment should be arranged and it is very necessary to know how many can make the trip. Come prepared to state at least whether or not you will be in the party and that will be of vast help to the committee in charge.

Those who have volunteered to contribute sandwiches for Kiddies' Day, should get in touch with President Anna W. Lochman or Vice-President Emily Scholl in regard to the time they should be delivered at the Elks' room. If anyone is unable to fulfill her contract notify either of these ladies as soon as possible. The Club is pledged to supply 1000 sandwiches and that pledge must be kept for the honor of the Club. The names of those who can go to care for the children may be given to Past President Allie E. Davidson.

HAROLD FRANCIS SIMON

Harold Francis Simon, M. D., one of the town's widely known physicians, passed away Tuesday night at his home on Church street following an illness of several months. He was stricken the first week in March but was able after a time to spend about a month at Laconia Cabin in New Hampshire hoping to recover his health. He returned to his home seven weeks ago and since that time had been confined to his bed. Of late he had seemed to be gaining and his health came very suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Simon was born in 1881 at East Providence, R. I., the son of Rev. Benjamin F. and Charlotte (Stable) Simon. He was graduated from Taunton High School and from the Boston University Medical School in the class of 1904. Following his graduation he was for three years an intern at the Boston Homeopathic Hospital, serving as house physician at the Cullis Home for Incurable Consumptives during his senior year.

In 1907 he came directly from his hospital work to Winchester, taking over the practice of Dr. Hovey L. Shepard who was leaving town. Since that time he had remained here and had built up one of the largest practices in the community. Always actively interested in his profession he had a wide experience in medical fields. For some time he was assistant visiting physician on the staff of the Homeopathic Hospital until forced to resign because of ill health about two years ago. He was a member of the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps and during the war served as a medical examiner for the local Draft Board at Arlington. He served the town both as school physician and in connection with the community's baby clinic the work of which has come in for high commendation in medical circles. Of late years Dr. Simon had won for himself more than a local reputation as an anesthetist and was much in demand in this important field. He was a member of both the Massachusetts Medical Society and the Massachusetts Homeopathic Medical Society as well as of the William Parkman Lodge of Masons, the Winchester Royal Arch Chapter, Medford Council, Hugh de Pynne Commandery, Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine, Winchester Lodge of Elks and of the Calumet Club and the Winchester Country Club. He is survived by his wife, Lillian Webster Simon, by a brother, Dr. Vincent C. Simon of New Bedford, and a sister, Mrs. Bertrand F. Brann of Orono, Me.

The Elks funeral ritual was exemplified at the late residence on Thursday evening by Exalted Ruler Fred H. Scholl and the officers of Winchester Lodge. Funeral services were conducted at the home this Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. J. I. Bartholomew Ph. D., of Edgartown, a classmate of Dr. Simon's father. The bearers included Dr. Herbert E. Maynard and Dr. Richard W. Sheehy representing the doctors of Winchester; Dana C. Pickering and Dr. Harry Y. Nutter, representing the town's Masonic bodies and Fred H. Scholl and Thomas F. Fallon representing Winchester Lodge of Elks. During the services the Webber Quartette of Boston sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Sometime, Somewhere." Interment was in the family lot at Mt. Auburn.

The Elks funeral ritual was exemplified at the late residence on Thursday evening by Exalted Ruler Fred H. Scholl and the officers of Winchester Lodge.

WINCHESTER FIREMEN MADE FINE SHOWING AT SALEM

Winchester had good reason to be proud of the detail which its Fire Department sent to Salem on Wednesday to represent the Town in the big parade which was staged as a feature of the celebration being held in that city.

In general, cities and towns were asked to send fire apparatus which participated in the big Salem fire of 1914 or the machines which had replaced those in use at that time. Winchester sent Engine 3, the new Ahrens-Fox pump, and its Chief's car, old "Mary Ann" having some time ago passed out of the town's jurisdiction. Chief David H. DeCourcy drove his own machine over the route and the pump was driven by Driver Edward Fitzgerald. The escort comprised Deputy Chief John J. Gorman, George Osborne, John Richardson, Leigh S. Roberts, Harry G. Kempton, John E. Hanlon and William Hurlburts. While the last named is no longer a member of the Fire Department he served in the big fire of 1914 and so was included in the delegation. Selectmen Walter H. Dutton and J. Harper Blaisdel also made the trip.

The local delegation had a position very near the end of the line of march and it was 4:30 in the afternoon before they swung into line. Compared with the apparatus sent by other cities and towns Winchester has little cause for worry of its fire prevention outfit. Its turnout, judged by the various opinions expressed by the "sparks" along the route, was the finest in the parade. The men reported that they were very well received all along the line.

George R. Hollis of 16 Maple street Waltham, sustained cuts about the head when the Buick touring car which he was driving crashed into an electric light pole at the corner of Bacon and Grove streets about 5:30 o'clock last evening.

To avoid the impending collision Hollis drove his touring car into the post. The Buick was badly smashed and had to be towed to the Central Garage. Its driver was given first aid at the residence of Mr. C. W. Butterworth on Grove street.

GASOLINE STATION ENTERED WEDNESDAY

About 5 o'clock Wednesday morning as Henry Drown was driving along Pond street from his Woburn home to work at the Blossom Hill Milk Farm on Cambridge street he noticed the rear of a large sedan protruding beyond the building of the Jenny Gasoline Filling Station owned and operated at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets by Anna A. Kenney of 161 Cabot street, Beverly.

As he came nearer two men ran to the car and climbing in drove off at a high rate of speed. As they did so one of the doors of their machine opened and four automobile tires fell to the street.

Drown pursued the car for a way but it had gotten a good start and soon distanced him. He returned and picked up the tires, notifying police headquarters of the affair.

Officer Mark Kelley was soon on the scene and with Charles Kenney, the manager of the station who makes his home at 44 Pond street, conducted an investigation. It was estimated that about $125 worth of tires and other merchandise had been taken from the station. Access had been gained by prying off the window grating and jimmying the sash.

Your letters will be more attractive dressed up with the new metal initial seals. A complete assortment at Wilson the Stationer's.

"But, officer," protested Esther, "I insist that I had the right of way." "But, lady," the officer explained, patiently, "this man was on your right, and therefore he had the right of way." "That might apply ordinarily," said Esther, "but you see, I'm left-handed, so the conditions are just reversed."—Toronto Telegram.

READY FOR ABERJONA VALLEY SEWER START

Council to Act on $100,000 Order at Woburn

Boston, Mass.
July 2, 1926

Winchester Star,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Wilson:—

Please note the enclosed clipping taken from the Globe of last night. It does not give much encouragement for a cleaner, purer Aberjona River for a long time to come.

We have a Winchester and a State Board of Health and the condition is getting worse all the time. Take a run down the Parkway in your car, stop at the bridge near Mystic avenue, stand on the bridge a few minutes and look at the water and see how it is being polluted both by Winchester and Woburn industries.

Such a condition should not be permitted.

Yours very truly,
Frank A. Cutting

Woburn, July 1—An order for $100,000 for the construction of the first section of the Aberjona Valley sewer will be submitted to the City Council tonight by Mayor Duffy. A preliminary report submitted by an engineering firm declared that the first section to Salem street could be built for about $80,000. This firm has offered to make the preliminary surveys, borings and maps for $3500.

Mayor Duffy has named a committee to work with him on the question of sewerage North and East Woburn through this trunk line. The engineers have reported that this is feasible and that when the line is constructed the grades will be at such an elevation that these two sections can be taken care of.

At present the main trunk line sewer through the city runs only to Mishawum road and Main street and the grade beyond drops to such a degree that it is not possible to place a sewer there. By placing the Aberjona sewer at a proper grade both North and East Woburn can be accommodated without difficulty.

Mayor Duffy declared this morning that while it is imperative that the manufacturers in the valley be provided immediately with sewerage facilities, it is also important to look to the future for the outlying residential localities.

SEVERAL FIRES OVER WEEK-END

The fire department answered two still alarms and a box signal for fires in various parts of the town last Friday afternoon. At 4:25 the first run was made to a grass and dump fire near the residence of Mr. M. J. Dooley on Middlesex street, and at 4:57 there was a brush fire on Highland avenue near Prince avenue. Box 41 ran at 10 p. m. for burning grass at the northern end of Middlesex street.

Saturday's first fire was at 2 a. m., a burning hay stack, the property of Edward Flemming of Pond street which was put out without much loss as the covering of the stack. At 8:10 Saturday night the department made a run occasioned by burning grass on Palmer street. At 10 p. m. a dump fire was extinguished at the foot of Holland street and at 11:50 p. m. the last run of the night was made to put out a fire in a pile of slumbers off Pond street.

Sunday's only run came at 10:20

ST. MARY'S TOOK SATURDAY AND HOLIDAY TILTS

St. Mary's C. C. baseball team won both its starts on Manchester Field over the past week-end and holiday, defeating the Medford City Club, 4-2, Saturday and the Lincoln B. C. of Somerville, 5-2 on the afternoon of the holiday. This is stepping for any man's ball club, and indicates the grade of ball which the locals are showing right along. Thus far since the team recruited its full strength it has not lost a game, and no one can accuse the St. Mary's management of picking set-ups.

The crowd on Saturday was small, due doubtless to the fact that many were out of town, but on the holiday there was a fairly good attendance and for once the boys were able to break even on expenses. At that the receipts were not what they should have been and it is hard to figure how some of the fans expect the team to continue without better financial support. These who think the brand of ball being put up by the St. Mary's is not worth a quarter a week surely ought not to take in the games. But try and keep them away.

Saturday's game was a real contest all the way. The Medford City Club brought a snappy team to Manchester Field and looked like winners until the 6th inning when a home run by "Flats" Flaherty with two on gave St. Mary's a two run edge which the effective pitching of the veteran "Joe" Mathews was able to hold to the end.

Webster Knox, ex-Medford High star on the hill for the visitors, and in the main he was very good but there. He was accorded sweet support by his mates, particularly in the outfield where "Bud" Edgerly and "Tom" Murphy roamed the great open spaces cutting down base hits with the non-challant abandon of a gun man popping off a pay-master. Murphy robbed big "Happy Fitz" of a sure-fire homer in the 3th when he poked his long swat right out of the hand stand while the first-footed Edgerly committed grand larceny on a prodigious swat by "Jomma" Dolan in the 7th. Big Wholley, ex-New England Leaguer catching for Medford, brought the gang to its feet in the 5th when he grubbed in a foul from the hat of Francis Tansey, running clear to the seats by the score board to make the catch.

Don't get the impression that the visitors played all the high grade ball of the matinee. Tansey and "Nip" Chamberland pulled a couple of sweet catches at critical times while the good right arm of "Mex" Kelley, who was filling in for Melly behind the plate, kept the Medford boys fairly glued to the bags once they got on.

St. Mary's scored in the opening inning when "Tom" Dolan led off with a base on balls and stole second to score on Flaherty's healthy double to center field.

Medford went into the lead in the 3rd, a pass to Kersey, Edgerly's mighty triple to right center and a lung sacrifice fly to right by Wholley accounting for a couple of well-earned tallies.

The locals won in the 6th. "Jomma" Dolan walked and went to 2nd on brother "Tom's" hit past 3rd. A double steal advanced the boys and both scored ahead of "Flats" Flaherty on the latter's homer along the left field foul line into the brook. "Mex" Kelley hit safely to left but Fitzgerald belted into a double play, DeCarbis to Odams to Campbell.

This ended the scoring, but Medford gave the fans a touch of heart disease in the 9th. There were visions of extra innings when Campbell opened with a walk but J. Murphy lifted to Flaherty and Mathews got Kersey on strikes. Edgerly, however, busted a single to right advancing Campbell and big Wholley got hold of one which he drove to left for what looked like at least a double. The ball game hung in the balance but "Nip" Chamberland played the ball just right and made a life saving clutch on the running track to the right of the bandstand.

Holiday Game

A big first inning gave St. Mary's a win over the strong Lincoln B. C. of Somerville Monday afternoon. Things looked a bit drab when it was announced that "Mex" Kelley, who had been countried on to do the pitching for the locals, was unable to work due to a misunderstanding with the Police Department. "Jomma" Dolan, however, stepped into the breach and twirled good enough ball to hold a three run edge through 6 innings when Francis Tansey took up the burden. Francis was wild but effective and the Somerville boys could do little with his hooks during the last 3 frames.

"Jim" McIlale of Somerville High fame hurled for the visitors and bar the first inning when every one took a whack at his service, held the locals in the hollow of his right hand. After the second inning the only semblance of a hit off his delivery was a single by Ambrose which took a bad hop over Sharkey's shoulder and had to be scored a safety. Both clubs accorded their pitcher's good support and the resulting game was fast and interesting all the way. The visitors constantly threatened, but just couldn't break through. They weren't at all pleased with the umpiring of "Tony" Cullen and in all fairness it must be admitted that the arbiter booted several during the matinee, but none of his mistakes were costly enough to mean the ball game which was handed to St. Mary's on the platter of its players' lusty swats in the opening round.

The visitors looked good to put over a flock of runs in the 1st. Curtin walked for a starter and both he and McEachern were safe when "Jomma" Dolan mused up the latter's attempt to sacrifice. The runners advanced on a passed ball and then came a real double killing which was a life saver in every sense of the word. Colter hit through the box and Flaherty whipped the ball to Melly catching Curtin off third. Melly's peg to Ambrose was in the dirt and the runner got safely back to the cushion, but the Winchester 3rd sacker with his head away up chucked to Flaherty to catch McEachern off second and "Flats" quick throw to Melly caught Curtin trying to score on the play. It was nice work on Ambrose part and the resulting double was pulled off so quickly the fans hardly sensed the play at first. In the meantime Colter had gone to second and he made third on Hurke's rap to O'Donnell. When the latter momentarily fumbled the ball Colter made a dash for the plate and was out O'Donnell to Melly, a sweet peg.

Winchester put the game on ice in its half. T. Dolan fanned to Mullin, but Flaherty hit to left and was sacrificed to second by O'Donnell. Fitzgerald hit to right scoring Flaherty and went to second on Chamberland's one-shot to the same garden. Tansey moved both runners along with an infield single and Ambrose cleared the sacks with a double to left. Melly singled to center, but J. Dolan fanned to end the party. This ended Winchester's fun but the visitors put one over in the 3rd when Curtin's double to left got away from Chamberland and went into the river, allowing the Somerville boy to make the circuit. This same Curtin got the Lincoln's second tally in the 5th when he patted out past 3rd into the brook for a legitimate home run.

Had it not been for St. Mary's first inning runs the ball game would have gone out of town since McIlale went like an 8-day clock after the first. The game was very fast and a corker to watch, full of the sharp hitting and fast fielding which always delights the fans.

PUEBLOS A. C. and LYNN FLIERS

IN 15-INNING 5-5 DEADLOCK

The fast stepping Pueblos of the Highlands crossed bats at Leonardi Field on Saturday afternoon. The result was a hard, fast, cleanly played 15 inning draw. Hatch who pitched for the Pueblos served over one of the finest games ever pitched in Winchester or anywhere else. He incidentally struck out 26 out of a possible 45 which is pitching, besides allowing five hits, one of which was a Texas Leaguer with two more being bunts. The opposing pitcher pitched well enough to win 10 out of 10 games but did not come up to Hatch. The Fliers won the greater Boston 17-year old championship in 1925 and are well on the road to winning it this year with 16 wins out of 18.

The visitors scored in the first inning when the third strike of the second out was allowed to break away from the catcher. The runner advanced a base on a pretty sacrifice and moved one more base nearer on a short hit to right, he soon tallied when a short passed ball provided the opportunity. The Pueblos evened it up when Smith doubled to right and scored on Murphy's rap to short-stop which went for an error. The third inning brought out another Pueblo run when Murphy singled to right center and came all the way home when the Flier's catcher tried to get him off base. Lynn fell by the wayside for the next three innings, the Pueblos, however, picked up a marker in the 4th on Clark's ringing double to left, followed by a smash to left by Nelson pushing the Pueblos out in front by two runs. In the sixth Hatch lost control momentarily passing two men and allowing the rival pitcher to pole a long triple to center. He then proceeded to set three men back on strikes on 12 pitched balls. The Lynn team scored two more in the 8th when a hit, stolen base, a free ticket two strikeouts and a two run error by MacElaney, their catcher on a passed ball. The Pueblos wiped out this lead on three hits in a row by Kendrick, Smith and Grandlund with a squeeze play used to good advantage. This tie could not be broken for the remaining seven innings, the game had to be called in the 15th to allow the visitors to catch a train.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

An old-fashioned rose on the dining table of any humble home will bring more satisfaction than an orchid in a green house. Whatever you may be expected to do is only your best, that's all, and no more.

Make friends with your creditors but never make creditors of your friends.

Be glad and your friends are many, be sad, and you will lose them all.

Any burst of anger will have a reason, but very seldom a good one.

Wouldn't there be an awful jar to this old earth of ours if every one should stop criticizing at once.

In the passing of Dr. Harold F. Simon, Winchester is deprived of one whom it could ill afford to lose. During the 20 years of his life in town his sterling worth and ability in his chosen profession won for him a place in the community's esteem which will long survive. Having a large private practice he nevertheless found time to render the town valuable service both as school physician and in connection with the baby clinic. Of him it can truthfully be said that he loved his work and was happiest when engaged upon it. He literally shortened his days by his unflinching attention to what he conceived as his duty. There are all too few such as he. He will be greatly missed.

WHY DO CHILDREN DISOBEY?

Parents are largely responsible for their children obeying or disobeying, says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. Children do not disobey just to be naughty. Often, deeply engaged in their play, they do not hear the commands of mother who is busy washing dishes. Then they have learned that mother does not mean half of these commands, and that only once in a while they will be called to order by a spanking or other punishment.

Inconsistent discipline on the part of the parents makes the youngster willing to take a chance and keep on playing rather than give up his play to carry out the parent's order.

Another fault of the parent is in rewarding children for obedience. If the child has learned that an offer of reward will follow if he doesn't respond to his parent's request, it is natural for the child to hold out for some reward.

Parents should not expect children to respond to such orders as "sit still." "Don't ask any more questions." Children are little wrigglers; they grow that way physically. And they grow mentally by asking questions.

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

Hot Weather Hints

When I sit in the street car
And look across the mile
And every one is dripping hot
And there is not a smile
I think "Am I as unattractive
As that lady over there?"
Well, it's kind for me to smile a bit
And make believe I care."

Smiling at nothing!
I may be a fool
But, honest, it helps me
To think I am cool.

ACCIDENT ON WASHINGTON STREET

Nunley of the same address, the latter being with him in the car.

Logan was going north on Washington street and was about to enter Cross street when the accident occurred. Both machines were damaged but no one was injured.

ANCIENT ATHENS TO YIELD SECRETS

American scientists have been invited to direct explorations of the Agora at Athens, probably the richest prize of archeology in the world today. The plan calls for an excursion into the real estate business to replace the confiscated homes by dwellings in some other sector of the city.

Although England, France, Italy, Austria and Germany have had archeological "ambassadors" in Greece for years, they have all graciously stepped aside for the American scientists.

Famous Market Forum

The Agora was to Athens what the country crossroads general store, with its four barrel rostrums and soap box philosophers is to Bird Center, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. The Agora is important because it is the most famous market forum in the world.

When one thinks of Athens one thinks of the Acropolis. But the Acropolis on its Nature-made 250-foot pedestal of limestone rock, was Athens' sanctuary, its church. A tourist, in the days of Herodotus, the traveler, went to the Acropolis. But an Athenian went to the market place, the Agora, where he could buy flour, and olives, Hymettian honey in lieu of sugar, and currants from Corinth. Or he tarried and listened to homely snub-nosed Socrates standing in an arcade confusing an Athenian by a few cleverly selected questions.

Athens today is estimated to have a population larger than it ever supported at the peak of its power. To the 293,000 residents of the Greek capital there can be added quite properly the 133,000 population of Piraeus, port of the city. Athens and Piraeus are less than five miles apart and therefore bear the same relation to each other as Los Angeles and San Pedro Harbor. Fortunately modern Athens has not bitten deeply into the sacred ground of old Athens.

A View From the Parthenon

There will be much in the newspapers and magazines of the excavations in the Agora during the next 50 years. Imagine that one has climbed to the Acropolis and that one is sitting on the southwest corner of the Parthenon with feet dangling over a mellowed marble foundation block.

Directly south will be Piraeus, on the Gulf of Aegina, and in the mind's eye one may exchange the liners and sponge boats at anchor for Greek galleys. A straight, smooth, macadam road shoots north out of Piraeus but its destination is seen to be west of the Acropolis rock. There are a number of rocky hills between the road and the Acropolis and these the boulevard seeks to escape by veering toward the bed of the Cephissus. The rocky hills are littered with age-yellowed marble fragments and ruined walls. On those mounds was built most of ancient Athens.

Directly west of the Parthenon gallery seat, about the distance of two city blocks is the Acropolis or Mars Hill, second in height to the Acropolis. There the Athenian supreme court sat and there St. Paul revealed the Unknown God. Two blocks farther and a little more to the north is a lower hill crowned with the Theseum, said to be the most perfectly preserved Greek temple in existence today.

The Athens of Today

Crowding on to the north flanks of these three hills, Theseum, Mars and the Acropolis, is modern Athens. The closest quarter is a hodge-podge of dwellings and bazaars. It is the old Agora, and a market today just as it was in Athen's youth. But the stores today sell with antiques, snarls and real, and millinery, instead of flour, olives and honey.

Sprouting among churches, dwellings and stores, one can see a few remnants of ruins that have been unearthed already. By agreement all the modern stores and homes must go. The archeologists will peel back the new to discover the ancient. Present occupants must take new homes or stores in modern Athens.

Continuing the panorama to the north one sees this modern city occupying the whole cup of the plain circled by the Acropolis, Mt. Lycabettus and Mt. Mymettus. To the valley of the Cephissus it is swiftly spreading toward the famous plain of Marathon, which can easily be seen from the lofty vantage point. If the Athenians had had good telescopes the Marathon need never have been run.

An Athenian "General Store" Excavation of the site of an American crossroads store two thousand years from now would not reveal much. Although the Agora is by comparison also a market and a political center it was somewhat different. In its exterior design an Athenian general store, called a "stoa," resembled a modern bank; a row of substantial marble pillars marched across the front of it. There was an arcade between the pillars and the store counters themselves. And at the rear of the stores were inclosed warehouses in which goods was locked at night. The front arcade was a social center. If an Athenian had a little time to loaf he didn't take a bath like a Roman or play a round of golf like an American. He found a shady store front and talked politics. Everything was made convenient for loquacious. Benches were placed about. Incomparable statues of bronze and of Parian marble looked down upon the groups. The gods, the famous kings, heroes, poets, philosophers, orators and playwrights were represented in these market halls of fame. Some of these statues archeologists hope to find.

Free entertainment awaited the idler in the Agora arcades. Acrobats performed. Magicians swallowed swords. One such building had a restaurant where the 30 city councilors were given a free meal every day by the government. But above all there was talk, and discussion and speeches. And out of this idler's paradise came the first and freshest school of philosophy the world has ever known. In the Agora, Solon posted his laws which earned the perpetuation of his name in our word "solon" for lawmaker. Here Demosthenes delivered the famous orations against Philip of Macedonia and gave us the word "philippic." There Socrates stood stock still for 12 hours or more, oblivious to the curious throng while he thought out a new principle of philosophy. There also was the headquarters of the Stoics from whom we have the word "stoic."

It was through the Agora that the sharp-tongued cynic, Diogenes, wandered with a lantern, fruitlessly searching for an honest man.

Living—and Living

Talking and reading are among the most human of occupations, in which a large part of our lives is spent. Their rate measures the length of life more correctly than any calendar, for if one man thinks and acts twice as rapidly as another, he lives twice as long in the same number of years.—Dr. McKee Castelli.

Artist's Genius Broad

Sir Joshua Reynolds, the painter, was very widely known for his child portraits, which he did exquisitely, but the wide range of his art was first noticed when, after having produced his conception of Dante's tragedy, he also exhibited "The Strawberry Girl," one of his prize works. He is generally estimated to have had a rare understanding of children but his picture of Dante's tragedy shown alongside it gave proof of his great genius.

Shoe Superstitions

If a woman mother has the misfortune to lose the heel of her shoe she believes that one of her children will die before the end of the year. In Spain old shoes are looked upon as muskets, and a pair is always kept in the house for luck. In Belgium the person who puts on the left shoe first is held to be lucky in love.

Brains of Men and Women

The brain of man is usually heavier than that of woman, although at birth and at the age of fourteen the female brain is heavier. The average weight of the adult male's brain is about 45 ounces and of the female about 43½ ounces. Weight of brains, however, has no direct relationship with intelligence.

Frequently Happens

Speaking of John, the trouble with a sentence, is that the "a" is apt to jump out of place and get in front of the "n."

DATES, BEDOUINS AND SHEIKS

Recent dispatches from Cairo credit A. M. Hassanein Bey, former first secretary of the Egyptian Legation at Washington, with modernizing the courses and equipment of the Azhar University, Oxford of Moslem learning.

Beside his educational and diplomatic work Hassanein Bey won distinction as an explorer by crossing the hitherto untraversed Libyan Desert. What a sheik really is, and a rurient communal date market are described in parts of a communication to the National Geographic Society concerning his 2200 mile journey which follow:

My first objective from Sallum was Siwa, where I arrived after a nine days' trek. This is one of the oldest cases of the Libyan Desert, and the most prosperous because of its date trees and its numerous springs. Its geographical position has made it a center for Bedouins trading between Egypt and the interior of Cyrenaica.

Curious Communal Custom

The chief occupation of the inhabitants is the cultivation of dates.
Olive trees are also grown and olive oil extracted.
The dates of Siwa are famous all over the world. A visit to the date market reveals a curious communistic custom that prevails here. Everybody, rich and poor, brings all his dates, good and bad, and puts them in heaps, and no one dares touch one date from another man's heap. On the other hand, they allow any stranger or any poor man to come in and eat as much as he likes from the best quality, provided he does not take any away with him. Therefore, nobody starves at Siwa.

Some of the women are unusually comely. They dress in very loose garments and adorn themselves with necklaces of silver bangles. Photographs of some of these Siwa girls suggest that they follow the most modern form of culture, but the hair is not bobbed although it has the same effect. It is plaited when the child is young, and the braiding continues as the hair grows. The locks are oiled from time to time, but are never unplaited or combed out.

Sheik-In Arabic

After leaving Siwa I put aside my khaki clothes and assumed desert garments, traveling as a Bedouin sheik. I find that in America sheik means something very terrible and fascinating; but 90 per cent of the sheiks in the desert are as little likely to run away with a beautiful woman as the same per cent of the sedate bankers of America! The word
"sheik" in Arabic means "an old man," and it has come in time to mean the oldest man of the tribe—that is, its chief, or the head of the religion, or the head of a caravan.

Two days' journey from Jakhub, on the way to Jalo, we came across a petrified forest. The big bits of petrified trees are still used as landmarks on the way, set up according to an age-old practice of the desert.

It is customary when a caravan finds small pieces of stone lying about along the route to heap them up, to show that some one has passed. Of course, tracks in the sand are obliterated by the wind. It is a wonderful sight sometimes, when one has been trekking for five or six days without seeing any sign of the hand of man, to come across a pile of two or three stones on the ground. It straightway encourages one. The body of a camel or even the skeleton of an unfortunate traveler, though an awful

Horses and Autos

A statistician attempts to prove with figures that horses cause more accidents. We are not so sure. But we do know the old horse and buggy still have one argument in their favor.
When a young man is talking to his sweetheart riding in an automobile he can't wrap the reins around the whip socket and devote all his attention to her.—Chapman's Weekly.

Pass Famed in History

Khyber pass is the principal northern passage from India into Afghanistan. It is ten miles west of Peshawar, extending about thirty-three miles towards Jellalabad, lying between lofty cliffs varying from 600 to 1,000 feet in height. It was forced by British troops led by Colonel Wade on July 20, 1839, and again in 1842 by Gen.
Sir George Pollock.

Birds Travel Far

Though many birds from North America commonly go to the northern part of South America, an official of the Smithsonian Institution explains that only relatively few species pass below the equator so far south as Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina and Chile. However, these include some of our best-known birds. One who did not know their habits would hardly believe them capable of flying such enormous distances twice a year.

continent they are simply clanged, so that the notes of the bells are not ar-order from the highest to the lowest note.

WINCHESTER'S FOURTH QUIET

More golf, including mixed four-somes on the cards at the Country Club after luncheon but the customary regattas at the Winchester and Medford Clubs on Mystic Lakes were not held as members of both organizations were competing at the Charles River Carnival and the water sports on the Mystic in connection with Medford's big celebration.

The Fire Department swung into action during the afternoon making runs in response to still alarms for grass and brush fires on Chisholm road and Palmer street. A single call came in during the evening at 9:30 for burning grass on Lincoln street, the result of over indulgence in fireworks.

Promptly at 7:30 in the evening Stiles' band gave its second concert at Manchester field. Both its afternoon and evening programs were well rounded and much enjoyed, considerable favorable comment being heard about the absence of the usual long waits between numbers and the divergence of the selections played.

With the coming of dusk the display of fireworks were set off, and while the program was neither particularly long nor especially varied every one seemed satisfied. This year's display differed from those of preceding years in that the set pieces were almost wholly eliminated in favor of the pyrotechnical variety which was easily discernible to every one who attended the show. Some of the rockets last Monday evening were especially fine, and the finale all any one could wish for. The surprise depicting the "Star Spangled Banner" was set off at the opening of the display instead of last as heretofore.

The crowd at the field and on the Parkway was large but probably no more so than in past years. It was orderly and huddled to every one's satisfaction by the police detail in charge of Sgt. Rogers. Included in his detail were officers Daniel Kelley, Hogan, Macksey, Harrold, and Mark Kelly with Sgt. Cassidy with officers Furell, Regan, Donaghy, and Shea handling the traffic in the square. The motorists on the Parkway at the bandstand were taken care of by a squad of Metropolitan officers in charge of Sgt. Earle S. Chabney.

Only one minor accident was reported by the police during the evening of machines after the fireworks. This occurred when the car driven by Claude H. Perkins of 17 Canal street slightly bumped a machine proceeding him in the line of traffic going through the center.

With the exception of the fatal automobile accident which occurred early in the afternoon on Cambridge street near the Winchester Country Club and which resulted in the death of John Vincent DeVoe of 107 Millet street, Dorchester there was nothing to dampen the ardor of those who elected to spend the fourth in Winchester.

The program of the day's events was in charge of the Board of Selectmen, but the actual running of the events was left to a sub-committee composed of Selectmen Walter H. Dutton and William P. Callahan.

Following are the afternoon and evening programs played by Stiles' Band:

WINCHESTER BOYS PLAYED AT WOBURN

Six Winchester boys were members of "Mack's" All-Star baseball team which played a similar club sponsored by "Johnny" Dolan of Woburn on Liberty Park Monday morning for the benefit of St. Charles' Field Day. A big crowd, including many local fans, viewed the contest which was won by Woburn, 12 to 9. "Lefty" Hatch and Frank Melly were the battery for "Mack's" outfit and the infield had "Jimmy" Fitzgerald at 1st, "Spike" O'Donnell on 2nd and "Johnny" Dolan, shortstop, with J. Duran at the Midgets at 3rd. The outfield had "Nip" Chamberland in left with Costello in center and T. Duran, also of the Woburn Midgets, in right. Both teams got 15 hits, but the heavy hitters were Fitzgerald and O'Donnell of the locals. The former got two singles, a triple and a homer while the latter collected a single and two homers, all garnered off the pitching of "Onie" Carroll, ex-Woburn high ace. It seems that Hatch, in working the holiday morning, took rather more than a slight chance. The high school captain-elect pitched a 15-inning game on Saturday in which he fanned 24 batters. He certainly was flirting with a lame wing when he elected to go to the hill again with only a day's rest.

"New" Bridge Is Old

The Pont Neuf, or New Bridge, over the Seine, near the Louvre in Paris, is really the oldest bridge of the French capital. It was built by Henry IV about the beginning of the seventeenth century.

New Mother-in-Law Lock

A lock of recent invention records the name of anyone who opens the door, together with the date and time at which it was opened.

GOLF LAST SATURDAY AND HOLIDAY

The perfect weather prevailing during the past week-end and over the holiday attracted many golfers to the Winchester Country Club where attractive programs had been arranged. Saturday's play was an 18-hole medal handicap tournament in which H. G. Day turned in the best net with a card of 82-66, three strokes under the net of H. W. Stratton whose card was 86-69. W. A. Jackson had the best gross with a 77.

The scores:
H. G. Day ..... 92 66
H. W. Stratton ..... 86 69
D. F. Whitney ..... 88 70
T. J. Freeman ..... 88 70
T. L. Hale ..... 82 71
P. B. Ekins ..... 82 71
P. B. Ekins ..... 82 71
E. T. Barton ..... 82 71
W. A. Jackson ..... 81 74
J. L. S. Barton ..... 81 74
J. A. Dolben ..... 81 74
M. F. Brown ..... 81 74

The 18-hole medal play run off on the morning of the holiday resulted in a win for J. L. S. Barton whose card of 80-69 was a couple of strokes under the net. His card, 80-69, was one stroke better than the net 141 turned in by F. L. Hale. W. A. Jackson's 157 was best gross.

The scores:
H. W. Stratton ..... 171 140
J. L. S. Barton ..... 164 142
J. A. Dolben ..... 160 141
S. T. Beck ..... 158 140
W. A. Jackson ..... 157 141
M. F. Brown ..... 156 140
T. J. Freeman ..... 151 149
G. T. Barton ..... 151 149
R. W. Wilson ..... 148 142
P. B. Ekins ..... 148 142
E. T. Barton ..... 141 153

Mixed foursomes, one-half combined handicap, selected drive was the golf at the club in the afternoon of the holiday with Mrs. G. Neiley and R. B. Neiley showing the way with 82-76. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jackson and Mrs. D. M. Belcher and A. P. Chase tied for best gross with 81s.

THE CHESAPEAKE BAY REGION, A MAGNIFIED VENUE

Agitation to save Fort Hunt and Fort Washington as historic sites, and also the recent trip of President Coolidge to Williamsburg, Va., in the Mayflower, turned attention to the lower Potomac, an historic region which seldom makes any considerable ripple in the world's news, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

School histories tell how tobacco planters of colonial Virginia depended on rivers for transportation; and, in 1926, the lower Potomac and Chesapeake Bay country still is in the river transportation stage.

Representative of the numerous little steamers that carry both passengers and freight in this region is one line which plies from Washington to Baltimore. It makes a trip 360 miles by water in 63 hours, which can be covered in 45 minutes on a railroad train.

Salute to Mt. Vernon
The standard Bay steamer is a screw propelled boat 100 to 150 feet long. It carries one or two decks of cabins and draws from 8 to 12 feet of water.

On its leisurely way down the Potomac on the way to Baltimore, the steamer touches history nearly every time it puts in at a landing in Maryland or Virginia. Soon after leaving Alexandria where General Braddock landed on his way to meet the French and defeat near Pittsburgh, the steamer passes under the guns of Fort Hunt and Fort Washington. Then the passengers hear the whistle blast the traditional salute to stately Mount Vernon. Across the river is Marshall Hall and in Gunston Cove, is brown brick Gunston Hall, manor of Washington's close friend, George Mason. Port Tobacco cannot be reached. Its creek is silted up. But Colonial Beach, once the private landing of "Light Horse Harry" Lee, awaits the steamer. Colonial Beach is now a summer resort for Capital residents. Wakefield, birthplace of George Washington, is within sight from the steamer lane. This site and monument will soon receive more attention from Americans for the Government has recently authorized the building of a good road to the main pike.

Visits Made in Motor Boats
The dependence of this historic Virginia shore on water transport is typical of the whole Chesapeake Bay country. Northern Neck is the birthplace of presidents and statesmen. From Northern Neck came George Washington, James Munroe, Robert E. Lee, Thomas Lightfoot Lee, and Richard Henry Lee, and the father of John Marshall. Near the edge of it was born James Madison. Northern Neck today is much the same American kenneled, each in his day. The railroad whistle has never blasted the peaceful quiet of the countryside. Before invading its highways motorists inquire closely into the weather predictions. Its contact with the outside world is almost entirely by the little river freight and passenger boats.

Northern Neck is the northern strip of a great rectangular block of land between the parallel lines of the Potomac and James rivers. If you search the map closely you will see that this block is sliced into three major sections by tidal rivers. On the Bay side there are five wide river mouths on a 70-mile front separating and isolating broad headlands almost as effectively as would mountain ranges. On the opposite Maryland shore there are five headlands in 60 miles. In the Chesapeake one goes visiting in a motor boat. Light signals are more applicable than the telephone.

There are numerous villages in tide-water Virginia that are three and four times farther from a railroad than any town in Illinois, Iowa or Ohio. Even modern autotruck service cannot help them much, because a trucker would have to spend much of his time in this large scale, rural Venice, ferrying rivers too wide to bridge economically.

One of the most historic of the Potomac landings is St. Mary's. The steamer winds up between the narrowing banks of the St. Ingoes Creek, a sunken creek mouth like all the Chesapeake Bay rivers. Then as the boat makes the final turn among the crescent beaches, green fields and bluettes of dark pine, a pier comes in view at the foot of a high green bank. Among the trees is the white shaft of a monument to Leonard Calvert, who founded the Palatinate of Maryland on this site in 1634. For many years St. Mary's was the capital of Maryland and the bricks on the old State House are now incorporated in the vine-covered Episcopal Church set in the ancient graveyard.

25 Miles By Road—200 Feet By Water
The charge that America is rushed by the speed of modern life cannot be made to include the Chesapeake Bay country. Life there takes its pace from the soft, sunny climate and the inhabitants at each landing watch the arrival and departure of their Argosy to the Outside World with immense calmness of spirit. Since there are no hills, the tree-plotted headlands and islands and jutting piers seem to be some peaceful and pastoral design embossed upon a limitless blue sheet of water.

A Chesapeake Bay voyager soon realizes that fine seamanship is not confined to the high seas. Taking a river steamer up the turns and twists between narrow banks and turning the 100-foot boat around in a space which appears to be 101 feet, calls for careful navigation.

The visitor's growing conception of river traffic's importance to this region is enforced at places like Com's Landing which is about 200 feet from the next stop, Bundick's Wharf. Yet to go by road from Com to Bundick's is a 25-mile journey.

LUCERNE: CRADLE OF SWISS FREEDOM

Lucerne, the Swiss city chosen for the conference on the Rhineland pact, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

As the chief tourist center in Switzerland, international in atmosphere, Lucerne makes an ideal conference city, the bulletin states. In addition Lucerne's historical background has been significant, for it was on the shore of the lake it commands that the Four Forest Cantons conceived the idea of the Perpetual League, the famous instrument that was not only the antecedent of the Swiss Confederation, but which marks a mile-post in humanity's political freedom as well.

Founded by Benedictines, the world at large, through its tourist delegates, knows Lucerne as one of the most attractive of the many attractive cities in the mountain republic. Set in the midst of a charming combination of lake and mountain scenery Lucerne has the added attraction of venerableness. Benedictine monks, in the eighth century, founded the convent around which the city eventually grew. The opening of the Saint Gotthard pass, especially the completion of the great railroad tunnel, enhanced its importance and prosperity until today it is a pleasure resort of international renown.

Old watchtowers, an ancient city wall which the city has long since outgrown, the cathedral with its slender twin spires, and two covered wooden bridges remain of the medieval city. They stand out rather conspicuously, for modern Lucerne is a busy, up-to-date place, with more than three score tourist hotels, fine arched bridges, handsome Cantonal offices and villas, and wide tree-lined promenades along the lake front.

The mountain views from these promenades or quays are thought by many travelers to be unsurpassed in any Swiss resort. Cut in half by the Reuss river, just as Geneva is parted by the Rhone, the city lies in a kind of amphitheater overlooking the blue expanse of the lake, from which the snow-capped mountains climb to the sky.

Lucerne's Weather Vane Dominating the city in the southwest is the towering bulk of Mount Pilatus, the weather vane of Lucerne. If Pilatus is crowned in the morning with a rounded cloud, known as the "cap of Pilatus," this is believed to be a sign of fair weather. If the clouds are long and drawn out the natives prepare for a blow. Legend places on Mt. Pilatus the final resting place of the procurator of Judea, hence its name, but others say the designation is a corruption of Pilatus, which means "capped with clouds."

Nature's handiwork is surely if not quite matched by that of man in the most famed art object of the city, the Lion of Lucerne, considered by one of the most appropriate and touching monuments in existence. Carved in living rock on a cliff face, and overshadowed by huge trees, is the figure of a dying lion, pierced by a lance, with his paw protecting the fleur-de-lis of the Bourbons. Thorwaldsen, Danish sculptor, designed this tribute to the Swiss guards who died in seeking to protect Louis XVI against the mob of Paris revolutionists that stormed the Tuileries in 1792.

The wooden bridges spanning the Reuss also serve as art galleries. The oldest of these, the Kapellbrücke, extends diagonally across the river near the mouth of the lake. Its ceiling is covered with ancient historical paintings, but the chief delight of tourists are the wild ducks that struggle in the swift current below, waiting for the bread crumbs and other bits of food tossed them by passersby. The Sperrbrücke, a little farther down stream, is decorated with the celebrated 16th century paintings of the Dance of Death, by Casper Meidinger.

Land of William Tell Lucerne is the starting point for the many scenic and historical excursions in the vicinity. Along its quays are many of the swift lake steamers that make up the growing Swiss merchant marine. A short voyage on one of these boats brings you to the place where William Tell is reputed to have exhibited his marksmanship to the discomfiture of Gessler, and to the place where tradition holds he won his revenge by seizing the rudder of the vessel on which that tyrant held him prisoner and guiding it to the rock where he aimed, not at an apple, but at the oppressor's heart.

The mountains here drop almost sheer into the lake, while far above, like moss on a steep roof, are the little patchwork fields of the hardy Swiss mountaineers. Not far from Lucerne is a bold bit of highway construction, the Axenstrasse, which is cut from the solid rock of the mountainside, with many tunnels and picturesque gorges opening on the lake.

Easily reached by boat and cog railway from Lucerne is Rigi-Kulm, which rises in the midst of the lakes of the region and commands the most celebrated view in Switzerland. At sunrise it offers a magnificent panorama of snow-capped mountains (when the weather is clear—which is seldom) a spectacle which has been treated at length by Mark Twain and other writers who have visited the peak.

German is the principal language spoken in the district but most of the natives, even the servants, speak French equally well. Since English has been introduced in the public schools the visitor must not be surprised to have his questions in broken French or German answered in faultless English by the chubby-faced youngsters of the city. Due to the proximity of the Italian border a number of the residents, particularly the shopkeepers, speak Italian in addition to German, French and English.

Christmas Boar's Head

The boar's head as a Christmas dish is believed to have originated in Scandinavia. In some parts of which the custom is still kept up. Legend has it that Freya, the Scandinavian god of peace and plenty, used to ride on the boar Gullinbursti. His festival was held at Yule (winter solstice), when a boar was sacrificed in his honor. Later the custom was modified in the extent of "bringing in the head."

Posthumous Fame

The fame of Heinrich Kleist sprang up after his untimely death at the age of thirty-four years. His work won meager recognition during his life, and he was in actual want when he killed himself in 1811.

BERMUDA SUCCEMS TO RAPID TRANSIT

Permission has been granted for the construction of a tramcar line in peaceful Bermuda and, according to recent dispatches, work on it is to be started in the next few months. The ban has not yet been lifted on automobiles and motorcycles, so the single motor truck to carry freight remains the only representative of the automotive family.

Antiquity, even in transportation facilities, is part of the stock in trade of Bermuda, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. To the visitor this is one of the chief sources of its charm. There are no industries other than agriculture and catering to the tourist trade. The steamboat whistle and the clatter of horses' hoofs on the smooth hard roads are the only foreign noises that disturb the Sabbath-like quiet of the island.

Played a Part in Revolution Politically Bermuda is one of the oldest colonies of the British Empire, antedating Plymouth by 11 years. Geologically it has been traced by some authorities to the same great eruption along the Atlantic seaboard that gave birth to the Palisades, Mt. Holyoke and the Mohican Hills.

The islands were discovered by a Spaniard, Juan de Bermudez, in 1533, but it was the shipwreck of an Englishman in 1609 that led to the British claim and their colonization. During the Revolution, although sympathetic with the American colonies, Bermuda remained loyal to the Mother country. A shortage of food led to an exchange of large stores of powder seized in the dead of night from the garrison by citizens, for several shiploads of food supplies from the American Colonies. It was this powder, received at an hour of great need, that the Continental army employed to compel the British to evacuate Boston.

Not only powder, but salt and other necessities were sent to America by Bermudians during the Revolution, despite the embargo placed on American ports by the King. These acts so incensed the Governor of the islands that he publicly upbraided many citizens for treason. Feelings ran high for a time, the Governor was removed, but in the end the islands retained their allegiance to England.

During the Civil War Bermuda enjoyed a brief era of unparalleled prosperity. As one of the chief goals of the Confederate blockade runners its main ports, Hamilton and St. George, seethed with continuous excitement and activity. Cotton was worth two shillings a pound at the time and great risks were taken to obtain it. It is said that ship captains received as high as $5000 for a single successful trip, while others were paid proportionately. Everyone was rich and sympathetic for the southern cause was more or less openly expressed.

Tourists, Principal Industry

Today Bermuda often has nearly as many Americans within its shores as natives. Less than 700 miles from New York and connected with America's principal port by frequent and speedy steamers, the American tourist has lately supplanted the production of onions, potatoes, and lily bulbs as the principal industry. The islands, of which there are said to be 365 in the group (one for every day in the year), provide delightful playgrounds dotted with green cedar trees, and with charming combinations of water and shore.

In many respects Bermuda is an England in miniature. The names of many of the shires and towns are lifted bodily from those of the Mother country, without even so much as a "New" in extension. Warwick, Southampton, Devonshire, Watford, Ireland and Somerset are examples. Surface irregularities and hundreds of ways and promontories, with picturesque English houses and little stone churches, help to complete the analogy.

The resemblance is not quite complete, however. There are no lakes, nor streams, nor natural springs. The few ponds are mostly brackish and derive their water indirectly from the sea. Every home has its own water supply tank on the roof, and fortunately rainfall is frequent and abundant. In fact the islands have a reputation as a storm center, many claiming that Shakespeare laid the setting for "The Tempest" in Bermuda, because of reports, brought back by sailors, of its sudden and violent hurricanes.

Beaches of Red Sand

Although no farther south than Charleston, S. C., the Gulf Stream gives Bermuda a tropical climate which is modified by the prevailing trade winds. Nearly 300 different kinds of birds have been identified in the vicinity, while the marine life is of extraordinary variety and beauty.

Particularly interesting is the plant life, with 61 species that can be found native nowhere else in the world. Coffee, tea and tobacco are of spontaneous growth, while the food, which was introduced since the discovery of the islands, attains proportions that startle the uninitiated. Red coral sand beaches, limestone caves of marvelous beauty, sandstone for houses (cut with saws from the backyard), and unsettled theories concerning the volcanic origin of the islands are among the many things that keep geologists entertained.

The fight to maintain the time-honored seclusion and repose of the islands has been long and stormy. It has involved many of Bermuda's illustrious visitors. On one of the petitions for abolition of the motor car are the names of Mark Twain and Woodrow Wilson. The late President Wilson wrote the preamble to a list of names that is credited with being partly responsible for the Motor Act of 1908. In this preamble he stated that Bermuda was one of the last refuges from the automobile and from the extravagant and sporting set it attracted. That sentiment has been gradually changing, however, is indicated by the recent failure of a motion to bring the motor car back by the narrow margin of one vote.

Labor and Enjoy Life

Labor is a good cure for melancholy. We seldom hear of a laborer travelling the whole route.

Odd Beauty Recipe

A drop of her blood beneath a rose bush was formerly supposed to bring a girl beauty.

CAMBRIDGE E. B. C. TOMORROW

Local baseball fans will have an opportunity of looking over one of the best nines in the independent ranks tomorrow afternoon when the strong Cambridge E. B. C. will visit Manchester Field for an engagement with the fast stepping St. Mary's C. C. team.

The visitors are assuredly no set-up. Rather they will constitute the stiffest test which the locals have run up against this season. The Cambridge club is one of long standing and an outfit which year in and year out is able to make things decidedly interesting for any and all opponents in its class. The team keeps the same lineup as far as possible from year to year and is an attraction which any manager is glad to look.

The caliber of its playing is best shown by the fact that last year the Cambridge nine won 22 straight games and thus far this season has been going along very smoothly.

Its lineup is naturally strong with such stars as Adelm Elcewitz, all-star pitcher, and Edmond McCarthy, Tech. Dist. late of Chelsea Mill-streams at short and McCarthy, the former South Boston Two star, at the hot corner. The veteran Rancovsky is holding down the initial sack and the outfield includes Muncy in left, Halisy in center and Dillworth, last season's all-star, in right. Either White, Sullivan or Sully will be on the pitching rubber with the old reliable Fahey on the receiving end. From all indications the locals will have to hustle to win. Any such half-hearted playing as the boys showed against Lexington last Saturday will result in a bad beating and Captain Mully promises that the locals will be on their toes from the start. Game starts at 3.15. Tags as usual.

TRIBUTE TO DR. SIMON

The Winchester Visiting Nurse Association desires to record its sense of profound loss in the death of Dr. Harold Francis Simon.

His loyalty to the Association, and devotion to the hospital, from its earliest beginnings, have been unflinching, and his generous service and abiding interest in the clinics and public health work have been the greatest support and inspiration to all who have been associated with him.

As a member of the Doctors' Advisory Committee he gave most valuable assistance, for his suggestions were always constructive, and his counsel wise. It was his vision of future possibilities, and the out-look toward higher and better standards, together with a sense of humor which has brought light to the solution of many difficult problems.

His place in the Association, and in the hearts of the people cannot easily be filled, and his memory will be treasured by members of the Board of Directors for many years to come.

TUTEIN-TOWNSEND

(Special to The Winchester Star)
Winchester society was surprised Tuesday morning on reading dispatches from New York to the Boston papers announcing the marriage of Miss Rhodia Mary Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Richards Townsend of Everett avenue, to Mr. Richard Allen Tutein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tutein of Wildwood street. None the less astonished were the parents of the young couple who had long known that the event would eventually take place, though it was naturally expected it would be in a more conventional manner.

Mr. Tutein and Miss Townsend left Winchester early Monday morning, reaching New York City Hall just in time to secure necessary marriage licenses and have a civil ceremony performed. A few minutes after the ceremony telegrams reached the homes of the respective parents advising them of what had taken place.

The nuptials were solemnized in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, New York, the Rev. Clifford Macdon officiating in the presence of the parents and near relatives, bringing a happy ending to the affair and to the entire satisfaction of all parties concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allen Tutein are now on an extended honeymoon through the Canadian maritime provinces. On their return they will make their home in Winchester.

CHARLOTTE LUCENIA DAVIS

Miss Charlotte Lucenia Davis was born in Troy, Vt., Sept. 3, 1855.

Is her earlier life her artistic ability led her, as a designer of costumes, to conduct a business in New York city; but her health having begun to fail, she sought a less strenuous life and later, sewed in private families.

She had spent the last 17 years of her life in Winchester and for five years was a resident at the Rome for the Aged, where she had been more or less of an invalid.

About two weeks ago, as a result of a fall, she was taken to the hospital where she passed away on Tuesday, July 13.

Her grateful appreciation of the Rome and its caretakers often found expression on her lips—particularly as she grew increasingly helpless, and she was always quite content with her quiet room; although no members of the family, more than she, ever anticipated and enjoyed the attention of the outside community.

Her strong will power and optimistic spirit kept up her struggle to do, and be, as active as possible, while many another would have succumbed; and the same courageous spirit continued to the end.

She was a member of St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Lowell.

The funeral was held from the home, Friday at 2 o'clock and conducted by Rev. John H. Whitley, and burial took place in the family lot at the Edson Cemetery, Lowell.

WOBURN FACES $110,000 DEFICIT

Woburn faces a deficit of $110,000 in the revenue of the city, including unpaid bills, overdrawn loan accounts and water revenue, according to the report filed Wednesday by Theodore N. Waddell, State director of accounts, whose department has been conducting an investigation of the city's finances.

The deficit will mean not only an addition to this year's tax rate of $5.50, but Chief Examiner Edward H. Fenton states that "drastic action must be taken if the credit of the city is to be maintained and business carried on in a legal manner."

In the examination of the funds handled by various departments it was found that the accounts of Thomas W. Salmon, ex-city treasurer, showed a surplus of $20.79, which was credited as "unidentified receipts." In the accounts of James A. McLaughlin, ex-city clerk, the report says that McLaughlin overpaid the city $10 and this will be returned to him.

The report says that after balancing the books of the ex-tax collector, Richard G. McEachern, it was found that $317.80 was due from him, which he has paid to the city treasurer.

According to the figures submitted by Mr. Fenton, there is a general revenue deficit of $25,057.18; a water revenue deficit of $56,960.65; overdrawn loan accounts of $7350.70, and unpaid bills of $14,000.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB NOTES

There is to be a regular club dance for members and their guests Friday evening, July 16. This dance is one of a series arranged by the entertainment committee.

The summer vacation season now seems to be at its peak, and because of this the club's activities are not quite as great as they will be later on. In spite of this, the tennis court is kept pretty much in use, and every evening, the "stay at home" members avail themselves of the pleasures Mystic Lake offers them. Some enjoy swimming while still others take a paddling cruise, choosing this pastime in the place of motoring on congested roads. People are beginning to appreciate the calm and quiet of Mystic, more and more. There can be no pleasant way of spending a summer evening than to take a canoe excursion on our own lake. Steward Charles K. Rogers puts up attractive picnic lunches for members wishing to go canoe picnicking.

The Medford Boat Club regatta, scheduled to take place last Saturday afternoon, was postponed. It will be run on a later date. Notice will be given as soon as a definite date is chosen.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Murphy of 7 Yale street, Winchester announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Agnes, to Mr. Francis Joseph O'Donnell of Medway, at a bridge and tea given on Thursday, July 15, at the New Ocean House, Swampscott.

Miss Murphy is a graduate of Fenway Academy of the class of 1919, following which she studied art for four years. She has been active in Fenway Alumni and Cecilia Guild circles.

Mr. O'Donnell was graduated from Holy Cross College in the class of 1919. He is a member of the Catholic Union and Holy Cross Club of Boston, and is associated with the Joseph M. Herman Shoe Company.

Among those present at the bridge and tea were Mesdames Daniel Murphy, Thomas E. O'Donnell, John P. O'Leary, Richard R. Goodrich, Edward Morrissey, George Murphy, Patrick McDonald, Henry C. Coffey, Charlotte White and the Misses Kathleen, Mildred and Grace O'Donnell; Marion Lyons, Alice Brine, Catherine O'Leary, Mary Quinn, Christine O'Connor, Marguerite and Frances Loherty, Edna Maloney, Lillian McCarthy, Mary Feeney and Mary Fitzgerald.

Identification of the girl's body, found dismembered and packed in two cardboard boxes and a kurlap bag near the wall of new Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan, Tuesday morning, as that of Edith Louise Green, a State ward, discloses the fact that the victim of the brutal crime was a former Winchester girl, known to many of the town's people.

According to the birth records at the Town Hall Edith Louise Green was born in Winchester, Oct. 21, 1907, at 607 Main street in what was then the old "Cannonball" Hotel. Her parents were John and Catherine (Donahue) Green, her father being employed as a farmer. Both parents were natives of Ireland, and according to unofficial information died when Miss Green was very young. She became a State ward and is said to have been employed in the home of a family on Cambridge street. She is known to have been employed in Winchester as a domestic during the winter of 1925.

In a statement given out Wednesday evening Medical Examiner Leary, who was accompanied at the time by District Attorney O'Brien, said that he was satisfied that the girl had died as the result of an illegal operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Smith Successful Candidates for Ordination at Service Held at New Hope Baptist Church

An event unique in the annals of this town took place at the New Hope Baptist Church Thursday, July 8, when Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Smith, the son and daughter-in-law respectively of Rev. William H. Smith, were ordained into the Christian Ministry by a council composed of representatives of churches in the Boston East Association, an auxiliary body of the Massachusetts Baptist Convention.

The evening service was most impressive. The ordination sermon was preached by the Rev. William H. Smith. Dr. Edwin B. Dolan, Field Secretary of the Mass. Baptist Convention, delivered the charge to the candidates and the Rev. E. E. Thompson of Cambridge welcomed them into the ministry. The ordination prayer was made by the Rev. H. H. Jones of Woburn. There was also appropriate music for the occasion.

Mr. Smith was born in Woburn, but has been a native of this town since his early boyhood. He is a graduate of the Bangor Theological Seminary, Bangor, Me., and holds an A. B. degree from Bates College, having graduated with honors in Philosophy on June 21.

Mrs. Smith also is a graduate of the Bangor Theological Seminary, and during the past year was a special student at Boston University where she took courses in Economics and Sociology.

They will take up their work in the South this Fall where Mr. Smith has accepted a college chaplaincy.

Prepare Now for Coming Home

GETTING home is one of the greatest pleasures of any trip for most of us. Whether we have been journeying far or spending a summer in one place, the dear, familiar things of home have their own particular appeal.

A house that hasn't been lived in for months even can be quite cheerful and homelike within a few moments of re-opening it, if everything was left in perfect condition when it was closed.

We can help you achieve this happy result by having delivered to you when you return home—freshly-laundered, too—all the last-minute things that are ready to be laundered as you leave.

All you have to do is to let us know that you want this type of laundry service. Our salesman will call for your package just before you close your house, and will deliver it when you notify us that you will be at home again.

WINCHESTER MAN FIGURED IN ACCIDENT ON WAY TO DEVENS

Warren F. Saunders of Cross street, a Sergeant in the 102nd Motor Transport Company of Woburn, was the driver of one of the army trucks which collided while en-route to Camp Devens last Friday night at the foot of the hill at Lake Nagog just above Concord, resulting in what were at first thought to be possible fatal injuries to two militia men, passengers in Saunders' machine.

According to one report of the affair the latter was operating a small Dodge repair truck and had with him Cook Minard Styles and Mechanic Joseph Dion, both of Woburn. Styles was riding in the seat of the machine with Saunders while Dion was seated upon a box in the step.

The smaller truck had fallen somewhat behind the others of the convoy and Sgt. Saunders sped up at Concord to overtake them. Coming down the long hill to Lake Nagog a small touring car was directly in front of the Dodge, and as Saunders approached it, its driver suddenly swung into the middle of the roadway. As the small vehicle swung out of line Saunders found himself right in the path of the big Liberty trucks of the motor convoy. He swerved his own machine sharply to clear it but failed to do so, subsiding the big car in passing. Dion was thrown to the roadway as the Dodge swung out while Styles was pinned between the two machines, having his right arm badly crushed.

Both men were taken to the Emerson Hospital at Concord where it was at first thought that Styles would lose his arm. He undoubtedly owed his life to the tourniquet which was applied at the scene of the accident by Sgt. Charles Blanchard who was riding in one of the forward trucks of the company and who found Styles lying in the road where he had fallen after the collision. Dion was rendered unconscious and suffered a jagged gash on the head. The first bulletin issued from the hospital reported both men in serious condition, and a deep gloom settled over the Woburn barracks at camp. Later reports, however, were more reassuring and on Saturday afternoon Captain Lewis S. McQuate, Medical Officer of the 26th Divisional Train and a surgeon with considerable over-seas experience, performed a delicate operation with the assistance of Dr. E. A. Maxwell of Acton which physicians announce will not only save Styles' arm but will restore it to about 80 per cent normal efficiency. Dion was able to leave the hospital after a few days. Sgt. Saunders sustained a black eye and a slight abrasion on the cheek, but was otherwise uninjured.

Hydrogen and Oxygen

Hydrogen, from the Greek word "hydro," water, was known to exist as early as the beginning of the sixteenth century. In 1766 the English chemist, Cavendish, proved it to be an elementary body. It was at first called "inflammable air. One volume of hydrogen combined with two of oxygen form water.

ST. MARY'S HALVED TWIN BILL

St. Mary's C. C. baseball team divided a double header last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, defeating the strong Melrose Knights of Columbus nine, 1-0, and losing to the Lexington Town Team, 4-2.

The locals had no intention of playing two teams last Saturday and had billed the Melrose outfit to appear as the afternoon's attraction. Lexington had been booked for a later appearance at Manchester Field but in some way got their dates mixed and arrived in Winchester much upset at finding no club expecting to take them on.

The Minutemen were naturally disappointed, having been similarly unfortunate in the matter of a couple previous games. While it was in no way St. Mary's fault the square-shooting Frank Melly quickly decided to play two 7 inning engagements rather than have the Lexington boys leave town with a shabby idea of Winchester's hospitality.

Promptly at 3:15 the first game with Melrose got under way. This proved a parking attraction and the fans would have welcomed the chance to have seen it go the regulation 9 frames. St. Mary's was hardly at its best last Saturday, being without the services of "Jimmy" Fitzgerald and "Spike" O'Donnell. In their absence Francis Tansey went to the initial sack and "Roy" McGrath was pressed into service in right field. "Jonnie" Dolan was at short-stop. The result was a team considerably weakened both in the field and at the bat and it was largely through the masterful hitting of the veteran Mark Kelley that the locals were able to pull through against the war-while outfit which Melrose brought to town. Big "Mex" allowed the visitors only 3 hits in the 7 frames while fanning four. He was needed near support by his mates, the only misuses behind him being McGrath's error on "Jim" Murphy's drive in the opening frame and a miff of a thrown ball at first by Francis Tansey. The McGrath hobble allowed the runner to reach second and with one away things looked promising for the invaders. Old man Chessioning, player of long standing and much experience was at the plate and "Mex" bored down sharply. "Bunk" rapped to Dolan at short and the latter's peg to Ambrose got Murphy at 3rd. Chessioning idled striding, Melly to Flaherty.

After this Melrose got only three men as far as second base and only two balls out of the infield which shows better than words can tell how well Officer Kelley was going out there. O'Leary, who worked for Melrose, also pitched effective ball, being especially good in the 6th when the locals had the sacks jammed with but one out. McGrath got a life on Dwyer's bad peg and went to second on "Tom" Dolan's single to left. Flaherty heat out a hit to third filling the bases and with "Mex" Kelley up it looked like a killing. O'Leary however, got Mark to go after the first ball pitched and his high foul was gathered in by Schofield. "Jonnie" Dolan also went after the first one and lifted to Kelley in short-field to end the frame.

The locals won in the 5th, and there was nothing flukey about the run which decided the issue. With one down "Jonnie" Dolan drove a sharp triple to left field which went to the right of the band-stand and which only some fast fielding by Von Klack and an accurate relay to the infield by "Jim" Murphy prevented from being a home run. Tansey rapped to shortstop and Kelley played the ball so as to hold Dolan at third. With two out "Nip" Chamberland came through in the pinch with a single past 3rd to score "Jonnie" before Ambrose was retired by "Joe" Murphy and Chessioning.

St. Mary's lost its first home game of the season to the Lexington Town Team in the second engagement of a twin bill on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon, the score being 4-2.

The visitors deserved to win as they hustled all the way and played by far the better ball of the two clubs. Yet in all fairness to the locals it must be admitted that St. Mary's was a long way from showing the game of which its men are capable. The St. Mary's club apparently underestimated its opponents and before the boys realized it they were too far behind to catch up. There was altogether too much clowning on the part of some of the home talent during the game and the comedy was distinctly not popular with the fans. St. Mary's should guard the reputation which it has made of being a hustling ball club as it is surely one of its strongest assets and will go far toward establishing its popularity.

To be sure the boys had lost much of their pep after the opening game with Melrose and were not especially concerned with winning the second engagement. Two games on one afternoon are too many for players only working once a week so the fans should not be too severe in their judgment.

St. Mary's lost the ball game because its club fell down behind the pitching of Mark Kelley who essayed the iron man stunt and stayed in the box through 12 innings before giving way to "Bobby" Callahan, youthful southpaw from the Pavilion, who finished up.

"Mex" allowed only three hits in five frames while fanning six, hardly enough to warrant any club scoring a lot of runs off any pitcher without a lot of help from his backing. Six misuses were tossed into the machinery by the St. Mary's fielders and nearly all the errors were inserted where they were particularly unfortunate. "Flats" Flaherty, especially, had a tough day in the field while "Jonnie" Dolan and Roy McGrath each fozzled at critical times while Kelley was on the rubber.

The game on an earned run basis should have gone to St. Mary's, Flaherty's home run being the only legitimate marker put over during the 7 frames.

After getting by the first two innings Lexington put one over in the 3rd. With two out Sweeney hit one to right center which McGrath muffed after a hard run. Randle got a life when Flaherty muffed up his grounder and Sweeney went to 2nd. Stevens singled past 1st to score Sweeney but was caught trying to stretch his hit when Kelley intercepted McGrath's throw to the plate and pegged to Flaherty for the put-out.

Two more trickled over in the 5th. With one out Braden got on when "Jonnie" Dolan threw widely to first and he went to second on Ferry's hit to right. Sweeney moved both runners along with a sacrifice and both scored when Dolan made his second hopper. Kelley fanned Stevens for the final out.

Callahan went to the hill at this point and with the assistance of "his umps" managed to weather the 6th inning despite a triple by Donovan, the first run up. The 7th, however, saw Lexington score again. With one out Ferry hit to center and went to second on Sweeney's hit to right. Randle rapped to Ambrose who got Ferry at 3rd but Sweeney moved along to second from where he routed when Flaherty lost Stevens' grounder.

Winchester scored in the first when "Tom" Dolan walked and went all the way around when Braden threw wildly to first on Flaherty's attempt to sacrifice. According to the ground rules which have always been in vogue on Manchester Field the runner should have been halted on third, but the visitors failed to kick when Umpire Callan allowed the run to stand.

St. Mary's other tally came as the result of a home run into the break in the 5th inning by "Flats" Flaherty, the only earned run of the matinee. Braden, the Lexington pitcher was overloading throwing up a high one on the inside and the locals went after it like hungry fish, with the result that 12 of Captain Melly's boys went out on pop flies either to the infield or outfield. Randle in left field for the visitors had a real field day, accepting 7 chances without a slip-up. In the 6th he robbed Francis Tansey of a sure home run when he ran down the banking by the band-stand to take his fly off the very edge of the river. It was a real catch in any league and ranks with the best ever made on the playground. "Al" Blowers in his prime might well have been proud of such a bit of fielding larceny.

Rich Guano Islands

The most noted deposits of guano are those of the Chincha and other islands off the coast of Peru, but valuable beds have been discovered in many other parts of the world. The Chincha Islands were formerly covered with guano, in places to a height of nearly 200 feet, varying in thickness from three inches to a foot. The islands are generally uninhabited.

THE BALANCE SHEET OF BRITAIN'S FOOD SUPPLY

England's general strike hinged on food.

The balance sheet of Britain's food supply governs the course of a general strike, or any crisis in England, says a bulletin of the National Geographical Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Of all the major foods necessary to feed a nation of 43,000,000, Britain can supply herself with only one, fish.

Must Buy Her Bread

Britannia is in the plight of the old lady who lived in a shoe. Although she has put 1,500,000 of her children to work on farms to feed the family, her cupboard would be quite bare if she didn't go to the ends of the earth to market. She must buy from the world 80 per cent of the wheat that makes the British bread, and 80 per cent of the oats for breakfast food and for her very best horse power.

Although her dairy farms are well stocked with the best of cattle, Britannia can supply only the fresh milk demanded by her millions. But considering milk and milk products as a whole, only 45 per cent is produced at home. Three-fourths of the butter, three-fourths of the cheese, three-fourths of the condensed milk that go to make British brown and snow, come from the continent or from North America. In normal times Britain uses three-fourths of the world's surplus butter.

Meat is always on the table of the lady that lives in tight British shoes. Her farm which has many acres of splendid grass, does rather better in the matter of providing roasts and mutton. Nevertheless, 57 per cent of the beef and veal, 63 per cent of the mutton and lamb and 58 per cent of the pork must be purchased outside the country. Many ships must be converted into market baskets to go to Denmark, China, Egypt, Holland, Canada, the United States, France and Italy to collect two-thirds of the 4,325,000,000 eggs consumed in England in one year.

Trading Cloth for Bread

With so much to buy in the world market, Britannia has to send millions of her people to the factories where they can earn money to pay their hoard. When a war or a strike comes the shoe pinches more than ever because nowhere in the world is the balance of production and consumption so delicate and so intricate. No good economic scale has yet been created to weigh a pound of coal or a pound of rotten cloth against a pound of meat or bread.

In prosperous times of peace the palate is the dictator of the breakfast, dinner and supper table. If coffee is savory, send to Brazil for it. Father wishes the tart acid of grape fruit. Call on Florida. But mother would have the fruity mildness of a Nicaraguan banana. Sugar from the West Indies everyone calls for. There is a strip of Irish bacon beside the eggs which are seasoned with Michigan salt and East Indian black pepper.

But in a crisis such as England has been experiencing a new standard is immediately invoked. Two pounds of food per day will keep a person going. The desires of the individual are unimportant. He can exist on the food that is most concentrated and most adaptable for transportation. One of the first acts of the British Government in the recent crisis was to invoke a law permit rationing such as existed during the World War. When the German submarines were sinking British food ships, the director of food economy allowed men doing heavy manual labor to have 8 pounds of bread a week and women doing easy work, 3 pounds and a half. Other rations were: cereals other than bread 12 ounces; meat, 2 pounds; butter, margarine, oils and fats, 10 ounces; sugar 5 ounces.

Cultivation Intense

The British Government has moved to increase and vary the agricultural production of the British Isles because of the danger of a food shortage. But it has been uphill work. England's cultivation already approaches Belgium and Japan in its intensity. Farmers in England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland are conservative by tradition and hesitate to accept new methods worked out in the United States, Canada and Australia. Since there is no tariff, the Dominions and foreign nations can ship in food products raised on a large scale and carefully graded and classified. They can actually undersell native producers in their own products.

But changes have come in recent years as illustrated by the new estate of Irish eggs. Not so many years ago there was an English proverb that Irish eggs were only politically useful. Careful marketing now insures millions of Irish eggs being delivered to English consumers within three days after they are laid.

Novels Losing Popularity

There is a reaction against the modern novel and novel reading, according to one of Detroit's librarians. People who used to look only for the latest best seller now ask for Seventeenth and Eighteenth century classics. They are delving in books of travel and biography and even political economy. They come to the library more frequently, too, for this more serious reading, she says.—Detroit News.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

There's many a good thing lost by not asking for it.
Very few deaths have ever been caused by kindness.
There are two sides to every question, your side, and of course the wrong side.
A kindly word is like a fertile seed that will grow and its blossom will be a kindly deed.
A small fish is the sweetest;
so are the simple joys of life;
they leave a sweet taste in the conscience.
A fur collar on an overcoat is not evidence of a clean under-shirt.
A complaining and gossiping person usually has but little regard for the truth.

With the work of erecting the new school in the Highlands District beginning to show progress one naturally begins to wonder, along with where the children are going to come from to fill the structure, what is being done toward ironing out the difficulties which arise a while back in connection with selecting a name for the successor of the Washington and Highland School buildings. What action has the School Committee taken with regards the petition circulated and profitably signed by many citizens of the Highlands objecting to the name "George Washington" which had been selected to designate the school? Have the signers decided to abide by the committee's decision, whatever it may have been?

ARE YOU DEMOCRATIC?

Unfortunately many people suffer from superiority complex, for no particular reason except that they are perhaps wealthier than the majority and therefore their social position is assured. To those people the meaning of the word democratic means nothing more than a political party. However, people with wealth are not the only ones who suffer from this disease. Many people in ordinary circumstances assume this attitude and while it is a grave mistake for us to underestimate ourselves it is a greater mistake for us to overestimate our importance.

God created all human beings equal even though it is very hard for some of us to believe. The very people to whom we feel superior may have more real ability and have had less opportunity than we, and may eventually distinguish themselves. For this reason it is well that we should be as liberal-minded as possible and really know our fellow men before we decide who is inferior and who is not. Have you a superiority complex or are you democratic?

EARLY MORNING BLAZE AT DO-NUT SHOP

The "Do-Nut" Shop operated by Mr. Arthur Mullen on Main street just north of the railroad crossing in the square was temporarily put out of commission by a fire which started from some unknown origin in the back room of the plant shortly before 6 o'clock on Tuesday morning.

Mr. Mullen, the proprietor, had arrived at the shop and had lighted the burners under the big kettles in which the doughnuts are fried. This done, he went out to obtain a morning paper. Arriving back at his place of business he found the shop in flames and lost no time in pulling in an alarm from Box 21 which summoned the Fire Department to the scene.

The burning fat gave off a thick smoke and an intense heat which made things decidedly unpleasant for the firemen during their short fight to subdue the flames. About 23 minutes elapsed from the time the alarm was received at the Central Station until the "all out" signal, the burning grease being extinguished with chemicals.

How the fire started is not known. Whether the fat became over-heated or the wind coming through an open window blew some draperies into the flames were theories which were being discussed by on-lookers without however, any satisfactory conclusions being reached. The damage to the shop considering the fierceness of the blaze was not excessive, and is understood to be covered by insurance. The crowd which attended the fire was characterized by Chief DeCourcy as a very small one for a Center box.

WINCHESTER PEOPLE ATTENDED

Several residents of Winchester were among the large gathering which attended the reception tendered last Tuesday evening by the corporators and staff of the Mullen Savings Bank to their president, Francis A. Shove, in honor of his 40 years of faithful service to that institution. Bankers from all over the State were present at the affair which was characterized as one of the most brilliant held in Malden for some years. Among those from Winchester to attend were Treasurer William F. Priest of the Winchester Savings Bank, Treasurer Royal Wentworth of the County Savings Bank, Chelsea, and Mrs. Wentworth, and Treasurer W. B. Denison of the Chelsea Savings Bank and Mrs. Denison.

THE CHARM OF GOOD POETRY

Edited by Ellen Guild

Little we know what's in the other fellow's heart. Sometimes the coldest exterior hides a love of the finest things in life. The poems below show me that this poor boy, an inmate of Concord Reformatory, has a mind far above his seeming delinquencies. Perhaps when he comes out he will realize the futility of wrong doing and immediately start a new and fresh page in the Book of Life. I am sure, for one thing, he is not a bad boy at all. Rather a misdirected one. Listen to this!

When You Are Alone One There
Though life is a shadowed hour,
And naught is but a dream,
To call at fate, with bitter hate,
Will lead him to his doom.

And though each day seems endless long,
Don't yield to dark despair,
For when you wake you will find
When you're again "Out There."

Though you're been called a failure
And in despair you're down,
To stand your feet in life's wars
Is mightier than all crown.

To self-improvement you should turn,
And take it up with care,
For one fault less may bring success—
When you're again "Out There."

To overcome your failing is
The best way to prosper,
So that you'll be entirely free—
When you're again "Out There."

From a prominent Winchester woman we have received this poem.

Mrs. Powers is well known through her club work and her writings. She has shown in this poem what childhood remembers. Always there is something in our lives that is very vivid and real, and memory often works itself into either verse or short story form in those gifted in a literary manner:

Great Uncle William

Marion Parker Powers in The Country Bard

An ancient house beside a dusty road,
The roof and walls of darkly weathered gray—
And I remember phlox and larkspur bloom
Along the road where once, rustled, he strode:
A four post bed with frills and drapes away,
A quilted bedspread, and a second where much was glazed.

A large gray beard, and kindly lined eyes looked from a pillow of granite size.

I found him in the dimpled, luminous heat
Of that long dusty August afternoon,
And something whispered to my childish mind
That truth was something, reaching out, to find.

And I, old man, was coming home too soon:
I guessed somehow, that he would find it soon.

Marcia Taylor was born in Caribou, Me., and has written poetry from her earliest school days. She is a member of all the prominent women's clubs, among them: Business Women's, Nat'l Fed. Women's Clubs, Quillities, Secy. and Treas. Nat. Country Bard Ass. Her poetry is of the highest standard and it is a pleasure to have her in this column. Miss Taylor is living in Cambridge at present.

Four Winds

Marcia Taylor, in the Poet's Scroll

South Wind, take her all my kisses;
Tell her I am all her own;
Say I love her in the springtime,
And when summer birds have flown.

Winds of Winter, chilly North Wind,
Tell her I'm not cold like thee;
That my love is warm as sunlight
Shining in a tropic sea.

East Wind, tell her that I love her
In the sunshine and the rain,
That I'll be all hers, through storms and tempests,
I'll not shift and change again.

Winds of Summer, playful West Wind,
Kiss her face and kiss her hair;
Fill her heart with love and laughter;
Tell her all I do and think.

PICNIC AT KAMPCLIFF

Through the courtesy of Mr. Deleware King, the annual picnic of the Second Congregational Church was held at Kampcliff, Quincy Shore, on Saturday, July 10. About 60 people attended, going by auto bus or private automobile. Although the weather threatened an unpleasant day, the sun soon made its appearance.

Upon arrival Mr. King greeted the party and introduced the youngsters to the various attractions, too numerous to mention. At 11:30, those who enjoyed bathing, donned their suits and the fun began. Floats, tubs, slides and all sorts of contrivances made fun for the bathers and the lookers-on.

The spacious room and the many tables indoors and out gave opportunity for all to find desirable places for lunching.

The acrobates from the Squantum field, furnished additional excitement. After luncheon the interesting collections were viewed, games were played, and a most delightful afternoon was enjoyed. Five o'clock, the time of departure, came all too soon, as the happy picnickers, with lollipop in one hand and burn in the other, left Kampcliff with sleep appreciation for the kindness of their host and hostess, whose thoughtfulness has made Kampcliff an ideal place for a happy day.

AT LAST IT'S SETTLED

Philadelphia, July 15—Origin of bobbed hair is now definitely laid to the war—the Revolutionary War.

Discovery by Capt. L. C. Baird, an Army officer, of dusty old Continental Army records stored for years in the Schuykill Arsenal here shows America's first shingle was worn by the American doughboy and not by the American flapper.

Bobbing the hair was even made a matter of general orders for the soldier of 1776, the ancient documents indicate. One such decree, issued at West Point, is oddly at variance with present-day West Point traditions which frown on anything but the trimmest of hair-cuts.

As the head dress of a soldier is one of the first and necessary ornaments," it reads, "the Captain commands the N. C. officers and privates of the 1st Regt. to have their hair cut behind not to exceed seven inches long and close to the head.

"The N. C. officers and privates of the 2nd Regt. to have their hair tied behind in a high cut close to the head, the hair of the whole to be cut on the top of the head short and brushed back. The officers commanding companies will see this order carried into effect as soon as possible.

What Price Perfection

Are you content with less than the best?

Anyone who can afford to own a home can afford Kleen-Heet.

Despite the recognized engineering superiority of Kleen-Heet, its first cost is on a par with other good oil burners. And its instant efficiency—a distinctive advantage—brings amazing fuel economy in operation.

Even as compared with coal heating, with all its dirt and discomfort, many Kleen-Heet owners report marked savings in operating costs! And the saving in cleaning bills, doctor's bills—wear and tear on house and occupants—makes Kleen-Heet's cleanly comfort decidedly profitable, through the years.

In homes of every size, Kleen-Heet has evidenced its superior efficiency and economy by six years of unflinching performance.

PAGO PAGO: A PORT IN A VOLCANO

Pago Pago, visited by United States naval vessels, on their return from Australia and New Zealand, is the Capital of American Samoa, which is the only bit of American soil that lies south of the Equator, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Pago Pago, practically fell into the lap of a none too willing American, while various powers were seeking island territory in the Pacific, continues the bulletin; but if the entire South Seas had been combed, with all the other nations standing differentially by, a better location for a naval base hardly could have been chosen. Most South Sea harbors are little more than crescent bays, protected by coral reefs, their safety largely dependent on the direction of the wind. At Pago Pago ships sail into the heart of a huge extinct volcano center, only a narrow entrance open to the sea. Furthermore, there is a sharp turn inside, the whole harbor being shaped much like the ankle and foot of a stocking.

Beautiful as Well as Safe
The United States Naval Station is situated on the isthmus, its back toward the sea, but with high mountains intervening. Pago Pago town lies at the "toe." Most of the anchorage is entirely out of sight of the sea, and the ships lie in deep placid water even when destructive gales are blowing outside.

Giving Pago Pago the premier place among South Sea havens does not do it justice. Many famous harbors are more commodious; but it is hardly too much to say that Pago Pago is at once one of the safest and most beautiful harbors in the world.
A narrow strip of level land rims the harbor. Immediately beyond this strip the shales rise up steeply to mountainous heights, the sloping walls covered with varying shades of green, tropical vegetation. In addition to the naval station and Pago Pago town, three or four villages nestle close to the water's edge around the harbor, their thatched huts half hidden by coconut palms.

The harbor of Pago Pago almost cuts the island of Tutuila in two.
This is the largest isle of American Samoa, 17 miles long and about 5 wide. The other American islands are of importance, though two smaller islands are inhabited. Altogether the population of American Samoa is about 8000, some 6000 residing on Tutuila.

Little Spoiled by Civilization
American Samoa has been little spoiled by the civilization of the mother country, or that of other whites. Few whites reside in the islands besides the small group of missionaries and the officers, men and nurses at the naval station. Only one plantation is owned by a white man and only three or four whites have leaseholds. Practically the entire surface of the islands is owned in small tracts by individual natives.
The United States even bought from individual landlords the 40 acres needed for its naval establishment.

In the past the lava-lava, a sort of short skirt or kilt, was the only garment worn by men and women. Now slight concessions are made. In Pago Pago or in the presence of whites the men add a sort of undershirt and the women a sort of jacket or smock.
Among themselves, however, and in the outlying districts, the natives still wear the lava-lava, tucked about the waist, serve in place of the white man's and white woman's more complex costume.

Natives Largely Selfgoverning

In governmental matters, too, the United States has practiced "laissez faire" to an extent highly appreciated by the natives. The system employed so successfully by the Dutch in the East Indies has been adopted. An American naval officer stationed at the Pago Pago depot is appointed governor, but all officials under him actually exercising supervision over the natives are native hereditary chiefs. The islands are divided into three districts (ancient native divisions) with a native governor for each. Under the governors are chiefs of counties (also ancient districts) and under the county chiefs are the village chiefs. The village chiefs have councils composed of the heads of families.

The United States practices a certain measure of paternalism over its South Sea island wards. Copra, the dried meat of coconuts is practically the only article of export. The government handles this crop for the natives, so assuring them a fair price.
Free medical attention is furnished through naval medical officers, dentists, nurses and hospital corpsmen.
The health of the Samoans is excellent and their numbers are increasing. During the 21 years of American control the population has grown 41 per cent.

Hurt by Fashion's Change

Every time fashion changes someone suffers. Hobble skirts appeared in 1910, with the result that in the following year the export of silk from Lyons, in France, fell off by nearly $5,500,000. The simple fact was that women required less material for their gowns.

Early Theatrical "Show"

According to the proceedings of the Washington Academy of Sciences, the first theatrical performance in Washington of which there is any record was held in 1801 in Blodget's unfinished hotel, near the site of the former Post-office department, at Seventh and F streets. Rough boards were put in as temporary seats for the audience.

Root System for Trees

The bureau of plant industry says that healthy trees must have a good root system. The roots of some trees grow deep, while others are likely to appear on the surface. Among the deep-rooted trees are the oak and in-tillip. Among the surface trees are the poplar, silver maple and walnut.

Mutineer's Good Work

Under the assumed name John Aikins, Alexander Smith and eleven other mutineers of the English ship Bounty, together with some men and women from Tahiti, founded a colony on Pitcairn Island about 1783. Aikins was its head. He established worship and a school of a sort, and lived and died in peace, leaving a prosperous and religious people.

Skunks Feed on Pests

Skunks feed mainly upon insects which are harmful to agriculture.
They eat army worms, tobacco worms, white grubs, hop grubs, grasshoppers, cutworms, cicadas, crickets, aphids moths and many kinds of rodents.

LOWERY AND QUIMET WON FOUR BALL AT COUN- TRY CLUB

Winchester Teams Won in Third and Fourth Divisions

E. E. "Eddie" Lowery and Wilfred Quimet, four ball team of Norfolk, playing consistently fine golf throughout the three days of competition, won the championship flight of the annual four-ball invitation tournament of the Winchester Country Club last week. Winning golf tournaments is no new feat for the Norfolk pair, the Winchester affair being the 6th in which they have either finished first or among the prize winners.

Lowery and Quimet won their Winchester title by defeating J. M. Batchelder of Wrentham and Ralph N. Munroe, the Dartmouth golf captain representing United Shoe, on the 17th green, 2 up and 1 to play.

The tournament was characterized as a real success from every angle and was especially interesting in that it was played over the newly altered course at the Country Club. Consensus of opinion among the how handicap players who went around was that the new lay-out is a big improvement and has made the Winchester course much better than heretofore.

Winchester's representatives in the championship flight were George L. Barton, H. K. Olmstead, J. L. S. Barton, R. K. Stephenson, A. M. Bond, W. A. Jackson and P. A. Hendrick. Of these only George Barton and Olmstead, Jackson and Hendrick and "Bart" Stephenson survived the first round. Barton and Olmstead were eliminated in the second round by the finalist team of Batchelder and Munroe while Lowery and Quimet put out Jackson and Hendrick in the same bracket. The score of the first round match was 3 and 2; the second 2 and 1.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

OUR MEN ARE LIKE THIS
An orator could talk for two hours, on the subject of loyalty and not say as much as you'll find in this one short paragraph, written by a prominent member of the gas industry.

"From the very moment a man enters into public utility service the fact is impressed upon him that under no circumstances must their service fail; no excuses can be accepted; so that when his time comes to keep gas flowing through the town that its inhabitants may be fed, or to repair a telephone line that communication may be maintained to a stricken city, or to restore electric light or power service that the community may be lighted and its industries revived, all of the instincts of his nature which have been strengthened and stimulated by the traditions of the service and by association with his fellow employees, urge him on, even at the risk of his life."

If our employees didn't feel this spirit, Gas Service here might not be as prompt and adequate as you require. After all, it's the body of workers, not the officers nor the board of directors, that keep a public utility in constant service.

kins of Charles River won his way into the semi-finals by defeating W. A. Whitcomb of Worcester and J. Lasell, Whitinsville, 2 and 1. In the semi-finals, however, his team was eliminated by Batchelder and Munroe, 3 and 2.

Second Division

H. V. Kaler of Woodland and A. R. Parker, Jr., of Wellesley won the second flight, a handicap affair, by defeating H. F. McNeil and S. D. Bush of the Country Club, 3 and 1. McNeil and Bush won their way into the finals by eliminating the Winchester team of E. T. Barton and F. L. Hale, 2 and 1. Barton and Hale survived the second round when they defeated C. T. Porter and F. Ball of Weston, 5 and 3. R. L. Smith was the other Winchester entry in the second division. Paired with R. V. Bean of South Shore he was eliminated in the first round.

Third Division

Winchester crashed into the winning column with the completion of the third round flight handicap which was won by Sewell E. Newman and Richard A. Tutein representing the local club. Newman and Tutein were successful against the Monosnuck pair of G. H. and C. W. Harrison whom they defeated, 3 and 1. The Monosnuck entrants got into the finals at the expense of another Winchester team, W. F. Smart and W. C. Carr whom they defeated in the "semis," 6 and 5. The only other Winchester outfit to get beyond the first round was the combination of T. G. Abbott and E. R. Murphy who were put out in the second by Newman and Tutein, 5 and 4. Other local golfers to start were E. C. Smith, R. S. Dunbar, H. E. Merrill and F. M. Smith.

Fourth Division

Another local team won in the fourth handicap division, E. B. Smalley and J. P. Carr being successful against their team mates, R. W. Wilson and A. T. Monahan, 2 and 1. Smalley and Carr won the right to compete in the finals by defeating R. W. Stratton and T. I. Freeburn of Winchester, 4 and 3, while Wilson and Monahan in the same round finally eliminated E. W. Fairweather and R. E. Caverly of Sandy Burr, 1 up in 23 holes.

Chesley Whiten and E. E. Bates and A. T. Fairchild and Sears Walker were the other Winchester teams to survive the opening round but both fell by the wayside in the second bracket. E. M. Fisher and O. J. Logue, I. S. Hall, C. H. Carroll, F. L. Eames and E. R. Glidden were other local entrants in this division.

Famous Mountain

Iron mountain is one of the isolated knobs of the St. Francis mountains. In St. Francois county, Mo. It is 81 miles south of St. Louis, on the Iron Mountain railroad, and is 1,078 feet in elevation above the sea and 200 feet above the adjoining valley. This mountain contains deposits of specular hematite from ore.

KEEPING HOUSE

The coal hod's on the chiffonier.
The teapot's on the floor.
And on the carpets, far and near,
Burnt matches by the score.
But do not call the servants "idle."
Nor blame the loving spouse.
They're absent for the Summer, while
The husband's keeping house.

The water pitchers all are filled
With lemon rinds and spoons,
The salt's upset, the sugar's spilled,
The dishpan's full of prunes;
There's that to make a housewife stare
On table, board and shelf.
For this bright mortal can prepare
A luncheon for himself.

The sink's piled full of dishes that
Are painful to the eye,
The bird's quit singing, and the cat
Has gone away to die.
The papers that are coming, still,
At morning, noon and night
Have all been blown about until
The front yard's out of sight.

All undisturbed the dust is spread,
And cobwebs, in a wreath,
Hang down from ceilings overbeset
To littered floors beneath.
But ere the folks return he'll get
Some help to move the mass.
And clean the house, and then, you bet,
Let on 'twas ever thus.

Derivation of "Heathen"

The word "heathen" in its original sense means, "of the heath or open country." It has been suggested that the word acquired its meaning from the fact that at the introduction of Christianity into Germany the wild dwellers on the heaths longest resisted the truth.

Preachers' Sons Prominent

Among men of prominence who have been preachers' sons are Cecil Rhodes and Harriman, among financiers; Cleveland, Arthur and Wilson, among Presidents; Emerson, Cole-ridge, Addison and Tennyson, among writers; Hallam, Hobbes, Franklin, Shonke and Parkinson, among historians; Reynolds, Jenner, Linnaeus and Sir Christopher Wren.

Norwegian Belief

In Norway girls who want to make absolutely sure of getting married never put on new shoes for the first time unless the laces are tied by a married woman, preferably a mother of seven children. They also believe that, if a girl's laces are continually becoming untied, some young man is in love with her.

Flax in England

Flax was first planted in England in 1532, when it was directed to be grown in order that material might be provided for the making of fishing nets. In 1783 bounties were paid to growers of flax in order to encourage its cultivation.

TAKE either the new Chandler or the new Cleveland and apply whatever you think is the best test of a really fine motor car.

Don't stop at one test. Go the limit. Take your time. Be thorough. The more testing and the more comparing you do, the more completely will these great Sixes demonstrate their incontestable prowess in all phases of performance.

After all, performance is the primary function of a motor car—and performance, therefore, offers the best and surest means of properly judging a car.

And speaking of performance, Chandler and Cleveland possess, together, more national records for speed, endurance and hill-climbing than any other two cars of similar prices!

They are both beautiful in design and finish—delightfully roomy and comfortable for long trips—and thoroughly dependable.

Both have high-pressure motor lubrication—and the great "One Shot" System of centralized chassis lubrication. Mechanically speaking, both ride on oil—keeping up to maximum efficiency from year's end to year's end, with upkeep minimized by engineering's victory over wear!

YILDIZ KIOSK—PAVILION OF THE STAR

Yildiz palace is to be a Monte Carlo on the Bosphorus, according to an announcement from Constantinople. The Turkish Government, endeavoring to put its surplus imperial palaces to some profit, is said to have closed with Italian concessionaires, who will convert the former Ottoman White House into a casino.

Yildiz Kiosk is the full name of the palace, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., and it is a name which can serve as well in the near future as it has in the past—Yildiz Kiosk, the Pavilion of the Star. Lucky or unlucky? That is not a new question at Yildiz.

Incomparable View From Windows
For its old master, Sultan Abdul-Hamid II, the Star probably can be called a lucky one. Any Sultan who reigned 33 years was fortunate. True he was turned out in the end with little more ceremony than was accorded Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, when they were ejected from a far grander palace at Versailles. But 33 years is a fairly long lease on a view of which it has been said, "No other sovereign on the globe can contemplate from his chamber windows a scene which approaches this."

The view that Yildiz commands is the Bosphorus and the Sea of Marmara. Within the sweep of the eye (or in the case of the hermit Sultan, his telescope) lie places on both shores of the storied strait; the neville minarets of Constantinople's quarters, Stambul, Pera, and Scutari; the Golden Horn, that impudent spit of land where 27 Sultans were born to terrify Europe for 800 years; and finally the colorful parade of ships of the nations in and out of the Black Sea.

On Watery Main Street
To appreciate the setting of the Yildiz palace, one must first fix in mind the geography of its position. The Bosphorus is a main street. The Sea of Marmara is its open common or park beyond which "The Street" narrows again at the Bosphorus. Like the great avenues every American is familiar with, the Bosphorus has its thickly populated downtown business districts which in this case are the quarters of Constantinople. The open Black Sea takes the place of the open country toward which our Bosphorus "avenue" leads and as the crush of the city is left behind magnificent suburban residences and palaces command one's attention right and left.

On the left, soon after one leaves the city riding north, appears a magnificent palace stretching along the shore for a third of a mile. This is the Dolma Bagiche, the true Versailles of the Turkish Empire. It cost $15,000,000. Sultan Abdul-Mejid tripped on a daisill as he entered with the proud architects and builders to inspect the newly completed palace. That was enough for him. He left immediately and never set foot in the place again. Dolma Bagiche was too grand for Abdul-Hamid's taste, so he had built for himself Yildiz on the dominant hill a mile to the north. And close to it one sees the private, unadorned mosque he built of the same white marble.

Yildiz Kiosk is a two-story palace. It would pass for the fine country residence of a rich gentleman. There is very little that is Turkish about its architecture and a very great deal that is French. It is set in a park surrounded by stanch walks. Once a week in daylight and once a year at night time Abdul-Hamid drove through the gate of the wall and down the hill in short block to his private mosque. Beneath his tunic he wore a bullet-proof vest for he was mortally afraid that some one of his subjects who crawled the line of march would take a shot at him. The annual night promenade to the mosque commemorated that late when Gabriel began to reveal the Koran to Mohammed. Torches lighted the scene. The eunuchs and the devout in thousands came to see the spectacle. Night of Power, Turks called it, and the custom was that the Sultan each year on this night took a new wife.

Abdul-Hamid Recluse in Palace
Narrow-minded and Abdul-Hamid, who prohibited the use of dynamite in Constantinople because he confused them with dynamite, never went into his city. The city never peeped within his walls. That was forbidden. So it came to pass that Abdul-Hamid did not dare to look into the heart of Constantinople except with a telescope. Finally when the young Turks in 1909 reconstituted the Constitution the Sultan had suppressed, the non-lace crowded in to see what kind of a place the old man had shot himself up in. They found the gardens in bad shape for all the efforts of an army of gardeners reported to number 400. There was a small pottery factory and a completely equipped carpentry shop. The traditions of Mohammedans from the Sultan down requires them to learn a trade. In the gardens they found the smaller palace where Abdul-Hamid received a lacquered box from Arakia labelled "Old Japanese Ivory." It contained the head of the father of the Turkish constitution.

Dr. Edwin Grosvenor, then professor in Robert College a few miles north of Yildiz on the same bank of the Bosphorus, describes the reception room of the palace as he saw them when the Sultan received General Lew Wallace, author of Ben Hur, as Minister from the United States. The reception room is a large, high-studded apartment fronting on the Bosphorus. The Ottoman ministers of state are drawn up in line on the right of the sovereign, one hand on the hilt of the sword and the other upon the breast in an attitude of profound humility. The envoy presents his credentials and states to his dragoman what he has to say. This the dragoman translates in Turkish to the Minister of foreign affairs who in turn repeats it in a low hushed voice to the Sultan. An American is astounded to see in the reception room the name "G. Washington" on an elaborate picture which constitutes the main mural ornament of the stairway. The British artist whose work is thus distinguished was a kinsman of our national hero and first president.

JAMES MAGUIRE

James Maguire, an old and respected resident of Winchester, passed away Monday evening at his home on Lincoln street after several months of failing health. He was 80 years of age and a native of Middleton, County Cork, Ireland. As a young man he came to this country and for the past 35 years had made his home in this town. He soon established himself as an expert landscape gardener and during his active life worked upon some of Winchester's finest estates.

Mr. Maguire was a devout member of St. Mary's Parish, having been one of the pioneers in the movement to establish the present church on Washington street. Upon his arrival in Winchester Mr. Maguire found no Catholic Church here, and for three years he attended Mass in Woburn. Up to a few years ago when his health began to decline he took an active interest in the work of St. Mary's Parish and was a charter member of its Holy Name Society.

He was a member of the committee which represented the parish on Oct. 10, 1914, when St. Mary's Parochial School was blessed by His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connor, and was one of those presented by that noted dignitary with a beautiful silver triptych for his active interest in the institution.

In 1874 he was married in St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, by the Rev. Mr. Peter Roman to Miss Mary McCarthy who survives him with five sons, Rev. Edward D. Maguire of St. Angela's Church, Mattapan, Rev. Eugene A. Maguire of the Immaculate Conception Church, Stoughton, Patrick of Winchester, James of Wakefield, Michael of Melrose, and by two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Catherine, both of this town.

Largely attended funeral services were held on Thursday morning with a solemn High Mass of Requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9:30 o'clock. The officiating was Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Morrill, pastor of St. Mary's, rector of St. Charles Church, Woburn; Rev. Fr. Charles A. Donahue of St. Bridget's Church, Woburn; Rev. Fr. John J. Lannahan of St. John the Evangelist Church, North Chelmsford, sub-deacon; and Rev. Fr. William Gross of St. Patrick's Church, Lawrence, Minister of Ceremonies.

Seated within the sanctuary were Rev. John J. Gorman, Rev. Francis E. Rogers and Rev. Hugh Doyle of St. Charles Church, Woburn; Rev. Walter J. Roche of the Church of Our Lady, Newton; Rev. Henry Tattam of St. Mary's Church, Waltham; Rev. Dennis Lee of St. Joseph's Church, Amesbury; Rev. Charles Finn and Rev. John J. Lynch of St. John's Seminary, Brighton; Rev. James Hanney of the Sacred Heart Church, Newton; Rev. Francis J. Ryan and Rev. Augustine M. McMahon of St. Angela's Church, Mattapan; Rev. Frederick Driscoll of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Newton Upper Falls; Rev. John Cunningham of St. Andrew's Church, Billerica; Rev. Henry Lyons of the Church of the Annunciation, Danvers; Rev. William Lyons of Our Lady of Sorrows Church, Sharon; Rev. John Joyce of St. Joseph's Church, Melrose; Rev. Cornelius Murray of St. Mary's Church, Winchester; Rev. Stephen Murray of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Salem; Rev. Joseph Coulton of St. Bridget's Church, Lexington and Rev. Daniel Donovan of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Stoughton.

A profusion of flowers with many spiritual bouquets bore eloquent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends.

Masses: Daniel Murphy, Jeremiah Breen, James J. Fitzgerald, John Lynch, Patrick Kenney and Thomas J. Morrill, all of Winchester, were hearers. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

EARLY MORNING RUN SATURDAY

Defective wiring in a Chandler touring car owned by William Eaton of 116 Arlington street, West Medford, gave the Winchester firemen an early run at 1:40 in the wee small hours last Saturday morning. It seems that Eaton was taking a group of friends home from a party and had traveled along the parkway until in the vicinity of Sandy Beach when a backfire caused the wiring system of his car to ignite. A passing motorist, seeing Eaton's excited party and noticing the smoke about his car pulled in an alarm from Box 531 at Lakeview road, giving many somnolent residents of the Wedgemere district a chance to arise with more or less trepidation to locate the blaze. The firemen made short work of the Eaton trouble and returned to their station leaving many to wonder what it was all about.

ANOTHER BAD ACCIDENT ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Four motorists were taken to the Winchester Hospital last Friday afternoon and two automobiles were badly wrecked as the result of an accident on Cambridge street about 75 feet north of Pond street, a place which has already appeared on the police blotter as the scene of several other bad smash-ups.

Last Friday's affair took place shortly before 1 o'clock when a Dodge touring car, registered to the Massachusetts Department of Public Works and operated by George H. Collins of 282 Center street, Dorchester, was in collision with a Studebaker light six sedan, owned and driven by Ernest Hollman of 76 Nelson street, Manchester, N. H. The Dodge was headed north on Cambridge street while the Studebaker was coming in a southerly direction, the smash occurring on the right hand side of the roadway headed north at the point mentioned above. No official report as to how the accident took place was given out but one or the other of the machines involved must have been going at a high rate of speed since both were badly wrecked. The front end and right side of the Dodge were completely demolished while the Studebaker was similarly smashed in addition to losing its right front wheel and having all the glass in the windshield and right side broken. Both had to be towed from the scene of the crash, the Dodge being removed by the State Department of Public Works while the Studebaker was taken to a nearby garage on Cambridge street. The personal effects of the passengers in the touring car were removed and taken in a borrowed machine to Lowell.

Shortly after the accident occurred police headquarters was notified and Sgt. Cassidy and officer Farrell were soon on the scene. They at once put in a call for the department's ambulance which was driven over by officer Edward O'Connor. Meanwhile Chief McIntosh dispatched a second ambulance, that of the Kelley & Hawes Company, to Cambridge street, reports having been to the effect that several had been injured in the accident.

Elizabeth O'Brien, aged 13, of 22 1/2 Fairmount avenue, Cambridge, riding with Collins received a bad cut on the left hand and was taken to the hospital by Driver Augustine G. Robinson of the Winchester Laundries. Five stitches were necessary to close the wound and Miss O'Brien was also treated for abrasion to both knees.

Mrs. Augusta Hollman of 76 Nelson street, Manchester, N. H., wife of the operator of the Studebaker, was removed to the hospital in the police ambulance. She had sustained lacerations along the left ear and a severe shaking up with the possibility of internal injuries and was treated by Drs. R. W. Sheehy and M. J. Quinn as was Mrs. Gustave Hollman, another of the Studebaker's passengers living at Proctor avenue, Manchester, N. H., who was suffering from shock and a deep scalp wound. The latter was taken to the hospital in the Kelley & Hawes Company ambulance, while Hollman, the driver of the sedan, was taken thither by Sgt. Cassidy. Hollman sustained multiple lacerations to the face, right leg and mouth. Collings, the driver of the Dodge, was unhurt except for scratches on one hand.

Mrs. Augusta Hollman and Mrs. Gustave Hollman were both detained at the hospital and it was at first feared that both were quite badly injured. Later reports, however, were more reassuring and the last named was discharged on Sunday. Mrs. Augusta Hollman was expected to go home from the hospital either Tuesday or Wednesday.

ONCE WHEN SPEED WAS NOT DESIRABLE

Possibly he figured he was again on the runners or beating out a base hit, contingencies wherein speed is not only commendable but an absolutely necessary asset. Perhaps he didn't want any one to accuse him of slowing up, that bugaboo of all famous one-time athletes. At all events, Raymond N. Skilton of Lincoln, better known as "Raymie" and far famed as a hockey player and semi-professional baseball star, drove his Diana sedan along upper Main street last Friday at a rate of speed deemed by officer James Farrell of the police to be excessive. The patrolman stopped the big fellow a whole lot easier than opposing hockey players used to turn the trick and found that he was not in possession of his registration papers, an unfortunate coincidence.

"Raymie" talked things over with the judge in the Woburn District Court this morning and doubtless hoped fervently that "hizzoneer" was not one of those rabid ball fans who had headache after watching Mr. Skilton knock the ball out of the orchard while playing for some opponent of the old Town Team.

OVERCOME BY HEAT IN SQUARE

Melvin E. Northrop of 138 Warren street, Arlington, collapsed in his Willys-Knight sedan Tuesday afternoon at 1:45 while the machine was standing on Main street in front of the Shoe Hospital in the square.

His plight was noticed by the proprietor of the shop who notified officer Farrell. The latter with the assistance of traffic officer Donaghey took the unconscious man to the police station where first aid was administered. Northrop was badly dazed and was treated by Dr. R. W. Sheehy who pronounced him suffering from heat prostration.

He was finally revived sufficiently to be removed to his home in his machine by Sgt. Cassidy and officer Mark Kelley.

DRUNKEN DRIVER SENTENCED AFTER CAMBRIDGE STREET CRASH

Grover R. Barney of 39 Orlando avenue, Winthrop, was sentenced to serve one month in the House of Correction and to pay two fines, of $10 as a result of an accident in which he figured last Monday night.

Barney was driving his Cadillac coupe south along Cambridge street about 10:30 p. m. when the machine collided with a Dodge touring car which was going north and was at a point opposite the residence of Mr. John R. Mooney, 139 Cambridge street.

Police Headquarters was notified of the collision and Officer Mark Kelley was sent to the scene from Box 15. He found both cars damaged by the force of the impact. The Cadillac after hitting the Dodge went for about 30 feet along the roadway and then swerved into an adjacent field.

The latter machine was operated by Leo Ferry of 23 Fordham street, Arlington, and contained four other passengers. Two of these were found to have sustained injuries and were taken to the police station where they were treated by Dr. R. W. Sheehy. Asst. Sub. Silva of 83 1/2 Cherry street, Somerville, received injuries to his left side and a cut on the scalp while Toaquin Sears had his left hand injured in being thrown from the car.

Both autos had to be towed to the Central Garage, and Barney was taken into custody by Officer Kelley. He was booked at headquarters charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, of driving without a license and with drunkenness.

In the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning he was found guilty and sentenced to serve a month in the House of Correction and to pay fines aggregating $20. Barney appealed and was held for the September session of the Grand Jury.

MARY B. GUILD

Mary B. Guild, wife of Samuel D. Guild, passed away last Saturday morning, July 17, at her home on Forest street after more than a year of failing health.

Mrs. Guild was 43 years of age and was born at Plainfield, Conn., the daughter of Oscar and Emily (Brown) Hopkins. Her early life was spent in Plainfield, but following her marriage to Mr. Guild in 1912 she removed to Medford where she made her home until coming to Winchester 10 years ago.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a daughter, Frances E., three sisters: Miss Fannie L. Hopkins of Plainfield, Conn.; Mrs. E. W. Ellison of Williamstown, Conn.; Miss Maria B. Hopkins of Norwich, Conn.; and two brothers, Charles E. of Plainfield, Conn., and Henry O. Hopkins of Central Village, Conn.

Funeral services were held at the late residence on Monday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. John H. Whitley of the Second Congregational Church. The bearers were six nephews of the deceased: Lieut. Ernest H. Webb, U. S. N., Harold, Charles E. Jr., Ralph and Ernest C. Hopkins all of Plainfield, Conn.; and Francis E. Hopkins of Pencil Village, Conn. During the services Miss Jean MacLellan sang "Lead Kindly Light" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Interment was in Plain Lake Cemetery, Medford.

WOBURN BOY DROWNED AT SANDY BEACH LAST NIGHT

Phillip J. Doherty, 19, of Woburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Doherty of 85 Pleasant street, was drowned while bathing at Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake last evening.

Young Doherty left his home at about 8 o'clock in company with two friends, Fred O'Neil of Pleasant street and Ernest Coakley of Beacon street, making the trip to the beach in the latter's Ford sedan.

O'Neil and Coakley are good swimmers and soon got into deep water, leaving Doherty near the shore. When the first named arrived back at the beach they were unable to find their friend but at first thought little of the fact since there was a huge crowd of bathers in the vicinity.

They commenced a systematic search however and when this proved unavailing went to the spot where they had parked their machine to see if Doherty had perhaps preceded them there and was awaiting their coming. The latter's clothes were in the sedan, but there was no sight of their owner. O'Neil and Coakley then became alarmed and called Doherty's home to see if his family had any news of him.

At his home the two youths were informed by a sister of the dead young man that Phillip had gone swimming and had not yet returned. Hastening back to the beach O'Neil and Coakley informed the Metropolitan officer on duty there of what had occurred.

It was then about 9:30 p. m. and as no trace of the missing youth could be found anywhere on shore the Metropolitan Police under Sergeant Quakers began to drag for the body with grapnels.

After an all night search the body was recovered at 5:25 this morning at a spot about 12 feet from the shore. It was viewed by Medical Examiner Vernon C. Stewart of Woburn who pronounced that death was due to drowning. Following his examination the remains were removed to the undertaking rooms of Holland Brothers in Woburn.

Phillip J. Doherty was well known in his native city where he attended the local schools. He conducted a bakery route through Woburn and Winchester and had many friends in this town. Funeral services are to be held on Monday morning in St. Charles Church, Woburn.

CO-OPERATION

Officer Henry Dempsey is certain that there really is nothing like it, and is possessed of certain facts with which to support his assertion. Read, and be convinced.

The patrolman claims that he has much data bearing upon the subject, but the particular instance in which the value of working together was established beyond dispute took place last Sunday.

We are informed that Officer Dempsey, in company with his brother John, who rides a motorcycle as a member of the State Constabulary and three other Winchester young men, took a motor trip last Sunday to Hampton Beach, N. H.

Mindful of the fact that the first named was due back in town to go on evening patrol the party left the beach in good season and began their homeward trip without incident.

Arriving near Newburyport, all did not seem well with the motor and a hasty examination disclosed the fact that a hearing had been burned out. A new one had to be procured and the young men were just wondering how, when along came a chugging of a motorcycle officer.

Yes indeed, in response to an impassioned statement of the party's predicament from brother Motorcycle Officer John Dempsey, the former readily agreed to go and get the necessary part. Even at that it looked like a long time before the car would once more be in running order and things looked rather dubious for Officer Henry's pounding the Winchester sidewalks of his beat on time that evening. What to do, and all that sort of thing!

Along the road toward the stranded tourists came another machine and while yet at some distance its driver was recognized as Officer Mark Kelley of the local Police Department, on his way back to duty after visiting relatives at Hampton Beach.

Leaping into the roadway Officer Dempsey attempted to flag the car, but Officer Kelley had also heard the call of duty and failing to recognize his brother patrolman continued blithely upon his way.

A few words explained the situation to the motorcycle rider, who was just about to start for the new hearing and who instead turned his machine and took after the rapidly disappearing Mark.

The latter took a peak in his mirror and was highly disgusted to notice that he was being trailed by the law. Upon being stopped by the trooper, however, his chagrin quickly vanished upon being informed that he was not "pinched" but was simply being asked to transport a brother officer back to Winchester and duty.

Officers Dempsey and Kelley were soon speeding along toward home and so far as we could learn answered roll call on the minute.

CHARLES THOMAS FORTIS

Charles Thomas Fortis, for more than 50 years a well known resident of Winchester, passed away Tuesday night, July 20, at his home, 5 Dix terrace. He had been in failing health for about six months but had been confined to his bed only for the past two weeks.

Mr. Fortis was born in Wilmington, the son of William and Mary (Bunn) Fortis. He was educated and spent his early life in that town, coming to Winchester as a young man 19 years of age.

Since that time he had continued to make his home here, living always in the neighborhood of the Congregational Church, with the exception of three years following his marriage which he spent in Woburn.

The deceased was a blacksmith and for many years had a shop on upper Main street at the bridge on the spot now occupied by Pike's Garage. He closed out his business seven years ago and since then had been employed during the winter at the Whitney Machine Company and during the summer months with the Winchester Water Department. About a year ago he was forced to retire from active work because of his health.

In 1882 he was married at Woburn to Miss Carrie I. Skelton who survives him with a daughter, Mrs. John Linwood Sherman of Winchester, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Carter of Reading.

Funeral services were held on this Friday afternoon at the late residence conducted by the Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

UNION CHURCH SERVICES AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Beginning next Sunday and continuing for three Sundays the Union Church services of the Baptist, Methodist and First Congregational Churches will be held in the First Congregational Church. These services are to be held in the vestry on account of alterations being made in the main auditorium. The pulpits supply committee of the Congregational Church has been unusually fortunate in securing Rev. Fletcher D. Parker, secretary of the City Missionary Society and a member of the church, as the preacher for the first Sunday, July 25. The morning service will begin at 10:30, the usual hour. In accordance with a vote of the church taken just before the summer season there will be no evening services on Sunday while the services are being held in Congregational Church. Members and friends are asked to bear this in mind in order to eliminate confusion.

Mr. Parker is to have charge of the Midweek Service on Wednesday evening of next week at 7:45. Everyone is urged to make this their service.

HOT WEATHER

We'll say so, and very probably we won't be the only one talking about it. Winchester, in company with neighboring cities and towns, sweltered through the hottest weather of the year this week, having been held in the grip of an intense heat wave which began last Sunday and which has been increasing in intensity until yesterday found conditions well nigh unbearable. No relief was afforded by a clearly defined breeze, the air stirring resembling that coming from a blast furnace.

Wednesday saw the mercury hovering right around the 100 degree mark throughout the middle of the day and evening found it but slightly cooler. Samly Bench on Mystic Lake was thronged, the crowd of bathers being estimated in the neighborhood of 5000. Parked automobiles extended from the Midford Boat Club to the iron bridge near Wedgemere and the lone Metropolitan Officer on duty had a hard detail directing the traffic.

Thursday's heat was even more intense and although the Weather Bureau promised cooling showers toward night there were no signs of the heat quenching in the early evening.

Thermometers in the center registered 104 degrees in the heat of the day and many of the shops and factories closed before noon. The men employed on the highways were sent home early, it being impossible to work on the blistering streets. The glass on the second floor of the Star Office hit 109 degrees flat on Wednesday and no one dared to take a reading yesterday. We thought this was high until we took a peek at the tube in front of the Fire Station during the noonday glare. In the sun the glass read just exactly 120 degrees and at 3:30 in the afternoon there had been a drop of only 2 degrees. Tell one, if you will, but ask the firemen, if you won't take our word for it.

KIDDIES' DAY NEXT WEDNESDAY

Winchester Lodge of Elks is to hold its annual "Kiddies' Day" on next Wednesday, July 28 and plans are practically completed to make this year's affair the best ever for the town's little stay-at-homes.

After a lapse of a year the party is to be staged again at Little Nahant, Lynn Beach, where a pavilion and bath house will be available to care for the needs of the Elks and their youthful guests.

Eight big Boston & Maine busses have been engaged to carry the party to the beach and it is expected that about 400 kiddies will enjoy the long awaited outing.

The delegation is to leave Manchester Field at 8:30 in the morning and the usual luncheon will be served in the pavilion at the beach at noon. The afternoon program calls for sports for the kiddies under the direction of James N. Clark. The trip back to Winchester will start at 4:30 in the afternoon.

Fred H. Scholl, Exalted Ruler of Winchester Lodge is in general charge of the committee which has George T. Davison as chairman and includes James J. Fitzgerald, Maurice Dinneen, Harry Moulton, Harry Doten, John McNally, James N. Clark, John D. Coakley, Norman V. Osborne, John J. McCarthy and William L. Cleary.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

From a handful of mail tumbled out a chain postal card (unsigned). The receiver was to come in for some misfortune if it was not copied and mailed before a given date, while to pan it along would bring good luck. Does any Everite believe that benefit can follow on sending these documents further or that it can be an act of ill omen to put them in the fire? The first chain letter 'The Spectator' saw was 25 years ago, and it requested a small gift to a certain charity. This card had no assigned beneficiary—it just called for repetition and begged somebody to help to keep the chain unbroken. Newspaper publicity has greatly reduced the number of these communications and but few Winchesterites are ever pestered with them.

A Winchesterite who has recently returned from a long railroad journey says when he hears about railroads needing money he wonders what they did with all that he paid for his ticket.

Some boys here in Winchester quit school at the 8th grade in order to get ahead and provide jobs for college graduates.

It does young people good to ripen their talents in the shade of obscurity, to study instead of going on exhibition. The Spectator is led to speak as he does because a 17-year-old Winchester miss with marked ability as a soprano soloist is anxious to go upon the concert stage. A few years of quiet industry and a slowly growing maturity will qualify a young artist for the real distinction which a precocious start, subject to all its distractions and excitements, will surely prevent. It is something for every talented young person in or out of Winchester to think about, this well-grounded theory of hard-work and slow beginnings, which is so established in the older countries, as against the impatience of the artistic impulse on this side of the water. From her retirement on the River, Madame Emma Calve recently said: "Too much publicity at an early age and not enough hard work are the ailments affecting the present generation of vocal students." Great singers are produced ever so slowly. A remark that applies to more things than singing.

Dr. Eugene Lyman Fiske, who has made a hobby of the life extension movement, wants birthdays abolished "because of their bad psychological effect." And there is something for every Winchesterite to think about. What is the psychological effect of watching the calendar and continually saying, "at my next birthday I shall be 40, 50, 60 or whatever it is, and the next one after that will land me just that much farther along?" And what would happen if people did not know how old they were and never gave the matter a thought? The calendar does have a powerfully morbid effect upon some individuals. There is no doubt about that; and everyone has to draw upon the resources of philosophy from time to time to induce a gentle narcotic against its subtle approaches and relentless suggestion. So Dr. Fiske may be right. To abolish the calendar and banish all birthdays to the limbo of the unknown, from which they are resurrected, anyway, only by the meddling interference of parents and friends, may be the best way to be rid of an evil that has always been annoying to the good women of Winchester and never exactly gratifying or helpful to anyone.

ACQUIRING A HAPPIER CREED

(Written for 'The Winchester Star')

We are men filled with trouble and discontent. We are not happy. We are not doing things that have done so much to cheer our fellowmen with blessing of the world has been sent. And the opportunity to be helped many a humble individual, in which? Always keep fresh in mind that our world is a place, indeed. That is an undid things hour by hour. That should and must be used to a far happier road. As the blossom climbs unto the flower, Eugene DeLam Willard

Full Moon and Boldness

Theodore H. Morgan, a federal customs inspector at Philadelphia, adopted the policy of having his hair cut only when the moon was full, as a means of warding off badness and he asserts the effect was so noticeable that half a dozen men in his organization did likewise with good results.

SAVINGS BANK ASSETS INCREASE

Assets of the savings banks in Massachusetts have increased materially since last fall, according to a comparative statement of condition issued yesterday by Roy A. Hovey, State Commissioner of Banks and Banking.

On June 30 the 196 savings banks in this State had total assets of $1,810,438,756.03, the report says. On Oct. 31 the assets were $1,776,324,706.89.

By far the largest single asset of the banks was the real estate loan account, with $991,279,538.69. Public funds, bonds and notes came next with $310,397,230.86. This sum represents a drop from $312,719,454.72 as of Oct. 31.

There were increases, among others, in the amount represented by stocks and bonds of trust companies, Federal Land Bank bonds, Boston Terminal Company bonds and loans on personal security.

Under liabilities, the banks had deposits on June 30 totaling $1,695,406,849.66. The total reported for Oct. 31 was $1,618,077,160.13.

There were 2,878,058 depositors on June 30, as compared with 2,827,160 on Oct. 31.

E. F. H. CLASS OUTING

Saturday, July 17, the members of the E. F. H. Class of the First Baptist Church, with their husbands and children enjoyed an all day outing as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Furlong of Norwood street at their summer home on Bakers Island.

The auto ride to Salem, the launch trip to the island, a tour of inspection, then clam chowder and all kinds of eats, then fishing; successful fishing, until the time for a dip and a swim followed by a sun bath; with all day long a cool refreshing breeze. Time for the return to Salem came all too soon.

Home! Yes, it is a mighty good place, but oh! Bakers Island and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Furlong has made us all long for another such outing.

"DEAREST ENEMY" AT ITS PEAK

Boston is the Only New England City that Will See the Revolutionary Musical Comedy this Season

"All spokes lead to the Hub," which is perhaps lucky, since Boston is the only city of New England which will have the opportunity of seeing "Dearest Enemy" this season. George Ford's spectacular production direct from the Nickerbocker Theatre, New York, with Helen Ford and Charles Purcell heading the original cast, has become Boston's pet musical comedy. The summer engagement of this metropolitan success is now at its peak at the Tremont Theatre, the roughest in the country, where the warm weather has had no visible effect upon the attendance. This is the eighth week of the Tremont engagement, and since the calendar cannot be stretched to accommodate late-comers, the time is short. "Dearest Enemy" is booked to open at the Illinois Theatre in Chicago on Labor Day, and the management allows an extra day for the long jump from the Hub to mid-Western metropolis. Therefore only a month more of the musical merriment at the Tremont is in store for countless comedy-lovers who are promising themselves a treat which they may miss unless they wake up and seize the opportunity now. Mail orders accompanied by checks are filled in order of their receipt; and the Boston agencies attend to telephone calls; the box office being too busy selling seats through the window to the wise "early birds." So don't "forget to remember" or you may miss "Dearest Enemy."

Famous Roman Legion

A legion was a corps of soldiers in the Roman empire. During the last century of the republic, that is, in the time of Julius Caesar and Augustus, the first emperor, a legion consisted of 6,200 foot soldiers besides from 700 to 1,000 horses. A legion was divided into ten cohorts, and every cohort into six centuries, with a standard guarded by ten men.

Sophisticated Kid

We often hear of children being sheltered from the wickedness of the world. They are not. The little wretches most accept the common fare and hear of plenty of wickedness, among themselves and in their homes. What a lot of wickedness I knew about before I was ten years old!—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Antlers of Deer

Deer antlers are shed each year, usually soon after the close of the breeding season, to be renewed the following spring. Sometimes antlers are straight, and unbranched, but usually there are branches, called tines or stags, and the number of these increases with age, so that the finest antlers are on fully matured antlers.

TANSEY'S FINE PITCHING NOT ENOUGH TO STOP CAMBRIDGE B. B. C.

The smooth working Cambridge B. B. C. proved too much for a patched up St. Mary's outfit last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field, winning 6-1 in a game which was chiefly characterized by the splendid pitching of Tansey, the heavy hitting of Dilworth in right field for the visitors and the all-around work of the Cambridge key-stone pair, Musey and Adem Elcewic.

The outstanding performance of the matinee was easily that turned in by St. Mary's star southpaw who held the hard-hitting boys from the university village to 6 well scattered bingles while striking out 14, a really notable performance. Two earned runs were made off his delivery while the locals threw away at least that number of chances to score in addition to the run they finally punched across.

St. Mary's was distinctly not at its best last Saturday with Mark Kelley, "Vin" Ambrose, "Nip" Chamberland, "Jim" Fitzgerald and the Dolan brothers out of the lineup. Big "Mex" was out of town, Ambrose was nursing a broken wrist sustained in practice, Chamberland could not leave his business, "Fitz" was in Maine with the Malden City Club while illness in the Dolan family kept the last named out of uniform. It was regrettable that all this cargo of grief should have been unloaded at a time when the local club needed its full strength to win and the showing which the boys made was under the circumstances very commendable.

Manager Melly was distinctly up against it at game time with only 7 men available. The veteran "Touchey" Gray was obtained at the last minute to play center field while "Bobby" Callahan was pressed into duty in right. All efforts to obtain a first baseman were futile and "Plata" Flaherty was sent to that station, while "Roy" McGrath took his place at the keystone sack. "Howie" Ambrose played his brother's position at 3rd with "Spike" O'Donnell at shortstop. This gave the club a man for every position but left field and after several refusals by local boys Carey, crack Woburn High gardener agreed to fill in. It was a sportsman-like thing for the latter to do and playing in civilian clothes without spikes he turned in a first rate performance.

The visitors couldn't see Tansey until the 3rd when a run came over as the result of a lousy triple to right field by Dilworth, ex-Cambridge Latin star. The squeeze play scored the runner and Stanley was safe at first when Tansey flubbed up his perfect bunt. Thereafter Francis had the heavy hitters at his mercy until the 7th when Cambridge put the game on ice without any doubt, scoring 3 unearned tallies on a flock of tough throws by the local infielders.

Fahey singled to left for a starter and moved along when Tansey issued a free ticket to Dilworth. Stanley rapped to Tansey who tossed to Ambrose, retiring Fahey at 3rd. At this point Francis had to bear down hard with the head of the batting list up and one of his sharp drops broke too quickly landing in the dirt in front of the plate. Melly partially stopped the ball but the runners advanced and there were men on second and third with only one away. Still the locals should have retired the side without a run. Elcewic topped a Tansey offering and bounced the ball at McGrath. With plenty of time to make his peg the latter threw high and wide to Melly who was unable to get the ball on Dilworth in time. Melly attempted to get Elcewic going to second and on his throw to O'Donnell Stanley got across. "Spike's" return peg was bad and when Stanley collided with Melly the ball rolled to the backstop allowing Elcewic to get all the way around from second. Tansey refused to crack under the pressure and forced Sullivan to roll out to Flaherty, fanning Halisy for the final out.

Two more trickled over in the 9th. Fahey got a life when Ambrose threw wildly after taking his hot grounder. He made second on the error and scored a moment later when Dilworth hustled out a hit through shortstop which rolled for a triple on the sun baked field. Tansey fanned Stanley, but Elcewic scored Dilworth with a hit past 3rd. Sullivan hit into a double play, Tansey to O'Donnell to Flaherty. St. Mary's scored its only run in the 9th. "Spike" O'Donnell tripled to left for a starter and Flaherty scored him with a clean single to center. The crowd yelled for a rally but it was no use as Melly, Ambrose and McGrath went out on infield rollers.

The locals had two good chances to score but threw them both away. In the 5th McGrath, first man up, reached second when Halisey muffed his pop fly in left near the foul line. Fahey took Carey's foul but "Bobby" Callahan punched a vicious single to right on which McGrath tried to score. He should have been held at 3rd as Dilworth had the ball and was set to throw as the runner came into that base. McGrath was our city block at the plate. In the 6th Tansey opened up with a hit past 1st and stole second for an auspicious start. O'Donnell helped the good work along with a ringing single to left, Tansey taking 3rd. On an attempted double steal Tansey was caught at the plate, Fahey to Elcewic to Fahey, the old, old short throw. It was just one of those cases where, had the runner scored he would have been a "smart" ball player, but as it was he was handed a dub by the wise ones on the benches.

In passing, we wish to say a good word for the umpiring of "Dick" McAdama. He missed some balls and strikes, it's true, but he moved around out there and kept the game well in hand.

HALL SQUARE AND CENTRAL THEATRES

Two monster programs, particularly suited for summer showing are scheduled for Locatelli's Ball Square and Central theatres for the coming week.

The first half of the week will present the Victor Flaming production, "The Blind Goddess," with Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Esmer Ralston and Louise Dresser featured, and "Lovey Mary," with Bessie Love and William Haines playing the leading roles. "The Blind Goddess" is a mystery-thriller, disclosing the hidden motive which may animate those whose business it is to prosecute and defend crime—the weakness and fallibility of judges, jurors, witnesses and circumstantial evidence. It is a marvelous story with the most sensational murder trial the screen has ever known as a smashing climax. "Lovey Mary" is the story of a little slavey, who dreams of the great things which story books tell about and who longs for them. Its story is based on the famous novel and stage play, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Miss Love is said to disclose talents in this picture which rival anything of a similar nature ever filmed.

The second half of the week will present the laugh classic "Wet Paint," with the inimitable Ramond Griffith in the stellar role. Ray, disappointed in love, sets out to marry the first girl he meets—and WOW! Tall ones, thin ones, fat ones, lean ones. Short ones, broad ones, in-between ones. He meets them all in "Wet Paint." It is the blue-streak of comedy, clever and colorful.

The companion picture will be "Three Weeks in Paris," with Matt Moore, Dorothy Devore and Willard Louis featured. As its name implies it is a picture which acts a fast pace in comedy, adventure and romance. Of special interest and as an added attraction the management has arranged to show the authentic film taken of Commander Byrd's successful trip to the North Pole. It is "America's Polar Triumph," a feat for every American to be proud of and no one should miss seeing these remarkably interesting and educational pictures.

Short picture subjects will be shown at every performance throughout the entire week.

FRANCIS TANSEY NEW PLAYGROUND INSTRUCTOR

Announcement was made by the local Park Board last week-end that it had appointed Francis Tansey of 81 Nelson street to the position of instructor at the town playground on Palmer street. The position was left vacant by the resignation of Tansey's older brother, Joseph, who had originally been chosen for the position.

Francis should do well in his new position as he is well versed in all branches of athletics besides having the pleasing personality so necessary to success in playground work. He is one of the most versatile athletes to graduate at the Winchester High School in many years, having starred at baseball, basketball and football besides being a crack gymnast during his undergraduate days. It was as a pitcher that he made his greatest reputation and he ranks with the best twirlers which the school has ever produced.

Since leaving high school Tansey has made good in the semi-pro ranks and has pitched some fine ball for Fore River in the Twilight League as well as for the Winchester Legion nine and the present St. Mary's C. C. team. He expects to enter a nearby prep school this fall.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB NOTES

The hot weather has made Mystic Lake a very popular evening resort. Club members are making good use of their canoes and those not having boats of their own are finding the club boats a very good means of escaping from the heat. One can usually find a breeze if they paddle out to the big lake.

The diving boat, moored in front of the club house is usually crowded evenings by swimmers. A few applications for membership have recently been received. Persons making application may have use of the club's facilities immediately upon submitting their applications accompanied by the customary initiation fee. This gives them use of the club up to the time of their actually being voted into regular membership.

For persons remaining in town during the hot summer months, this affords an opportunity to join Winchester's summer resort, without delay.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

There is a very great difference between the aristocracy of brains and that of birth and money.

Brace up, stand erect, strengthen your backbone and with it, your jaw bone.

Youth desires freedom from work, mature men desire health and strength to work.

There is a very great difference between what you think of yourself and what some folks think of you.

Any man who practices cruelty and injustice to others will in return get his full share of suffering.

OUR POLICEMEN

From the view point taken by the writer it is very evident our policemen are not human beings.

Because if they were we (The Town) would not put them in a traffic box 36x36 inches, and that is the condition under which the traffic officer at the center lives. Citizens, read and reflect. The traffic officer puts in live (5) hours at a stretch in that box 36x36 inches and has for company, an electric heater, a stool, and a control motor leaving about 15x15 inches of floor space for the man to stand on.

To add to his misery there is an overhead electric fan, which when in operation sends down the wind on his head and he takes a cold this means shortening and lost time. And how easily this could be remedied by an expenditure of a few dollars. We print yearly hundreds of copies of that needless medium of gossip (The Town Book) which goes into many homes, not as a necessity, but for idle curiosity, and embles Mrs. B. to read it over and find out if Mrs. X. is older or younger than her husband. Let us cut down on this expense and help by adding to the officers' comfort.

There are no better police officers in any section of the country than those of Winchester, so let us make the man in the box as comfortable as possible these torrid days. By giving him more room, a summer uniform, or at least permit him to take off his heavy blue coat, under all conditions, he is expected and must be agreeable. HOW CAN HE BE?

A Citizen

P. S.—There are still to be 8 weeks of summer. It is not yet too late to remedy conditions.

BEQUEST BENEFITS WINCHESTER HOME

July 20, 1926

To the Editor of the Star:
The Home for Aged People has received from the estate of Miss Alice F. Symmes the sum of $2533.82, to establish a fund in memory of her father and mother to be known as the "Luther Richardson Symmes and Elizabeth Ayer Symmes Fund." The Home had previously received a bequest of $1500 from her estate which became effective shortly after her death.

Miss Symmes was for many years a director of the Home for Aged People and her service in that connection was notable for her faithfulness and for her sympathy and tenderness in promoting the happiness and comfort of the occupants of the Home.

Her memory will be cherished by those who engaged with her in this work and thus became acquainted with the self-sacrifice and devotion to duty which were characteristic of her whole life.

WINCHESTER GIRLS AT CAMP ANDOVER

About 70 girls from 40 churches in greater Boston are attending the regular session of Camp Andover which opened at Andover last Friday for two weeks. The young campers, many of whom have attended previous sessions of the camp, are to be instructed in swimming, nature study, first aid and camp duties. According to the statement given out by Miss Adolphia M. Allen of Boston who is in charge of the camp there is a capacity attendance this year and among those who are there are 13 Winchester girls representing the First Baptist Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, the First Congregational Church, the Unitarian Church and the Church of the Epiphany.

Included in the Winchester delegation are the Misses Alice Crowell, Florence L. McKinnon, Helen A. McKinnon, Elizabeth Adriance, Deborah Gilbert, Gladys Mouradian, Winona Stevenson, Marjorie Brown, Helen Claflin, Gladys MacMillan, Isabel Healey, Roberta Healey and Barbara L. Locke.

Mr. Frank T. Hubley of this town chief engineer of the Luckenbach ss. "Horace," took a prominent part in controlling a bad fire which recently threatened his ship for three days while at sea. The blaze was discovered in the hold while the "Horace" was en route from New York to "Frisco" and was finally put out in the latter port. Chief Hubley reports a thrilling experience.

EMBLEM CLUB OUTING

About 50 members—all, in fact, who remained in town—boarded trolley cars, caught trains, and otherwise hustled to catch the 11.15 boat last Wednesday, in order to be present at the annual beach outing of the Club at Nantasket. And despite the torrid wave, the trip was a joyous one from beginning to end.

Shortly after arriving at the Dartmouth House, dinner was served by the genial hostess, Mrs. McGovern, who certainly understands the art of giving up a good wholesome repast. At the matinee whist, out on the cool veranda, Mrs. Esther Lawson won first prize; Alice Sullivan, second and Mrs. Jack McKenzie, third. Mrs. Ed. McKenzie was awarded a prize for the most losses and Mrs. Elsie Mobbs got the bulky prize.

After the bathing beauties got into costumes and a fine looking hussy lot they were—all sojourning in the beach, where the games were staged under the direction of Mr. Emily Scholl, Chairman; Mrs. Katherine Fallon, Mrs. Ella Green, Mrs. Mary McKenzie, Alice Sullivan and other members of the committee in charge. The slim ladies' race was won by Elina Larson, first; Mrs. Mabel Foley, second. Nearly everyone present could qualify for the stout ladies' race, but the referee decided in favor of Mrs. Mabel Larson, first; and Mrs. Emma Cullen, second. Too bad the management did not think to get a bathing-beauty prize, as many could qualify for that same. An agreeable surprise to all present was the arrival of three of the Providence Club sisters, Mrs. Eva T. Nott, Mrs. Henry J. McLaughlin and Mrs. Harry Bellamy, who motored up from their home city to renew acquaintance with the Winchester crowd. Owing to the long trip back, their stay was all too short, but it is hoped to stage a joint outing in the near future in which all the Emblem Clubs can participate. Most of our party were willing to "pull it a day" and go home on the 8.15 boat, but some few remained to take in the sights and indulge in dancing till the late boat home.

The next event will be the Elks' Kiddies' Day next Wednesday at Lynn Beach. Those who intend to go to care for the children should get in touch with President Anna W. Lochman, tel. 0756-W or Vice-President Emily A. Scholl, tel. 1731. All who have autos to put at the service of the party are urged to notify the management. Sandwiches are to be left at the Elks' room, Lyceum Building, the night before or very early Wednesday morning.

TEDESCO GOLFERS BEAT WINCHESTER

Rogers Gets Dence in 33½ to 29½ Victory

Telesco Country Club defeated Winchester, 33½ to 29½, yesterday in the first team match held at Telesco in years. One of the features of the match was a 235-yard drive to the green on the seventh hole by Tom Rogers of the home club. He sank his putt for a deuce.

Winslow of the Telesco team also connected with a healthy drive. On the 15th hole his second shot landed three inches from the cup. Sinking his putt gave him an eagle three. There was a one-stroke handicap on this hole, which brought him a two for the par five hole.

READING TOWN TEAM HERE TOMORROW

St. Mary's C. C. baseball team will have as its opponents tomorrow the Reading Town Team which has been going along nicely in the independent ranks this season.

According to all reports the visitors will bring a good club to Winchester as they number in their lineup several former high, and prep school luminaries. Their battery will be composed of either "Onie" Carroll, ex-Woburn High star or Runge of Reading, pitcher, and "Nig" White, Stoneham's leading citizen, behind the bat.

Captain Melly expects to have Mark Kelley on the pitching rubber and a much stronger lineup throughout than was the case last Saturday. Game starts at 3:15 on Manchester Field.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by Giuseppe Maggio and Margaret Profenavano, both of 37 Florence street, and by Albert Phineas Smith of Myopia road and Lillian Cole of Bellevue, Ia.

The popular new Weaver balls are awaiting your inspection at the Star office.

TRUCK STRIKES ELECTRIC IN SQUARE

An Eastern Massachusetts street car and a big Atlantic & Pacific delivery bus were in collision in the square yesterday morning at 6:45 o'clock.

The electric car was coming from Woburn along Main street and had reached a point at the junction of Main and Park streets when the big truck, which was going in the same direction, attempted to pass by. Cutting in front of the car the truck sideswiped it, causing considerable excitement among the passengers.

Among them was officer James Farrell of the police. He alighted from the car as soon as possible but the driver of the truck had not stopped and was rapidly leaving the vicinity. Looking ahead the officer saw a brother patrolman, officer Charles Harrold, and signalled him to stop the truck. This was done and the driver of the vehicle gave his name as John H. Shurten of 40 Woodchiff street, Roxbury. He will be summoned into court to answer to a charge of driving so as to endanger the lives of the public.

The electric car was in charge of Conductor John H. Fay of 21 Stevens place, Melrose. It was not damaged beyond a pool sized dent in the front end. No one was injured.

LEON: THE TOWN WITH ROMANTIC STREET CARS

Nearly a thousand people were reported drowned when a dam broke and a wall of water descended upon Leon, fifth city of Mexico. President Calles has sent a relief train to aid the sufferers.

Blotting out of the center of Leon is a serious catastrophe to Mexico, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Comparatively it is a greater disaster than the Johnstown or Dayton floods, because Leon is one of the most important manufacturing centers of Mexico.

Leon's extensive tanneries, cotton and woolen mills, and other manufactures were close to the mountain stream which runs through the town. Gomez, the river is called, and when its waters broke loose it sent a flood through the heart of what has been called, "the happiest and busiest city of Mexico." Into the wash of the flood the workmen's houses of adobe earth dissolved like lumps of sugar in hot tea.

Sow and Reap at the Same Time
Citizens of this industrial city cannot be held to account for not guarding against such a menace. After Leon had been swept, in 1888, by a similar flood which drowned 200 people, retaining walls and dikes more than a mile in length were built to protect the city. But apparently these walls could not cope with the rush of water.

Leon, full name Leon de los Aldamas, is on the main line of the railroad from Mexico City to El Paso, in the westernmost corner of Texas, and has a population of 58,000. It is 250 miles northwest of Mexico City, and therefore lies in the famous Mexican highlands where altitude has denied the rights of latitude. A region that ought to be steamingly tropical or a hot desert has been relegated to a temperate zone climate. It is not uncommon to see barley being sown in one field while it is being reaped in the next.

Leon lies in such a fertile valley that agriculture holds its own easily against the competing demands of mining and manufacturing. Irrigation however, is not once necessary and picturesque. The fertile valley round about is dotted with small reservoirs mirroring the clear blue skies.

Where Mexican Sables Come From

Citizens of Leon are proud of its industry. "We are rich," they tell travelers, "but we are workers." They are proud of La Hornigia (The Ant) the largest tannery in Leon and preeminent in Mexico. They grow enthusiastic over the cotton and woolen and silk mills using modern New England machinery. Yet large smokestacked factories are not to be seen, for two reasons. First, that electric power is the free gift of mountain streams and second, much of the manufacturing is done in the home. The bridges and saddles for which Mexico is famous are made largely at Leon. Their beauty lies in the tooling, the embroidery and the intricate silver ornaments. This is a task for the craftsman and like the craftsman of the Middle Ages, he works, in Leon, at his home.

Names of the garments made in Leon are new to the average American. Offertent fashions reign so there is the serape, the robazo, the manta, and the poncho. The robazo is the peon woman's equivalent of the expensive mantilla of the upper classes. The manta is the white cotton garment worn by laborers everywhere. The poncho and serape are woolen shawls which serve as overcoat, blanket or raincoat as the need arises.

Rolling Along the Circuit of Romance
A belle of Leon is very particular that her father shall live somewhere on Leon's street car line. It isn't that she is concerned that her father have easy transportation hack and forth to work. It isn't that she worries about bringing the family supplies home from market. Street cars in Leon are vehicles of romance. Despite the Hollywood movies the senior does not come on a prancing mustang to his seniorita in this corner of Mexico. He comes by street car.

Wooring is called "playing the bear" in Mexico. Once a young blood of most Mexican towns has fixed his fancy on a girl he stands long hours before her house. Sometimes he follows her as she promenades, but at a respectful distance. If his attentions are encouraged he receives an invitation to call with the family present during the session. But in Leon the belles and beaux begin differently. The street car line in the city makes a loop. The beaux, therefore, find it expedient to board a street car and ride past the house of their beloved. Not once but again and again and round and round. And as the car rolls along each watches his especial house for a signal. For the girls, of course, the custom introduces a delightful element of expectation.

The Upkeep

Medical science may add 20 years to the average life. It is announced. It should also do something about adding to its income so it will be in a position to enjoy those added years.

Not Really Hemp

Manila hemp, which is used in making rope, is not hemp at all, but a coarse fiber, right to the feet long, found in the stalk of the abaca, a fruitless sort of banana plant.

CATALONIA: SPANISH PROVINCE WITH A FLAG AND LANGUAGE OF ITS OWN

Accept a position with the government when the government offers it, or have your lands confiscated, and your citizenship canceled. Spain recently passed that edict in the Province of Catalonia.

The odd spectacle of men being compelled to take lucrative government positions has an explanation in the peculiar relation of Catalonia to Spain says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The geography of Spain is better known in terms of its cities than its sections. Catalonia can be placed readily by calling it the province of which Barcelona is the head city.

Located in a Spanish Ireland. Catalonia might seem to be a Spanish Ireland. Still Catalonia might seem to be a Spanish Ireland.

Poland has declared a state of siege in Eastern Galicia as a result of disturbances in Lwow (Lemberg), Tarnow and other cities of the region. Taking advantage of the Polish upheaval centering in Warsaw, Ukrainians in Galicia called mass meetings to demand the convocation of a National Assembly.

Galicia is Poland's easternmost province, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. But a twinge in Galicia is more serious than the growing pains that the newly reconstituted Republic experiences on other borders, Silesia, the Danzig corridor, Russia, Lithuania and at Tishren, Czechoslovakia.

Shrines in Salt Mines

In the galleries of the salt mines at Wierzbicka safe from shot and shell are many old shrines of Galicia. These mines have been operated since the 11th or 12th century. There are now seven levels of galleries. The mines are a veritable city which need be deserted only for sleeping quarters. There is a magnificent crystal salt ball room 340 feet long and 200 feet high where the village celebrates festivals. It is lighted by chandeliers of huge glittering salt crystals. St. Stanislaus and St. Clement stand like Lot's wife—solid salt. The subterranean cathedral of St. Anthony dates back to the 17th century. There are lakes in which ferries ply back and forth and a complete restaurant. A pony-drawn railway system serves the mines themselves. All this in the safest place in Galicia—below ground.

Possession of Galicia is complicated by the rise of a new resource in the world. The curious black substance which the Ukrainian peasants used for years to lubricate the groaning axles of their farm carts, the world has now raised to high estate. Oil seepage pointed the way to petroleum discoveries in Galicia. Although the field has not produced any remarkable gushers, many companies now employ experienced Polish workmen to produce the five million barrels plus per year. They place Poland eighth among the petroleum producing countries of the world.

Where and what is Eastern Galicia? First of all it was the biggest bite in Austria's 590 miles on the rim of the Poland pie neatly divided and entirely consumed by Russia, Germany and Austria in 1795. Today Eastern Galicia is a rough rectangle of approximately 20,000 square miles. If it were desirable and possible to incorporate Eastern Galicia in the United States we could insert it in place of Vermont and New Hampshire. A better fit could be made, area of area, landscape for landscape, by planting it in the western half of Ohio.

The Ruthenians are Farmers
Lwow is the capital of Galicia. It lies 200 miles southeast of Warsaw and like Warsaw it is strongly Polish in its population. What of Lwow is not Polish is mostly Jewish. The Ukrainians or, more properly, the Ruthenians, comprise a majority of Galicia's population but do not control the cities. They are farmers.

Most newspaper accounts and many books by travelers into Galicia use the names Ukrainian and Ruthenian interchangeably. This is correct and yet incorrect. A Ruthenian is a Ukrainian. Ukraine is that vast steppe of southern Russia stretching in endless rolling and treeless prairie from the Caspian and the Black Sea west to Poland. On these grasslands live the Ukrainians, quite different from the melancholy and more stolid north of White Russians. They number about 40,000,000. Galicia is the western outpost of the Ukraine.

Nothing is more eloquent of the history of Galicia than the fact that its oldest shrines and buildings are underground. Everything above ground is relatively new because invader has stepped on the heels of invader. What they did not burn they shattered with cannon. Some say that Nature set aside Galicia for crops but history shows that its chief utility has been as a battlefield.

SOME HINTS FOR THE OCEANIC TENDERFOOT

Increased facilities for crossing the Atlantic at reasonable cost, prosperity at home, and cheap money abroad are combining to send a larger army of American tourists to Europe this spring and summer than any, probably, that has ever invaded the Old World in a like period. Many of these travelers, familiar enough with their Pullmans and river steamers, will find conditions on an ocean liner disconcertingly strange. A bulletin from the National Geographic Society introduces the "ocean tenderfoot" to this new environment in which he will be confined from five to 10 days.

Getting off is an exciting matter, says the bulletin, and the temptation is to spend the last hour or so near the gangplanks, chatting with their friends and watching the milling throng of travelers and well-wishers in holiday spirit. If you are wise, however, you will invest say 20 minutes of this time for your own future comfort. Take a turn around the promenade deck and select the neighborhood in which you would like to have your deck chair. You will not find distinguishing numbers on the chairs, but where you would least expect them, on the ceiling above.

Selecting a Steamer Chair. You probably will want your chair on the starboard (or right) side going to Europe and on the port (or left) side returning, for these are the sunny sides. Having decided on the location you desire and noticed the neighboring numbers, look up the deck steward and try to persuade him to allot you a chair somewhere in the neighborhood. This functionary has an office, on the larger liners, usually a little room opening on to the promenade deck to the rear (or aft) as they say on shipboard. There will be a fee, of course, for the chair and a steamer rug. If you are traveling with friends you will wish to make this a joint arrangement so as not to be separated.

Which the bulletin hints. These are the town-criers and newspapers on shipboard. There are little daily papers, too, on the larger liners. Usually there will be a bulletin board in the main companionway, on the promenade deck level, another outside the dining saloon, and a third, perhaps, in the smoking room. All affairs of general interest that are to take place on the ship will be announced there and a brief digest of the world news from the radio room will appear each afternoon.

Pilot Talks. Mail Rack. Be sure to ask for your mail at the ship's postoffice as soon after you go aboard as it is open. There are certain to be "steamer letters" for you, and some of these you may wish to answer by notes to be taken back by the pilot an hour or so after you sail. The ship's staff is tremendously busy at sailing time and for many hours thereafter, and if you wait for your mail or a notice to be sent to your stateroom you may be out a day before you get it.

Another thing to ask for early—usually at the purser's office—is a passenger list, printed ashore from the stateroom reservation lists. A copy will be delivered to you in due time, but you can have it hours ahead by merely asking. From it you can find whether you have acquaintances aboard, and if so, look them up.

Choosing a Table Seat. Your seat in the dining saloon is usually arranged for, unless otherwise announced, at the first meal after sailing. Go early to this meal before too many others have had first choice. On the big liners you can find an arrangement to suit almost any sized party. If you are traveling alone and crave solitude you may have a seat at a table for two—quite alone if the ship is not crowded. If you prefer company tell the Steward so frankly and he will place you at a table with others.

Cheerful lullie blasts order your life on many of the big liners, but you must learn what they mean or they will lead you hopelessly astray. The last in the reasonably early morning, say at 8 o'clock ship's time, means either of two things. If you are an early riser and are taking a pre-breakfast walk on deck, it is a signal that your food is ready. If you are a late sleeper (and an ocean voyage is the chance of a lifetime for laziness) it means that you can take 40 more winks and still be in time for a late breakfast; or that, with a feeling of magnificent luxury you can drawlily decide to let breakfast go hang, while you turn over to sleep as many more hours as you like. Make the most of your week. There are no commuters' specials to catch, no offices to be reached at 9, no time-clocks, literal or metaphorical to be punched. The lullie blows serenely in whether you sleep or wake.

If you hear a bugle blast at about 10:30 pay no attention to it. It is not for you and your fellow passengers, but for the ship's crew. It signifies that the captain is making an unexpected inspection of some part of his domain.

Hot Bath Unheralded. Having made the acquaintance of the breakfast lullie, the "ocean tenderfoot" might well think the 10:30 bugle call connected in some way with the hot bath that appears about this time for those in deck chairs. But this comes quite unheralded—a mere detail in carrying out the ship management's evident intention to keep the passengers continually busy with food. The food schedule on a big liner runs something like this: Breakfast, 8 to 10; hot broth, 10:30 or 11; luncheon, 1 to 2:30; after-luncheon coffee, 2 to 3; afternoon tea and cakes 4 to 5; dinner, 7:30 to 9; after-dinner coffee, 8:30 to 9:30; sandwiches in the smoking room, 10 to 11.

The second bugle for passengers blows at 1 o'clock and means that luncheon is then ready. At 7 p. m. the bugle sounds again. But do not rush to the dining saloon. It is simply a signal that it is time to dress for dinner! At 7:30 the bugle quite outdoes himself in the cheeriness of his call to the chief prandial occasion of the day.

The only other major signal of the day on shipboard is the blowing of the whistle exactly at noon, ship's time. On the larger liners, at least, the whistle is heard at no other time unless there is a dense fog. The whistle is blown for a double purpose at noon: to signal the time, and to test the whistle itself.

Keeping Ship's Time. You must watch your time carefully on shipboard. On the trip to Europe you will lose five hours. What the loss is each 24 hours depends on the speed. On the fastest liners it amounts to an hour a day. At some places on each ship—usually in the main companionway, and often near the purser's office—is a large clock below which is the sign: "This clock will be moved on (back on the return voyage) blank minutes at midnight. It is well to pay your respect to this time piece en route to bed each night and to make the change then and there. Otherwise you may miss your morning engagements with both steward and friends by from 45 to 60 minutes.

Don't fancy you can stand at the rail and see the traffic of the Seven Seas go by on your way to Europe. The day of crowded steamer lanes is no more. Now two tracks are "staked out" in the ocean for ships: one east-bound and one west-bound. On one of its most recent voyages to Europe, the huge Majestic was seemingly almost as isolated as Columbus' little fleet. It sighted a tramp steamer the second day out from New York. There was no additional visual evidence that other ships sail the Atlantic until the big vessel approached the English Channel only a few miles from her destination.

MILESTONES ON 400,000 MILES OF AMERICAN HIGHWAYS

Driving 12 hours a day at the average speed of 30 miles an hour, an automobile could cover the tourable highways in the United States and nearly Canada in three years and 16 days. This estimate is based on the 400,000 miles of highway catalogued in a current automobile guidebook. Yet when the "horseless carriages" first appeared 30 years ago it was a problem to find roads on which they could run.

We are riding up the crest of the third renaissance of American road building, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. "Mound builders, the mysterious vanished tribes in the Mississippi Valley, laid the first roads that were built in North America.

Good Roads Versus Historic Roads. The second high point in highway construction was the rise of trucking roads to serve the nation expanding westward. Of these the best example is the Lancaster to Philadelphia Valley Pike, now incorporated into the Lincoln Highway. Begun in 1792 the truck-subscription Lancaster Pike with its nine toll gates, was the first stone-surfaced highway in America. The impetus it gave to road building faded after 1830 in the face of the advancing steel of railroads. Road building slumped for 75 years until the automobile brought in the most notable era of turnpike construction ever seen in any nation in all time.

A slightly different version of road evolution was given by a backwoods Kentuckian when asked who built the roads in his State. "The huffer, the ingin and the engineer," he replied. If the question is location of American roads, his answer, except for pronunciation, stands correct far most of the United States.

The increasing interest Americans are giving to the things which come down to us from our young past, colonial houses, colonial furniture and Indian relics, has not yet spread to roads. They remain to America with less luster than any other type of treasure from the past. But the tourist is still more interested in a good road than an historic road.

Though the traveler may ignore them, the ghosts of the "buffer, the ingin," and the pioneer crowd turnpikes like the National Old Trail. Where it crosses the pass from Cumberland, Maryland, over the watershed to Uniontown, Pennsylvania, the buffalo herd first plowed a path to grazing valleys in Virginia. The Indian found it a good route for hunting and war so when the first English penetrated the West they called it Nemacolin's Path, giving it the name of a famous Delaware Indian chief. Braddock sought it out when he backed a road toward Fort Duquesne (Pittsburgh). Some say the fame for Braddock's road ought to swallow the infancy of Braddock's defeat. Not for 25 years did another wheeled vehicle push over the road heaved for the wagon trains of the English and colonial armies. Braddock's road became the National Road, financed by Congress that the Conestoga wagons going West might have easier going. Then came the early railroad. And now smooth macadam.

When "Travel" Was "Travail". It is difficult to find a person who does not "just love to travel." The forefathers spelled it "travail." The vast difference between journey's then and now made necessary a new definition, and the new definition a new spelling.

Any passenger on the back seat who grumbles at the bumps finds one to chide at his discomfort in Capt. Basil Hall, an English traveler, in America about 1827: "Horrible corduroy roads again made their appearance in a more formidable shape," he wrote of a journey, "by the addition of deep, inky holes, which almost swallowed up the forewheels of the wagon and hatched its hinder axle-tree. The joggling and plunging to which we were now exposed, and occasionally the bang when the vehicle reached the bottom of one of these abysses, were so new and remarkable that we tried to make a good joke of them. I shall not compare this evening's drive to trotting up or down a pair of stairs, for in that case there would be some kind of regularity, but with us there was no wavering, no pause, and when we least expected a jolt, down we went, smack! dash! crash! forging, like a ship in a head sea.

Now for the driver of an automobile. A model of calmness is to be found in a Kentucky coach driver: "Don't be afraid, sirs," he told his passengers, "it is not bad, it's right good going; it ain't a going to swim the horses no how." "Anything seems to be a good road where the horses will not have to swim," an English passenger replied. "Why bless you," said the backwoodsman, "this ain't no part of a priming to places that I've seed afore, no how. I've seed race paths in a worse fix than this."

Wooden Roads of a Wooden Country. A wooden country, the pioneers called it and a destination for much of the wood was in the roads. When a trucker's testing pole revealed a mud hole too deep he cut logs and filled it up. The first improved roads were the corduroy roads. Anyone can duplicate a corduroy road experience by driving down a railroad track bed without tires on the wheel rims. The plank road was invented at Toronto and first used in the United States at Syracuse. It consisted of planks three inches thick, laid for a single lane with a dirt turn out.

The rise and decline of a State are better measured by its rails than by any other criterion, says Helaine Belloc. And it is apparent that as America's roads run, so runs its history; the plains roads of the Far West marked only by oxen skulls and camp fires; the creek roads of the Illinois Corn Belt where the pioneers counted upon water to wash away the gumbo soil that clung to the wagon wheels; the splendid oyster shell roads of coast counties of the southern States; Ormond Beach sand road where the automobile speed record was set; the salt roads of Great Salt Lake, the desert road below sea level in Death Valley; the Columbian Highway, that Grand Corniche road of the West; the Susquehanna Road that fills the canal which was expected to connect the Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic coast; the Lehigh Valley Road that runs downhill for 30 miles on an old railroad grade; and the beautiful avenues of New England where elms that witnessed Indian massacres shade fresh, white concrete, and many, many others.

Highways That Were Highways. Modern highways are conspicuous for their few detours. If a tree fell across a narrow trail, if the branches got too thick, if wagons churned too deep a mud hole, if a flood encroached upon the path, if a forest fire clogged the trace, the pioneer had to detour. Sometimes there were as many as five or six paths paralleling each other, now joining, now crossing, now parting.

Highways we call our modern turnpikes although most of them are low ways down a valley. Indians knew both highways and low ways. The latter were used only in summer. Highways or ridge roads along the watersheds were the favored lines of travel. How poorly they were marked may be judged by the unfortunate incident of President Adams and his wife losing their way in the forest while approaching Washington from Baltimore.

The Mowhawk Trail of today was the old Iroquois Trail on the watershed between Lake Erie and the Hudson and Delaware River valleys and it connected the sections of the Long House of the warring Five Nations. The Lakes to Sea Highway from Erie, Pennsylvania to Franklin is the old Venango Trail to the headwaters of the Ohio. Later it was called Shun Pike. The Lincoln Highway through Ohio follows for a distance The Great Trail, once the most important travel route in the Middle West connecting Pittsburgh and Detroit. The Atlantic and Pacific Highway in West Virginia follows the line of the bloody War Trail of Nations; the Yellowstone Trail in Ohio was the Indian's lake Shore Trail; the Kittanning Path, a wagon road for pioneers, is incorporated into the William Penn Highway. In the Far West the Oregon Trail is still the Oregon Trail but the Atlantic and Pacific Highway follows the original Santa Fe Trail. Over the present Meridian Trail from Waco, Texas, to Wichita, Kansas were driven the vast herds of cattle from south Texas a thousand miles to the rail head.

It has been suggested that the Indians and buffalo probably used the railroad, so closely does the line from Grafton to Parkersburg, West Virginia, follow the old trail. Remnants of it may still be seen, according to reports, crossing the ridges directly over the tunnels cut for the railroad.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

IF IT'S DONE WITH COLD

Leaders in the industry predict that it is only a question of time until homes will be cooled with gas chilled air in summer just as they are heated by gas in the winter time.

How can this be—gas for cooling as well as for heating?

Take gas refrigeration as an explanation. Gas heat is used to vaporize ammonia. This vapor passes through a tank of brine, and intense cold is produced. This cold will even freeze water into crystal clear ice, for table use, and produces a dry, wholesome atmosphere in the refrigerator, which keeps all foods fresh and appetizing.

Gas refrigeration is being used in hundreds of American homes this summer. Like all gas processes, it is clean, efficient, dependable and most economical in the end.

WHEN THE OHIO GETS TO BE NINE FEET DEEP

Nine feet of water in 1929 for 968 miles from Pittsburgh to Cairo. That aim of the Ohio River Valley, it is announced, is two-thirds accomplished. Dams recently completed by the Engineering Corps of the War Department now assure nine-foot water for 604 miles from Pittsburgh to Louisville, Ky.

The first hundred years apparently are the hardest in the development of the Ohio, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Next year, 1927, will be the 100th anniversary of the Government's efforts to improve the Ohio which began with channel clearing in 1827. The year 1929 will be the 50th anniversary of the first of the 52 dams and locks which are expected to make the Ohio more useful as a waterway.

Canoeing Earliest Traffic There will be celebrations of the Ohio's anniversaries. Probably there will be flotillas of boats. Each of the four great cycles of the Ohio's life as a waterway is known as a boat. But what a motley collection! The only thing they have in common is that they float. For a hundred years after the Ohio's discovery by La Salle in 1670, the native Indian canoe reigned supreme. The flatboat ruled for 50 years. Then boat building flowered in the building of "floating palaces," steamboats. But the Civil War stopped that. The Ohio River of today is chiefly a river of barges.

The Ohio River's story falls easily into pageants. Land with Monsieur Celoron de Bienville at the bank where the Scioto comes in to the Ohio. Watch him bury at the foot of a great tree an inscribed lead plate he brought from Montreal. His 200 Indians and soldiers of France have drawn up their canoes on the shore. They stand in battle array. Monsieur Celoron hammers an iron plate with the arms of France to the tree. That will warn the world and the English in particular, he hopes, that this is property of the King of France. Keep off!

Monsieur Celoron writes a speech prepared by La Salle for such occasions. It ends with a lusty shout, "Vive le Roi." "Vive le Roi!" shout the soldiers of France in battle array and the startled silence of the woods echoes the French shout. Monsieur Celoron and his 200 paddled in the name of furs as well as Kings of France but such a river could not waste its strength forever on the luxury of fur.

The Kentucky "Broadhorn" The stage of the next Ohio pageant is about 40 feet long and 12 feet wide. It is the deck of a Kentucky broadhorn. If this flatboat had a roof over the whole "deck" instead of half it would be a New Orleans broadhorn. A boat must be made better to go all the way to New Orleans. The three families who have built this flatboat are going only as far as Marietta. Under the roof one woman feels wood in a small clay fire-place. Others busy themselves preparing the evening meal. They work amid a clutter of chests and chairs and the simple needs of a pioneer household.

They brought these previous possessions from New England in Conestoga wagons over the interminable ridges of the Appalachians to McKeesport. The families built the flatboat at McKeesport. It will never come back. The deck and the eight-foot sides will be the floors for their cabins in Marietta.

One man is at the stern with a 40-foot steering oar. A lanky lay in the bow holds a "gauge," a short bar for use in swift water. In one hand he has a tin horn—every boat carries a horn. As the evening mists close down the boy blows the horn to warn any craft ahead. The reverberating blast of the horn is the echo and answer to "Vive le Roi." There are two 20-foot sweeps on each side of the flatboat. But these are for emergencies. The Ohio offers free transport on its swift current to any settler who will try his luck in the Valley of the Mississippi, the largest valley in the world capable of habitation by man.

Chaney of the River Flatboats of the Ohio were to the Middle West what the "iron horse" was to the Far West after the Civil War.

As they float down the river the "Pilgrims of the Ohio" sing: "O, the river is my, the channel is deep, The wind blows steady and strong, As they row their boats along, (chorus) Down the River (chorus) Down the River (chorus) Call Down the G.H.G."

"The steamboats were finer than anything on shore," says Mark Twain, who is the most entertaining authority of the next and most golden age of the Mississippi waterways. The third pageant begins with the launching of the first steamboat at Brownsville, Pa. in 1811.

"Compared with superior dwelling-houses and first-class hotels in the Valley," writes the beloved humorist, "they were palaces." They tallied with the citizen's dream of magnificence. . . . chimney tops cut to counterfeit a spraying crown of plumes pilothouse, hurricane deck, boiler-deck, guards, all garnished with white wooden filigree work of fanciful patterns, gilt deer horns over the big bell, oil pictures on every stateroom door, big chandeliers every little way, each an April shower of glittering glass-drops.

At Cincinnati, on the Ohio, Mark Twain embarked on his career as a river steamboat pilot. The war which wiped out the steamboat era took his job too. At one time two-thirds of the steamboat tonnage of the United States was on the Middle West rivers. On the Ohio and other Mississippi tributaries there were more steamboats than in all the ports of Great Britain.

Few people see the modern pageant of the Ohio. They glimpse the river from a Pullman car window and thus confirm by vision a geography lesson of their teens about a twisting line on the map. The pageant is spread at any one of the locks between Pittsburgh and Cairo; locks which are 110 feet wide (the width of Panama Canal locks) and 600 feet long. Each lock is linked to the opposite bank by a "house of cards" collapsible dam. A series of panels, usually four feet wide, propped up by heavy struts, breaks the current.

When the river is in flood above the nine-foot level a barge releases the props. The panels fall flat to the river bottom. When the river drops the dam is "fished" up into position again. The stage set, the chief actor in the Ohio's modern pageant is a staunch tow boat steaming 'round the bend. Like a hen with too many chicks it approaches the lock dragging 12 barges four abreast. They are loaded not with fur, not with immigrants. They are not "floating palaces." They carry coal from Kanawha.

WRESTLING A RICH DOMAIN FROM THE GRECIAN MOSQUITO

American engineers have recently sailed from New York to direct the reclamation of the Vardar River marshes. Backed by an American loan of $2,500,000, they expect to win a victory over the greatest enemy to progress in historic Macedonia, the mosquito.

Everyone is familiar with the heroic part the United States Navy played in helping to move 300,000 Greek refugees in two weeks, out of the inferno at Smyrna, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from their headquarters at Washington, D. C. Reclamation of the Vardar marshes, is solid, constructive work by which Americans are finishing that Smyrna task.

Out of the reclaimed flood plain of the Vardar will be carved farms for thousands of Greeks deported from Turkey. For there are still many of that army of 1,136,000 refugees who must have land. Twelve acres, experts say, is the minimum for a family to live on, but many refugee huts are set down in two or three acre patches. Without American and British charity starvation would invade Macedonia.

To Dry Up Two Lakes When the American engineers land at Saloniki they will be at the mouth of the Vardar. They will also be at the head of the main corridor from the Mediterranean Sea directly into the heart of the Balkans. The Vardar, although only 200 miles long, is the most important stream in these, the stormiest states of Europe. It has carved a channel for itself and a roadway for men through the jumble of mountains and valleys.

Greece, by international agreement, gives Yugoslavia (post war Serbia) free access to the Aegean Sea down the Vardar. Recently Yugoslavia has raised loud protests that her Vardar stock trains take 30 days to go 30 miles from the south Yugoslav border to Saloniki free port.

Reclamation plans call for the draining of two lakes, Arjan and Amatovo. They lie end to end along the Vardar and measure together about 15 miles. In turning two lakes into farm lands, the engineers will be speeding the process of Nature. Most farm sites in these scrambled mountains where there is any agriculture worth writing about are lake beds abandoned by their lakes.

Quinine by the Ton Lakes Arjan and Amatovo are shallow pools with broad mosquito marshes. They have been picked up by mud released by the Vardar when it hursts through the last chain of hills. The lakes are a handle to the Vardar delta which unfolds fan-wise in a green swamp 20 miles from tip to tip. Saloniki is at the western tip. The delta in fact goes by the name of Saloniki Campagna. The name recalls the more famous Campagna of Italy north of Rome, once the granary of the Imperial City, to-day a malarial waste. Indeed, it is a question which Campagna raises the most vicious mosquitoes. Fifteen tons of quinine were prescribed for the refugee camp that lived in the tent city at Saloniki. Malaria spread by mosquitoes has decimated the wits of those who try to cultivate the rich Vardar soil—that is those who survive. So if the American engineers can do for the Saloniki Campagna what Goethals did for Panama, southern Macedonia may again earn its reputation, "the storehouse of the Balkans."

Invasion of modern engineering in the homeland of Alexander the Great will, it is to be regretted, conflict with a most primitive and picturesque people, the Vlachs. Added to the complex Balkan human equation of Albanian, Serb, Rumanian, Turk, Bulgarian, Greek, Spanish speaking Jew, and Mohammedan Jew, the Vlach fraction discourages solution. But there are 600,000 Vlachs in the Balkans. A few thousand of them have used Vardar delta grass lands for years upon years.

Progress Clashes with the Primitive The Vlachs are a mystery race. Their own name for themselves is Arumani, similar to Rumanian. Their dialect, like the Rumanian language, is based on Roman roots. Are they descendants of Roman colonists? Are they some barbaric clan conquered by Rome and culturally tattooed with the indelible mark of Rome? Rumania naturally has laid claim to the Vlachs from time to time as her nationals, but those in North Greece and the Vardar region are Hellenized. The Vlach is a shepherd possessing sheep and goats. He is also a nomad. Even as the Laplander drives his reindeer to the Baltic swamps in the winter, and as the Bakhtiari of Persia bring their stock from the mountain pastures to the Tigris flood plain before snow flies, so the Vlach seeks the Vardar. He comes after the mosquito has shut up shop and leaves for his permanent Vlach villages in the Pindus Mountains before the dangerous insect soars abroad in spring. The Vlach has depended upon free pasture in the Saloniki Campagna. Draining will bring permanent settlement so we shall again witness the clash of progress with the primitive.

You can use the new place cards again and again. They're practical as well as artistic. See them at Wilson the Stationer's.

English Criminal Custom

Hue and cry is the old English common law process of pursuing "with horn and with voice" from township to township, and county to county all robbers and felons. The pursuit of a felon was aided by a description of him in the Hue and Cry, a publication established for advertising felons in England in 1710.

Origin of Hat Unknown

It is difficult to state just when hats were first worn, and there is no record as to where or when the first hat was made. The first modern hat, as we know this article of men's wear, was made in Paris in 1804 by a Swiss manufacturer, but it was not until 40 years thereafter that the French adopted any sort of a head covering.

Last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock as Milton Clark of Malden was driving a Ford coupe south along Main street he was obliged to swerve his machine sharply to the left to avoid hitting a Nash touring car, driven by Miss Margaret Stevens of Winthrop street, which was backing out of the Metropolitan Garage. As Clark swung out, his machine skidded and crossing the road struck the curb, breaking its left rear wheel and bending its mudguard. The driver was uninjured.

A slight accident occurred on Chisholm road last Monday when a Ford touring car, operated by James L. Kenney of 67 Summer street, Stoneham and a Jewett sedan, owned by Frank L. Knight of 24 Moreland road, Somerville, and operated by Grace Gaudreau of the same address, were in collision there. Kenney reported that he was reversing his car when the Jewett was driven behind him in such a way as to make it impossible to avoid striking it. The damage to both machines was slight.

The Massachusetts Department of Conservation, Divisions of Fisheries and Game, at the suggestion of the Board of Selectmen, has appointed George M. Byrne as fish and game warden for the Town of Winchester.

The town has finally obtained a clear title to the land which is to be used for a playground on Loring avenue. The signatures of Mr. and Mrs. Giovanni Zaffina, of 14 Hill street, the last of the property holders to sign clear, were obtained by the Town Clerk last Friday evening.

The long awaited direction signs have finally arrived at the Town Yard and are to be set up at once at strategic points along the various through streets of the community. The 25 signs with their posts are said to have cost $400. They will be set up by the town engineers who will work in conjunction with the State Highway Commission and the Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

UDJA: PARLEY CITY FOR RIFF WAR PEACE

Oudja or Udja or Oojda, the town whose name sounds like the board for communicating with departed spirits, has been awaiting the spirit of peace to descend upon the parley of French and Riff leaders.

Representatives of Abd-el-Krim, ruler of the mountain tribes which have been pitting their strength against both France and Spain, came to hear the French terms.

Udja is a very logical place for a Moroccan parley, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. So important is Udja strategically, that it was seized and put under military control by the French four years before they took over the huge Morocco protectorate. It lies at the eastern-most end of the Riff range.

Boom Town on Way to Fez

At present Udja is a boom town on France's direct line of communication to Fez, capital of Morocco. The standard way to go to Fez is by the Atlantic Ocean entrance at Rabat. But the Mediterranean door is now open. From here a traveler takes a first class train on a standard gauge track as far as Udja. From there one can go another 150 miles to Fez, either by Automobile, or, if one has a military permit, by the narrow gauge-rail road line.

The turbulence of the Riff tribes has in part led to the designation of Udja as the eastern capital city of Morocco. Here reside a commissioner of the sultan at Fez, and a commissioner of the French military administration. Under the guidance of the French it has risen from a poor place of 5000 to a city of 17,000, clean and well ordered.

Typical of Moroccan cities is the great Fomlouk, or ravansary, for wholesale trade and for lodging for merchants. Typical of French progress in Morocco is the new European quarter which is spacious and pleasant.

Was Prehistoric Gibraltar

That Udja is not one of the most strategic points of any continent is due to some recent wrinkling, geologically speaking, of the earth's crust. Once upon a time Udja was one of the Pillars of Hercules; in short, the prehistoric Gibraltar. The arc of mountains which swings down the Spanish coast to Gibraltar for millions of years dammed the Mediterranean Sea at the present straits. On the African shore it doubled back on itself, forming the Riff range. South of the Riff range lay the Atlas Mountains. The valley between cradled the "Straits of Gibraltar" of that era, connecting the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. The site of Udja is on the banks of that strait, now dry.

Udja presents a typical milestone in the progress France has brought to backward Morocco. Before the French came in 1912 it was an eight-days' journey to Fez. Today it is a half day's run in an automobile over good roads. The old Moroccan standards of travel speed were 15 miles a day for a high Moorish functionary or foreign ambassador, 25 miles a day for the normal traveler, and 40 to 50 miles a day for the letter carrier. Of course the Premier of France can and did fly to Fez in a day from Toulouse, across the Mediterranean.

Found Feudal Rule

When the 20th century jumped across the Straits of Gibraltar and invaded the "nearest East," it found a medieval civilization awaiting reformation, sanitation, communication and education. Europeans discovered in Moroccan life the feudal rule of the Dark Ages but bereft of humor.

It is probable that the negotiations at Udja mark the last stand of the typically feudal "Blad Siba," which has been a controlling factor in Moroccan affairs since the Phoenicians first tried to subdue the native Berber tribes. "Blad Siba" is a district in chronic revolt. In contrast with it is "Blad Makhzen," a countryside where tribes are friendly toward the government. Thus in going from Oran to Fez one passes through "Blad Makhzen," lying between two "Siba" districts, the Riffs to the right and other unfriendly mountain Berbers in the Atlas Mountains to the left.

One must conceive of Morocco as a confederation of tribes just as the United States is a union of States. Moroccan tribes, however, have always believed in the right to secede. While the sultan claimed to rule vast Morocco before the French came to be the power behind, in front and all around the "throne," he actually had the loyalty only of a few tribes controlling the chief cities. A sultan's diplomacy consisted of playing off one tribe against the other. As long as it worked the sultan did not abdicate.

When the European nations got hungry for Morocco, the sultan tried the same dodge with them with surprising success. But the recent co-operation of Spain and France seems to show that that sort of device will work no longer. Civilization with its army of engineers, expert farmers, and merchants, hammers on the innermost doors of the "nearest East" at Udja.

Footwear Beliefs

Arabs and Turks are always particular to placing their sandals and alippers side by side. They regard it as a sign of impending disaster if the toes are pointing away from each other. The Russian believes that an enemy is plotting against him if his shoes, when thrown down, land with one toe on the top of the other.

Reindeer Characteristics

It may be said that reindeer have some of the characteristics of sheep, cattle and horses. They flock together like sheep, but graze more like cattle, and in intelligence and activity they more nearly resemble the horse. Reindeer are much more intelligent than cattle, but not so intelligent as the horse.

MOTORIST TAKEN TO HOSPITAL AFTER ACCIDENT.

Henry Forest of 97 Second street, North Andover, was taken to the Winchester Hospital early last Saturday afternoon following a motor accident on Highland avenue in which his machine, a Studebaker coupe, figured with a large truck.

According to the police account of the affair both machines were going north along Highland avenue and had reached a point about 200 feet north of Lohanon street when the truck made as if to stop. Forest was just about to pass the first named when he swung out he noticed another machine approaching. To avoid a collision he applied his brakes sharply, his machine skidding and swinging about so as to strike the rear of the truck with its left side.

Forest was found to have sustained an ugly looking cut upon the elbow and was taken to the Winchester Hospital by Thomas Murphy of 616 Main street, a driver in the employ of the Winchester Public Market. He was treated there by Dr. Roger M. Burghy and later went to his home.

The truck which bore a New Hampshire registration continued upon its way after the collision, and its driver's name was not learned.

TWO THEFTS AT SANDY BEACH REPORTED SUNDAY

Winchesterites and others having occasion to swim at Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake would do well to take few valuables with them on the trip and, if possible, leave same with another while in the water.

The police were notified last Sunday that a pocketbook, the property of Thomas Murphy of 616 Main street and containing his automobile license as well as a sum of money and personal effects, had been stolen from where the young man had left it with his clothes in the bath house.

Mrs. Anna D. Simone of 18 Liberty avenue, Medford, also notified headquarters that she had lost a gold wrist watch from her husband's automobile while they were enjoying themselves in the lake during the same afternoon.

The crowded condition of the beach and the limited policing available make it impossible to give bathers adequate protection, and those who frequent the place should themselves guard against the loss of their effects by leaving nothing of value where the pickpockets can get at it. The police really have little chance of recovering property lost in this way.

"HORSES"

We haven't anything official to offer on the matter, but it may be that future applicants for the office of patrolman on the local police force may have to demonstrate their ability to "cut out, rope and bust" a horse before they can be considered as qualified for the job in question.

Officer Henry Dempsey had to do a bit of broncho busting last Saturday evening about 9 o'clock when he came upon three noble steeds while patrolling his beat on Highland avenue. The horses were wandering aimlessly along and seemed to be entirely content with life when they came upon the brass buttoned patrolman. The latter is well versed in the management of motor vehicles but had had little experience with horses in the aggregate, so it were.

He did, however, succeed in rounding the animals up and an investigation disclosed the fact that they had strayed away from the stables at the Lacker estate on Highland avenue. They were returned there in good condition and Officer Dempsey is thinking seriously of putting in a requisition for a set of spurs, some "chaps" and a sombrero hat.

ARLINGTON HERE TOMORROW

The strong Arlington Town Team will be the attraction on Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon. This is not the club which St. Mary's played earlier in the season with a picked-up lineup, but is rated a strong outfit, its lineup being composed largely of Cambridge Latin and Somerville High players who have given fine accounts of themselves in schoolboy baseball. The only Arlington boy in the lineup so far as is known is Freddy Ryer at 3rd base.

Winchester will probably send big Mark Kelley to the rubber with Captain Melly behind the bat. The way officer "Mex" is going at present the boys from the Spy Pond town will have to be right to give the cushions a whole lot of wear and tear.

Arlington's battery will consist of Sweeney, ex-Cambridge Latin star, pitcher; and Carpenter of Somerville High, catcher. Game starts at 3:15.

WINCHESTER MAN RADLY INJURED IN WOBURN PLANT

Mr. George Hall of Vine street lost his left hand as the result of an accident which befell him on last Friday afternoon at the plant of the American Hide & Leather Co. in Woburn.

The accident occurred at about 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Hall who has been employed at the plant as a huffer had been operating a stripping machine that afternoon, the lay-off of a number of men during the slack season having made it necessary for those retained to work in several different departments.

The machine on which he had been working had been repaired during the day and some of the grease used in the job had fallen upon the operator's platform. As Mr. Hall turned to step from the platform his foot is thought to have slipped upon some of the grease and he pitched toward the machine which was still in motion.

To save himself from falling head-first into the whirling machinery he thrust out his left arm, the hand being caught and badly mangled. He was released by fellow employees and displaying the greatest courage walked from the plant to an automobile in which he was rushed to the Choate Hospital in Woburn.

Dr. T. E. Caulfield of that city was hastily summoned and found it necessary after an examination to amputate the hand about two inches above the wrist. The operation was characterized as highly successful and Mr. Hall is reported as getting along nicely. Unless unforeseen complications arise he is expected to recover rapidly.

His misfortune came as a distinct shock to his wife and daughter, Mrs. Serena McNiff, who had been spending the day at Ayer and who did not learn of the accident until their arrival at their home.

WINCHESTER ROAT CLUB

The postponed informal regatta, held by the Medford Boat Club, was run Saturday afternoon, July 17, the races starting at 4 o'clock. The finish line was at the Medford end of the lake. Kenneth Pratt, Harry Gardner, James Fitch and Lars Sandberg, were the contestants from the Winchester Club.

The following is a summary of the events:

Club four, single blade race, won by Medford: Phelan, stroke; DeMayo, 2; Harlow, 3; and Lougee, stern. The Winchester crew consisted of Pratt, Foster, Gardner and Lars Sandberg. This race was run over the half-mile course.

Single-single blade race, won by Lougee, Medford; second, DeMayo, Medford; third, Pratt, Winchester; over a quarter-mile course.

Tandem-single blade race, won by Medford: Lougee and Phelan. For Winchester, Pratt and Gardner made up the team. The half-mile course was used and both teams were close together throughout the race.

Tail-end race, won by Lougee, Medford; second, Fitch, Winchester; third, Lars Sandberg, Winchester.

Tandem hand-paddle race, won by Lougee and Phelan, Medford; second, Wilson and Fitch, Winchester; third, Harlow and DeMayo, Medford.

Standing gunway race, two men, won by Lougee and Phelan, Medford; second, Pratt and Gardner, Winchester; third, Harlow and DeMayo, Medford.

Owing to lack of time, the tilting tournament, always an interesting event, was not held. The races were not over until nearly 7 o'clock, so the tilters will have to wait until the next meet to try to pull each other from their boats.

LOCAL KIDDIES GUESTS OF WINCHESTER ELKS

Bass Ride, Picnic Luncheon, Bathing and Sports on Program

Four hundred and sixty-five happy youngsters were guests on Wednesday of Winchester Lodge of Elks, the event being the annual Elks' Kiddies' Day, the big feature of the summer months for the town's young stay-at-homes whose only outing is that provided by the members of the antlered brotherhood.

This year's party was characterized as successful in every detail. It was held after a year's lapse at Little Nahant, Lynn Beach, and there could be no misunderstanding the kiddies' preference for this ideal spot by the ocean. The motor ride thither is in itself a big attraction while once at the seashore the children's delight in playing on the sand and in the surf never ceases. They literally amuse themselves, the very best sort of fun for any red-blooded youngster.

Long before 8:30 a. m., the hour set for starting, the young folks began to assemble at Manchester Field, all primed to enjoy the day to the utmost. The arrival of the nine big Eastern Massachusetts busses in charge of Superintendent Leavitt was hailed with delight while a dozen private automobiles were on hand to take care of any overflow. For the first time since the beach outings were instituted, the Elks were this year able to accommodate every child who was at Manchester Field and who wanted to make the trip. Four hundred tickets had been given out and the ticket-holding youngsters were accommodated first, but before the big busses got under way every one had been safely gathered in even to a couple of last minute arrivals who had to do a "Charlie Paddock" to catch the slowly moving convoy.

The procession rolled through the square where traffic officer James Donaghey was given an enthusiastic send-off by the youthful merry-makers, thence to Stoneham, Melrose and Lynn by way of the shore route and Revere Beach.

Those driving private cars included Messrs. Thomas F. Fallon, George H. Lochman, Napoleone Goddu, Fred H. Scholl, George T. Davidson, Norman Osborne, Dr. James H. O'Connor, William H. Cleary, John J. Gorman, Patrick Hennessy, Gordo Horne and Patrick Foley.

About an hour was consumed in the run to the beach and once there the ocean was the big attraction. Swimming was very much in order and Harry Dotten, "Doc" O'Connor and George Lochman had a busy time fitting out the youthful enthusiasts with bathing suits. Clarence "Lead" O'Donnell, instructor at the Leonard Field Playground, and his assistant, Miss Lucia McKenzie, were in charge of the children while they were in the water and nothing occurred to in any way mar the pleasure of young or old.

Promptly at noon the dinner call was sounded by Chairman George T. Davidson, the response being instant and entirely convincing. The children lined up at the dining pavilion where the ladies of the Emblem Club had been busy all morning preparing the luncheons for distribution. We never saw picnic lunches served in a better way. Each was put up in a paper box, donated by Fitzpatrick Brothers of Malden, and was handed to the child as he filed past the ladles and their assistants on the platform of the pavilion. Each box contained an assortment of sandwiches, cookies and fruit while in addition individual bottles of milk were distributed with ice cream. Every one commented upon the neatness and dispatch with which the big crowd was served and to the credit of the Emblem Club ladies be it understood that there was plenty of everything.

A NEW CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH FOR THE HIGH LANDS IN 1926

Nearing Completion

Why 1926? Because, a few years ago, a company of earnest people said, "Where there is a will there is a way," and they began to show their faith by their works; and this is the year of answered prayers, when dreams are coming true.

After a three years' campaign for funds the residents of the Highlands district are rejoicing in the daily progress in the construction of their new church at the corner of Kenwau road and Washington street. When completely finished another attractive and beautiful place will be added to grace a main thoroughfare of Winchester, and besides, the new church will be equipped to minister to 200 families of the community, and stand as a monument of faith in the living God for generations to come.

The Third Annual Report

In figures, the price of the land and the cost of the new church, has been a $43,000 proposition. The building committee has just issued the third annual report, a record of unusual happenings. As a document it reads good, and inspires every one interested to stay with the work and keep going on until a satisfactory completion of the whole enterprise, new church and well equipped parish house is officially reported. During the last year many friends in Winchester and elsewhere have come forward by encouraging words and liberal gifts. This timely support is deeply appreciated by those planning and doing and giving all they can and who realize that without the aid of organizations and friends outside, the work of the residents of the Highlands would have been in vain in the erection of such a needed church.

Facts and Figures

In the accurate and carefully prepared report of the treasurer a few facts and figures may be of interest to the readers of the Winchester Star. During the summer months of 1925, pledges amounting to $6000 were received. In the month of October the Woburn Association of Congregational Churches pledged $3000. On November 1, there was needed $2200 to complete the amount of $40,000, the cost of the new church. By the end of the year 1925 this was reduced to $1400. At a special community service held in March of this year the congregation once more gave evidence of their interest and self-denial by pledging $872.85. This, with the added amounts coming from the registry of names placed in the cornerstone box on Palm Sunday $168, and the receipts from the Highlands' annual field day, $287.83, and the returns from the several groups of 10 persons each, $386.44—these with a few more pledges and gifts brings up to date the $40,000 clearly in sight. The total gain for the year closing tomorrow, July 31, amounts to $3589.58. Of the $43,000 proposition the treasurer has already paid out to the owner of the land, and the architect of the new church, and the contractors and sub-contractors the sum of $21,037.50. The half-way mark in payment of bills for the entire work has been safely reached.

Interesting Events

On November 1, 1925, the simple ceremony of breaking the new ground was witnessed by a goodly company of residents of the Highlands—and the work of construction had so far advanced that the ceremony of laying the cornerstone was held on March 28, Palm Sunday afternoon. Reports of these outdoor services on the new church lot appeared on time in the Winchester Star, which see on file. Plans are already under way for the dedication of the new church in the fall.

TWO ALARM FIRE IN CENTER

Three-Story Block on Main Street Damaged by Blaze of Unknown Origin

Prompt action on the part of Winchester's Fire Department Wednesday night prevented what might otherwise easily have been a serious conflagration when its members in response to two alarms from Box 23 checked a blaze which started on the top floor of the three-story frame building at 539-43 Main street and which threatened the establishments of the Winchester Shoe Hospital, Kaufman Brothers Dry Goods Store and the grocery store of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

The building in which the fire started is owned by Samuel Lieberman of 9 Wayne street, Roxbury, and is unoccupied except for the ground floor which contains the Fells Market of Carter and Young.

The fire was discovered shortly before midnight by Clarence Danahey of this town who happened to be passing and who hastened to send in the alarm from Box 23. Chief David H. DeCourcy ordered the second alarm immediately upon his arrival at 11:55 p. m.

When the apparatus arrived the entire top floor of the building was ablaze with wicked looking tongues of flame beginning to break through the roof in several places.

Ladders were quickly raised and a line of hose thrust through the front door on the second story. This seemed to quench the most threatening of the flames and with several other lines trained upon the outside of the upper part of the building the firemen soon got the blaze under control.

The smoke was particularly heavy and spread over the center to such an extent that several cars were removed from a neighboring garage, the occupants being under the impression that their own building was ablaze.

How the fire started had not been ascertained as the Star went to press. Mr. Lieberman stated Thursday morning that painters had been working in the building until late Wednesday evening and it is possible that spontaneous combustion from some of their supplies may have caused the trouble. Chief DeCourcy was of the opinion that the fire had been burning for some little time before its discovery. It is thought to have originated in a small closet in the rear of the third story of the block.

The blaze was entirely confined to that story which was pretty well gutted by the flames. Much of the roof was charred and in several places burned away while the smoke and water damage throughout the building is considerable. The Fells Market was the chief sufferer from the smoke and water though the tailor shop of Levine & Farber was well wet down.

A large crowd was attracted by the fire and the entire police force under Chief William R. McIntosh had a busy time keeping things clear for the firemen. All motor traffic was halted on Main and Church streets in the vicinity of the square while fire lines kept the crowd to the west of the Main street car line.

No official estimate of the damage done by the fire has as yet been made but unofficial figures range all the way from $15,000 to $30,000.

LOCAL POSTAL CARRIER CAPTURED THIEF IN BOSTON

Parcels post delivery carrier Joseph Dougherty attached to the local office, figured prominently in the capture of a female snuck thief while on a shopping tour in Boston last Saturday afternoon.

While waiting under cover on Causeway street for a shower to pass "Joe's" attention was attracted by a young woman who ran from a nearby store pursued by a second woman who was shouting "Stop thief!" at the top of a particularly strident voice.

Now "Joe" is nothing, if not obliging, and he immediately took after the speeding pair, she in the lead making off past the North Postal Station.

The sprinting mail-man soon passed the pursuing woman whose vocal efforts seemed seriously to impair her running ability, but he found ratcheting the other dramsel something else again. In fact she seemed to be doing slightly better than huddling her own when the ingenious Joseph thought himself of a time-worn ruse which once more proved effective.

Pulling his jimmy-pipe from his pocket he pointed the same in the general direction of the fleeing woman and sternly ordered her to stop at once.

Thinking the "ludgen" was a revolver the latter did as directed and returned a hand-bag which she was alleged to have snatched from the other figure in the episode who arrived upon the scene vociferously demanding her property, though punctuating her remarks with more or less puffing.

By that time an officer from Station 3 was on hand and "Joe" turned matters over to him, retiring just in time to escape having his photo in the evening rotogravure and an opportunity to appear in vaudeville.

S. F. Perkins, Jr. Testing Lifting Power of Man-Carrying Kites. Commander Byrd Took Over North Pole

SITTING ON TOP OF THE WORLD WITH NOBLE COMPANY KITES

Within the next week Winchester will see exact copies of the kites Commander Byrd took for wireless and distress signal work to the North Pole. Al Noble, of the W. F. Noble & Sons Company, milk dealers, 19 Sewall street, Sumnerville, has secured the services of Samuel F. Perkins, government kite expert, to demonstrate just how the kites are used.

In case of forced landing the Byrd airplane party were to send up a kite to lift their wireless aerial, so that they could send for help. Then when the help was coming they were to lift signal banners on the kite to give their exact location. Mr. Perkins will bring with him S. F. Perkins, Jr., 19 years old, who made the last ascent of 50 feet in Savin Hill Park, Dorchester. Mr. Perkins and Junior will show the boys of Winchester just how these kites are made, and every effort will be made to give the young folks the time of their lives. Kite-flying in the opinion of Mr. Perkins is the greatest sport in the world, and there will be ample proof given of the fact. So everyone should watch the sky in this vicinity during the next few days.

The work of tearing down the wooden block at the corner of the railroad crossing, Main and Thompson streets was started the first of this week. The old building will be replaced by a block of modern stores, and all of the tenants, who have occupied the place for many years, are now settled in new quarters with the exception of the fruit store. This place, it is said, enjoys a lease, and the demolition will take place without disturbing it. On the expiration of the lease in the fall, it will be little trouble to remove what remains of the store.

WINCHESTER DAY AT WOBURN COURT

Last Monday might well have been designated Winchester Day in the District Court at Woburn, the local police department having a dozen or so cases coming up for settlement at that time.

Among the more important ones was that arising from the fatal accident which occurred on the afternoon of July 5th and in which John Vincent DeVoe of 107 Millet street, Dorchester, was almost instantly killed when he was struck, while shifting a tire on his own machine at a point near the Winchester Country Club on Cambridge street, by a Ford coupe, owned and operated by Floyd C. Smith of 16 Davis avenue, Brookline.

Smith had but recently been discharged from the Winchester Hospital where he had been taken following the accident on the holiday and where he had been undergoing treatment for a broken knee-cap. He was played under arrest after leaving the institution and faced charges of manslaughter and driving so as to endanger the lives of the public.

His defense was that he had been obliged to drive his car in DeVoe's machine to avoid a head-on collision with another car which was approaching his own coupe around the bend of the road at the Country Club, coming from the direction of Winchester at a high rate of speed. Under cross-examination by Chief McIntosh he was unable to state whether the machine in question which is alleged to have gotten away in the excitement attendant upon the killing of DeVoe was an open or closed model, nor could he tell whether it contained one or more than one person.

Judge Jesse W. Morton discharged Smith on the manslaughter charge, but found him guilty of driving so as to endanger the lives of the public and sentenced him to serve two months in the House of Correction. The latter appealed and was held for a coming session of the Grand Jury.

Another case which came up for settlement Monday had even more local interest. It centered around an important variance in the Federal and State prohibition laws with reference to the illegal transportation of intoxicants.

At 12:30 on Sunday morning, July 4, as Sergt. William Rogers and officer James Farrell of the police were patrolling along upper Main street they noticed a Ford car approaching over the ice bridge in a way which led them to believe that the driver was in no condition to drive upon the town's highways.

After a chase of a little more than a quarter of a mile the policemen halted the car near Clark street and found that it was operated by a Winchester man whom they judged to be somewhat the worse for wear.

A search of the car by officer Farrell brought to light six bottles of beer which the driver of the car naively stated were not his own property but belonged to another who had asked as a favor to have them transported to Winchester.

The officers were not entirely convinced that the story was the sober truth, but were unanimously of the opinion that the man should not be allowed to proceed further at the wheel of the machine he was driving.

Sergeant Rogers drove the car to police headquarters and its owner was summoned into court at Woburn to answer to charges of illegal transportation of liquor and of driving while under the influence of the same.

The first hearing of the case was on July 12 when it was continued until last Monday morning.

Meanwhile the six bottles of beer had been analyzed and had been found to have an alcoholic content of 2.68 per cent. Under the federal prohibition laws transporting liquor containing 1 per cent of alcohol is actionable, but under the State law the ante is raised to 2.73 per cent. Last Monday's case was tried under the State law and the defendant was discharged by Judge Morton, not only on the illegal transportation but also on the drunken driver charge.

Two more Winchester men appeared in court Monday. The first was brought in by motorcycle officer John Hogan, charged with operating while under the influence of liquor. He was found guilty by Judge Morton and fined $50.

The second local defendant was charged with the illegal transportation of intoxicants, with driving an unregistered car, driving without a license and with the illegal use of number plates.

He was arrested at 2:15 last Sunday morning on Main street near the Whitney Machine Shop by officer James Farrell. An investigation disclosed the fact that the operator had never had a license to drive a car and that the number plates on his Oort touring car were those belonging to a "Gardner" machine. Of additional interest was the fact that the Oort contained a Boston bag housing an even dozen bottles of beer and a glass, possibly to facilitate consumption.

When the man appeared in court Monday the analysis of his wet goods had not been made and his case was continued until next Tuesday.

Along with the above the case of John H. Shorten of 40 Woodcliff street, Roxbury, was also on the docket. Shorten, the driver of a big Atlantic & Pacific truck was arrested by officer James Farrell last week Thursday morning when he side-swiped a street car on Main street at Park street in attempting to pass and cut in front of the electric. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle so as to endanger the lives of the public and was found guilty by the court. His fine was $25.

William H. George of 346 Ferry street, Malden, returned from his tour of duty with the militia at Camp Devens in time to be among those present at court last Monday. He was arrested by officer Farrell at 10:45 p. m. July 3, on Bacon street at Everett avenue after the latter had followed him from Cambridge street along Church and Bacon streets to the above mentioned place. George was operating a Ford touring car owned by John B. Healey of 136 Walnut street, Malden, and first came to the Winchester patrolman's notice when he went at high speed to the left of the traffic beacon at the junction of Cambridge, Church and High streets. He also took a left turn at the beacon at Bacon and Church streets while his speed along the latter highway was deemed by the patrolman to be excessive.

He was found guilty of a speeding charge by Judge Morton and was fined $10. Other cases which came before the court last Monday were of a more trivial nature, but all in all it was quite a morning for the police of the town.

NOT MUCH ON THIS MOTORIST

Why any sane motorist continues to approach Winchester square at an excessive rate of speed is hard to understand and why he should bowl along at 40 miles an hour into the center without the proper credentials to operate even in a lawful manner is something further over than we've been, at least at this writing. Yet when officer James Farrell stopped Matthew McKinnon of 218 West Springfield street, Boston, last Saturday evening for driving his Cadillac touring car at the above mentioned speed along Main street into the center the patrolman found that the latter's license had expired May 10, 1925. A further investigation by the authorities produced the interesting information that said license had been suspended twice and finally revoked. Furthermore he was driving an unregistered car, the plates which adorned his Cadillac being those belonging to a Stutz.

Matthew will go further into the matter with the authorities in the District Court at Woburn this morning. He was driving a party of several people when arrested.

MARYKNOLL CIRCLE

Mrs. Katharine Hodge of Pond street was the hostess at the last gathering of the Missionary Circle and her party was much enjoyed by all present. The two high scorers were Mrs. Katharine Kean and Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald, together with 20 other winners. Cooling drinks and ices made one forget the terrific heat of the day and beautifully appreciative letters from Kowloon, China; Kingston, Jamaica; and also from the director of the Diocesan Foreign Mission Bureau, Rev. Joseph McGlinchey, sent the members home with a firm desire to continue in their good work.

The next meeting will be held at 2 o'clock on this coming Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald on Hill street. The proceeds of this party will be sent, through Father McGlinchey's Bureau, to the Maryknoll Mission at Kowloon, Canton, China. A cordial invitation is extended to all whist lovers to come and partake of the hospitality of St. Dominic's Circle and, incidentally to help along a splendidly commendable work.

A NEW CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH FOR THE HIGH LANDS IN 1926

Immediate Needs—An Organ and a Bell

As the fourth year of the campaign opens, present needs are faced. Every church to be well organized and equipped and efficient, rendering adequate service, needs an organ and a bell, for each has a vital part in the life of the church. Without either a church is crippled and handicapped. Chapel on Cross street to be Moved.

At a meeting of the members, recently called together, it was unanimously voted to move over the present chapel on Cross street and connect it with the new church, which with minor alterations will be equipped for Sunday School and parish house purposes including a much needed ladies' sewing room and parlor. But for these things funds are not yet in sight. The campaign is still going on.

Therefore, in behalf of the building committee and members of the church and residents of the Highlands district, all of whom have labored faithfully in carrying on this three years' campaign, never losing faith, nor wavering, the pastor at the Highlands is ready to interview any person or organization interested that wants an opportunity to share with a deserving and loyal people the joy of unselfish service, and a people who are facing the future with courage and confidence.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

When you tip a waiter is it a bribe to get something you are not entitled to, or to keep him from insulting you in accepting your order.

Grief starts on the surface, but when it bores into the soul, it becomes agony.

Keep your mind like a sieve, have the meshes coarse, this will retain the big things and let the small ones pass through.

It is said you must be in business with a man to know him, and in love with a woman to know her, yet there are many who don't believe it.

In proportions as a man's backbone weakens, his wishbone seems to develop.

The heat wave of the past week served admirably to convince many who visited Sandy Beach that steps should be taken at once to make the facilities of this popular bathing resort at least fairly adequate for the ever increasing throngs from surrounding communities who seek relief from the torrid weather in the cooling waters of Mystic Lake. The estimated number at the beach last week Wednesday evening was 5000. Five thousand persons attempting to bathe at a place which is crowded with 1000 in the water. As for the bathhouse accommodations, they are inadequate to care for even an ordinarily heavy crowd. Opportunity for several sorts of petty crime is constantly presented. Already this season several cases of theft have been reported to the police. The single officer which the Metropolitan District Commission has detailed there on especially crowded afternoons and evenings has been unable to cope with conditions. Sandy is rather a hard place to police. Under present conditions we believe the beach can not be have reproach from a sanitary angle. A big crowd, almost entirely herded together in the shallow water of the narrow beach before the bath-houses makes us believe that after several days or even hours, that same water becomes a poor medium in which to bathe. We may be over-factitious, but there is little current in the river and we have our doubts. The Metropolitan Commission is alive to the fact that the beach must be enlarged and had planned this year to extend it several hundred yards to the point opposite the Winchester Boat Club. They were prevented from doing so, and with it the erection of more commodious bath-houses, by the failure of the State to appropriate the necessary funds. These steps must be taken, if Sandy Beach is to continue to enjoy its present popularity. In fact, they must be taken if Sandy Beach is to continue to be a safe place to bathe, water analysis notwithstanding to the contrary. It is to be hoped that the coming session of the Legislature will place the M. D. C. in a position to carry out its plans before another summer.

And while on the matter of swimming, it might be well to caution the boys and young men who frequent Wedge Point on warm evenings to consider those whose houses are adjacent to the beach there and who suffer considerable annoyance from the sort of language employed upon occasion. At times it is unbelievably bad, and several complaints have been received by the police. If residents continue to be annoyed in this way, it is not beyond the realm of possibility to stop the use of Wedge for swimming. Such a step would be unfortunate and we believe unnecessary. Much of the trouble is no doubt due to thoughtlessness and can be corrected without too drastic action. The regrettable feature of the whole business is that those most responsible for the annoying conditions are old enough to know much better.

School Committee Refuses to Change Name of Highland Building

The School Committee has informed those citizens who backed it in its christening of the new school at Winchester Highlands the Washington School, that it proposes to hold to that name, and the new building now in process of erection will henceforth be called the George Washington School.

It is not known whether the initial will be retained or not.

CREME DE MENTHE CONTROL

To the Editor of the Star:

Yes, let us have a box one foot by two feet larger than the one we now have for the officer who "controls the traffic control" in the center. Let's give him a place for his feet anyway. Furthermore let us have indirect heating and ventilating. It is absurd in these enlightened days to have this cold air blown directly upon him.

"Mr. Citizen" is right. With seven weeks left of summer we surely should do something about this. In the old days the officer stood out in the center on his feet (no stool), ten (10) hours at a stretch, with no electric heater and no electric fan. What are we thinking about?

Furthermore, Mr. Editor I think we should pipe this new and enlarged house with an ample supply of soft drinks—or on second thought with a supply of Creme de Menthe or some other green fluid—so he would be able to give us a green light at least once in a while and let us get across the centre without waiting in the hot, broiling sun for more than five minutes a "cross."

If you will call the attention of our Town Fathers to this sweating necessity, I feel sure that it will be promptly attended to, as I understand they are highly indignant over the present situation, two of them having passed through the centre recently without being held up.

More and Better Traffic

WINCHESTER MAN BLAZES NEW TRAIL UP KEARSARGE

Tnx Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols, enthusiastic motorist and mountain climber extraordinary, has just completed a fine trail to the top of Kearsarge Mountain from the east side, thereby adding to the many miles of such work which he has already done in that region.

The new trail begins at the home of George Hill at Green Hill and runs along the road to the Stiles clearing. From the Stiles place it runs straight through the woods to the summit.

It is wide and plain and is plainly marked with blazes and cairns. The distance from the main road to the Stiles place is 1½ miles, to last water 3½ miles, to the summit 4.9 miles.

An easy side trip may be made at the crossing of the second logging road to Mirror Lake, or Shingle Pond as it is sometimes called.

This trail meets the need of a trail on the east side of the familiar peak. The only other trail on the east of the mountain has fallen into disuse.

The association has laid a new string trail from the top of Blueberry Mountain to the Chatham Valley. This trail will take the place of the ancient trail that has been used for generations and which was very crooked. The new line passes down the north-west shoulder of the mountain, crosses Birkford Brook and leads with the Forest Service trail completed last summer to the top of Sparked Mountain. Thence along new trail to the Ranger Station known as the Brickett House. As soon as the location is approved by the district ranger, the trail will be cut.

With the new trail over West Royce built last year, it is now possible to go over the Bald Pine Range along Meander Ridge and Meander, along the Basin Rim, over West and East Royce and return to the valley without retracing a step.

OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kindred observed the 20th anniversary of their marriage on Wednesday evening, July 28, at their home on Railroad avenue, guests being present from Prince Edward Island, Can. and New York as well as from Winchester and surrounding communities.

The entertainment program, which was much enjoyed, consisted of expert Charleston dancing by the Misses Constance Titelah and Mary Murphy to the strains of Miss Mary Murphy whose violin playing vied with that of the famous fiddler, Mellie Dunham. Rounding out the entertainment were selections on the bagpipes by Mr. Robert Titelah and vocal and harmonic solos by Mr. James Keady. Old time dances were indulged in, violin music being furnished by Mr. Arthur Peters. In passing it might be stated that Mrs. Julia Nowell was the "life of the party" and kept things moving from the first to the last.

A dainty buffet luncheon was served at the close of the entertainment while Mr. Titelah brought the pleasant evening to a close with a second group of bagpipe numbers.

Mr. Herbert Butterfield, son of Mrs. Herbert E. Butler of Hancock street, is in town visiting his mother and his sister, Mrs. Howard L. Bennett of Highland avenue. This is Mr. Butterfield's first visit to Winchester in a period of 23 years, and he states that he would hardly know the town, it has grown so much. He is located in northern Ontario, and expects to return in a fortnight.

LOCAL KIDDIES GUESTS OF WINCHESTER ELKS

Following luncheon, games on the beach were organized under the direction of John Clarke, ably seconded by Harry Dutton, "Jack" Gorman, "Ned" McKenzie, Fred Scholl, Norman Osborne, "Nap" Gaddu, George Davidson, "Ray" Hanscomb and "Bill" Cleary. The real feature of the sports program was a novel penny hunt which was carried out as follows. A big canvas was spread upon the sand on which a good sized pile of sawdust was centered. About 100 pennies were hidden in the sawdust and groups of boys and girls at a given signal dove into the pile in an effort to retrieve them during a certain time limit. That picking the pennies out of the soft mass was not so easy may best be demonstrated by the fact that the greatest number of coins produced by any of the contestants was seven, and take our word for it, the kids tried hard. The sawdust flew and there was plenty of good-natured jesting and shoving before the winners for both boys and girls were finally announced and given the cash prizes donated for the occasion.

Such a crowd wished to participate in this event that it was necessary to run it in heats or should we say individual scrambles. The winners were as follows:

1st heat—Lorenzo Pente, 6 pennies.
2nd heat—Tie between Murray Marone and Anthony Lenthini, 3 each.
3rd heat (girls)—Donna Tucci, 5.
4th heat—Tie between Antonio Antini and Francis Runier, 2 each.
5th heat—Thomas Mearles, 7; Patsy Tofuri, 5.
6th heat—Robert Forest, 5.
7th heat (girls)—Rosie Vocco, 7.
8th heat—Pasquale Del Monte, 7; Harold Anderson, 5.
9th heat (girls)—Antoinette Fillipone, 7; Regina Pente, 5.
Final heat (boys)—Won by Robert Forest, 8.
Final heat (girls)—Won by Regina Pente, 6.

After first aid had been given the contestants for sawdust in the eyes and other minor misfortunes, sack races and the ever-popular three-legged races for both boys and girls were held on the beach. The winner of the boys' sack race was Thomas Abbott with Robert Forest, 2nd. The boys' three-legged race was won by Michael McElhinry and Antonio Lenthini, Harold Anderson and raised Tenure finishing in second place. The girls' winners were: sack race, Donna Tucci, 1st; Barbara Dempsey, 2nd; three-legged race, Donna Tucci and Antonetta Philogeni.

About 4:30 the round-up for the homeward trip began and shortly before 5 the tired bunch of enthusiastic youngsters was safely landed in Winchester, where upon arriving at their homes they commenced to mark the days upon the calendar until the arrival of the next Kiddle's Day.

The Elks' Committee which functioned under the supervision of Exalted Ruler Fred H. Scholl was headed by George T. Davidson as chairman. Among those assisting him at the beach were the following members of the lodge: John Clarke, Harry Dutton, William Cleary, James J. Fitzgerald, George H. Lochman, Thomas F. Fallon, Niguelon Godin, Norman Osborne, Thomas H. Barrett, Dr. James H. O'Connor, John D. Coakley, Patrick Foley, John J. McCarthy, F. H. Goodhue, Gordo Horne, John J. Gorman, Patrick Walsh, Patrick Hennessy and T. Price Wilson.

The ladies of the Emblem Club were under the direction of President Mrs. Anna Lochman, with Mrs. Fred H. Scholl as chairman. They included Mrs. George T. Davidson, Mrs. Frances Sullivan, Mrs. Bernice Gorman, Mrs. Annie Hanlon, Mrs. Margaret Flancers, Mrs. Mary McKenzie, Mrs. Rose McKenzie, Mrs. Kathleen Fallon, Mrs. Nellie Moffette, Mrs. James H. O'Connor, Mrs. J. D. Coakley, Mrs. J. J. McCarthy and Mrs. F. H. Goodhue.

WILD ANIMALS IN WINCHESTER

Skunks, pole-cats, wood pussies or what you will, small fur-bearing creatures heartily despised yet within highly respected and accorded plenty of elbow room wherever encountered—occasionally one or more is discovered in some more remote section of the town and only last winter we had one lodge in their way at the side of the Star office, but we never happened to hear of more than two or perhaps three being seen together at one place until Wednesday when we happened to run into Woburn "Jim" McCauley, light trouble man for the Edison people in this district.

The latter is our authority for informing readers that there are seven skunks in the vicinity of Hillside avenue and Mt. Pleasant street.

As he was driving his machine up Hillside avenue Tuesday night "Jim" noticed ahead of him what he took to be several cats crossing the roadway. Turning his spot-light upon the animals he was interested to discover

The skunks were apparently frightened by the light thrown upon them and made into a neighboring drain where they remained until the rays were shut off. As soon as all was again dark they ventured forth but the return of the spot-light drove them once more to shelter.

Carefully keeping his distance "Jim" hid his time and finally the skunks emerged again from their hiding place and made off behind the

RECEIVED BAD CUT IN FOOT

Charles Smith of Vine street, a meat cutter in the employ of Richardson's Market, was painfully injured late Thursday afternoon when a long butcher's knife was knocked from his grasp and fell upon his foot, inflicting a deep wound.

Mr. Smith was entering the chest at the rear of the store and was carrying his knife at the time the accident occurred. In some way he struck his arm against the door jamb, knocking the knife from his hand. It fell and piercing his shoe entered his foot, passing at a point just above the first and second toes.

The gash bled profusely and Dr. Allen R. Cunningham who was summoned at once was obliged to take a long stitch to close the wound. Mr. Smith was taken to his home where this morning he was reported as getting along nicely. It will be some little time before he will be able to bear his weight upon the injured member.

WAR MEMORIAL DEDICATED THIS FALL

It is reported that a meeting of the War Memorial Committee is to be called within a few days relative to the dedication of the memorial this fall. The work of building the foundation for the statue will be started within a few weeks.

The memorial, which is to be erected on the corner of the High School lot facing Main street, the Parkway and Waterfield road, has been praised as one of the most beautiful and artistic monuments yet designed among the many which have been and are being erected throughout the country.

Its completion will give Winchester its first public monument outside that in Wildwood Cemetery, erected to the Civil War Veterans.

Mr. Herbert Adams of New York, prominently known throughout the country and abroad as a sculptor of note, is the designer of the monument. The monument will stand 18 feet, 6 inches high, with two bronze figures of heroic size 8 feet, 6 inches high. The lower steps will be 11 feet, 6 inches by 14 feet, 6 inches, and the granite die stands on a sub-base which in turn rests on two steps, straight in front and back, and curved at the ends to correspond with the curved sides of the die.

The monument was voted by the town, its cost to be defrayed by popular subscription. Although a large committee of prominent citizens worked for many months and gave much time to the financing of the

The meeting was the result of considerable good-natured rivalry which has existed between the two well-known swimmers for some little time and a crowd of about 3500 was on hand to cheer the victor as he crossed the finish line.

Bray swam the three miles in 1 hour and 45 minutes with Wise finishing 15 minutes later. The former is a favorite with Sandy Beach swimmers having exhibited at several of the carnivals held there by his staunch friend, "Bill" Murray. We'll venture the opinion that no one was more pleased to learn of Bray's latest triumph than the jovial William.

NEW PARAGRAPHS

A Ford sedan owned by Alfred J. Thibault of 46 Magnolia street, Arlington, and operated by his brother, Douglas Thibault of 25 Water street was struck in the rear after being stopped by the traffic sign in the square at 5:45 Wednesday afternoon.

The Ford was going north on Main street at the time of the accident. The other machine was a Chandler sedan which was operated by Anthony Venuto of 3 Tennessee street, Woburn. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

A Ford touring car and a Chevrolet touring were in collision yesterday at the junction of Church and Wildwood streets. The Ford was operated by Albert E. Pratt of Stoneham and the Chevrolet by George F. Howe of Winthrop. The latter car was damaged by the crash but no one was hurt.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB NOTES

Unless all signs fail, the Winchester Boat Club has a pair of paddlers who will bear watching. Messrs. Eddie Sandberg and Alan Hovey have been working out as a team in the double-bladed tandem shell since last May, and they are fast becoming a smoothly going outfit.

In the New England Amateur Rowing Association races on the Charles River, the 5th of July, they were barely nosed out of first place, and in the American Canoe Association meet at Worcester last week they drew third place in a race in which they were competing against such men as Ernest Riedel and Scott Hutchins of the Pendleton Canoe Club of New Jersey, the international champions.

With the meet at Lake George coming in August, and Canobie Lake meet around Labor Day there is a good chance of the Sandberg-Hovey double-bladers making a name for themselves.

VETERAN SWIMMER KNOWN HERE

Many local followers of swimming and particularly those who have been present at recent Sandy Beach carnivals were interested to learn of the victory won by John Bray, veteran 62-year-old L Street Brownie, over his 54-year-old team mate Gps. Wise in a race over a three-mile course at

Belief in Mesmerism*Once Was Widespread

Ever since prehistoric days there have been medical quacks. One of the strangest was Anton Mesmer. In Paris he found prodigious vogue, especially among women. To enter his house was an impressive experience. He had assistants who were claimed to be able to transfer magnetism from their finger tips to patients. If a female patient were in a hysterical state, Mesmer himself, in his role of silk embroidered with gold, and with his ivory wand, would stroke her eyebrows or her spine and calm her. The queen of France commended Mesmerism and a pension of 20,000 francs was offered Mesmer if he could prove that he had made any discovery in medicine and would communicate it to the king's physicians.

Mesmer objected to the latter part of the offer and left Paris. Two royal commissions were then appointed, one of which Benjamin Franklin was a member. After two months of experiment a report unfavorable to Mesmer was returned, after which Mesmer retired to the country, with a fortune amounting to 300,000 francs. He died in 1815, at the age of eighty-one. —Dearborn Independent.

Dwelling of Today*Compared With Past

Consider the present-day, well-appointed house. It has an entrance hall, living or drawing room, kitchen and pantry and service departments, bedrooms and bathrooms with endless sanitary adjuncts and aids to comfort. Go back a hundred years and you find the house has no bathroom. Go back two hundred years and apparently no change has been made.

Go back three hundred years to the time of Elizabeth and James I, and the house has only some primary divisions of hall, living room, kitchen and bedroom, although the hall is large and well lighted. Go back a generation beyond Elizabeth and the hall is larger but less cheerful because the windows are smaller. Go back still further, say to the twelfth century, and hardly any windows are visible in the outside walls, there are no bedrooms and living-rooms and the house consists of nothing but a kitchen and a large barnlike hall. This is the house reduced to the ultimate essentials. —New York Herald Tribune.

In the Forkless Days

Forks were not introduced into England till 1608, and it is a notable fact that whilst we get Kaffers and Spoons amongst our occupational synonyms, we find no Forker or Forksmith. Even the "Carver" had to use his fingers. In the Duke of Kervyn's we find it set down, "Set never on fyster, foshers, levers, no fork, more than two fingers and a thumb." The guest was lucky if he got a plate. Usually he was supplied with a round of bread known as a trencher upon which the meat was placed. It will be easy to understand why this was followed by the necessary services of the "ewer" with a basin of cleansing water and the "tupple" who proffered the towel or napkin. —Manchester Guardian.

The Mystery of Life

The first duty of every man is to acquire as much common sense as possible as soon as possible. If we know the simple rules governing life and that its conditions are fixed and unchanging, we need not greatly care for "the deeper significance of it all." How did the world originate? I do not know; but I know its rules, and that they will certainly endure as long as I am interested in the subject. . . . Literary men write about the dark records in terms of mystery, but practical men have charted the winds and are able to tell the meaning of the darkness and the meaning. —E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Pharaohs Played Checkers

They were playing checkers in Egypt in 1600 B. C. and there is a question whether some of these old games are not going on yet. Archaeologists find checkers was the favorite game of Queen Hatshepsut. They have even found several of her draughts-men and fragments of the board on which she played. Egyptian inscriptions show the game was popular in the times of the earlier Pharaohs. . . . As the centuries go by men dress differently and customs change, but man himself is pretty much the same kind of fellow. —Capner's Weekly.

Times Have Changed

The chairman of a campaign committee was approached by an important politician who had previously lobbied the party. The man said that he had seen the error of his ways and expressed a desire to be taken back and given a job at campaign headquarters.

"I am sorry that I shall have to disappoint you, Mr. Blank," the chairman replied. "Glad to see you back, of course, but in these days the wise prodigal brings along his own calf."

Secret Service

"What's this?" asked the boss as his stenog held a box up to his desk. "Why, they're the envelopes you told me to get while I was in the department store," replied his stenog. "Great Scott!" exclaimed the boss, "I meant for you to get them in the stationery department."

"Oh," giggled the stenog. "I thought your wife had asked you to make a purchase and you were too bashful to go yourself."

Woman Decries Value of Ancient Precept

"Sometimes I think precepts do more harm than good," said the woman, as, with flushed cheeks she threw down a dress she had been working on all day. "For instance, I had it drilled into me in my youth, 'Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today,' and I actually suffer for it. Many times it would be much better to put things off until tomorrow, but I feel that old precept driving me. In illustration: I would have been much better if I had put by this dress until tomorrow, for I've worked on it too long already. But no, I kept plugging along, and now I've made a bad blunder out of it."

"Again and again I am overtired or overnervous for a certain task, but that old precept keeps plaguing in my ears, and I attempt today what would be much better attempted tomorrow. In the case of important decisions, too, I think it is much better generally to sleep on the problem, but somehow I feel as if putting off until tomorrow was a sin and I often decide with hasty judgment."

"I know that lazy people often put off until tomorrow, believing someone will do the task for them, and of course they're very negligent and slack—but sometimes their system is best to follow." —Springfield Union.

Russian Given Credit for Radio "Invention"

Who was the "inventor" of radio? The Soviet government claims the honor for a Russian, Prof. Alexander Stepanovich Popoff, and has adopted a characteristic method of telling the world about it.

A note Russian stamp came to the notice of the writer a short time ago. About an excellent likeness appeared the words "Inventor of Radio Popoff." The language of this inscription is desperate, though the other characters on the stamp are Russian.

The facts appear to be that Professor Popoff, admittedly one of the great pioneers of wireless—publicly transmitted wireless signals over a distance of 40 meters in 1895, the year before Marconi took out his first patent for Hertzian wave telegraphy.

But, Brauly and Sir Oliver Lodge had been experimenting for some time along the same lines, and the latter gave demonstrations in 1894 in which "detectors" (the earliest form of radio) were employed. It is not easy, therefore, to accord the palm. Heretofore, the was the first to produce the radio wave.

Probable Prejudice

The death of "Al" Hummel in London reminded a New York lawyer of a story.

"Hummel," he said, "told a story about a man who was called into court on the charge of keeping a vicious dog. The man denied the charge, and when the first witness was called against him he sprang to his feet in a fury. 'That guy can't testify!' he yelled. 'Don't let that guy testify, judge. He's prejudiced.'"

"How do you know he's prejudiced?" said the judge. "He's prejudiced, sure," said the man. "The dog bit him."

Useless Treasure

A father, worn out with age and infirmities and deprived, by his carelessness and want of health, of the common society of men, craves himself and his, to make together a great mass of useless treasure. He has lived long enough, if he be wise, to have a mind to strip himself to go to bed; not to his very shirt, I confess, but to that and a good warm nightgown. The remaining portion, of which he has no further use, he ought voluntarily to surrender to those to whom by the order of nature they belong. —Montaigne.

Confidences

There is often a strong temptation to speak, when, by divulging a confidence, one might easily violate character, clear up serious misunderstandings, or lend a lover's quarrel; yet, if we are true to ourselves we must refrain, for if "to tell our own secrets is folly, to communicate those of others is treachery."

The wiser course is to refuse to give one's hand regarding the confidences of another, and so leave ourselves free to make the truth known. If, by doing so, we run prevent further injustice and misunderstanding.

Off the Reservation

They were telling a yarn in the white light belt about a small-time booking agent who heard of an all-Indian jazz band recently arrived in New York. He hustled to a Brooklyn theater and went backstage to the manager of the act.

"Are all of you really Indians?" he asked. "If you are, I think I can arrange a long route. You are really Indians, hey?"

"Yat could be the use of kiddle m'at you?" replied the leader. "Ye are all fool-heads." —Everybody's Magazine.

The Ruling Passion

A member of the Lambs' club tells of a comedian, who of late years had not had much luck, and who was deploring his notions of what his wife should be. "What money I have, if any such as it is, or might be, that is to say," he began.

"Wait a moment," said his lawyer. "I can put that in more legal language." "I know," said the comedian, "but I want to get a laugh."

MAHOGANY, MISERS AND MASTERPIECES

The question "What is mahogany" has recently been raised again. There are more than 60 answers to that question. More than 60 species of timber have at one time or another been put on the market under the name of mahogany.

"What of mahogany?" is a more interesting question to the man who buys it for his living room, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

How Mahogany Excels

Mahogany, queen of furniture woods, holds a scepter and has held it for 200 years. There have been hundreds upon hundreds of competitors. In what lies mahogany's patent to position? White pine has a softer and more even grain. Oak is sturdier. Other woods can be stained to resemble mahogany's natural warm reddish tone. Teak is superior for carving. Crassian walnut and hard maple often show far more entrancing figure. (Figure is a tree's autobiography revealed in the grain at a smooth polished surface). Mahogany's position rests in part on the characteristic combining light and dark ribbons which play like the ripples in water silk.

The flowing surface which mahogany presents to the eye constantly changing, constantly glowing almost lifts it out of the class of inanimate things in which all wood falls. It is a quality which mahogany shares with few other woods. But flitting changeableness is a false front. Not many other woods resist warp like mahogany. Other outstanding virtue in the estimate of the cabinet maker. Mahogany also takes glue well. And it must be granted that mahogany has guarded its glory well. The tree takes up its residence so deep in the tropical forest that the world cannot afford to make too many paths to it. It is far enough away to excite men's interest and yet near enough and abundant enough to be useful.

Europe's Chief Source. The United States imports mahogany from the West Indies, Central America, South America, Africa, France, England and Holland. But of course, the imports from France, England and Holland are shipments of mahogany from their respective colonies. What is known as true mahogany comes exclusively from the Caribbean countries. The mahogany limit touches the tip of Florida, blots all of Cuba and most of the West Indies spreads along the tropical coast of Mexico and extends over most of the area of the Central American Republics, through Panama, and bites deeply into the northern coast of South America. British West African mahogany figures more largely in American imports than logs from any country except Nienragum. It is an allied species.

Britain has a foothold in British Honduras largely because of mahogany and log wood. The colony of wood choppers which was established three needed protection of the crown. In response to their needs the Empire added another bit of real to the map. But England probably deserves some mahogany acreage because of Sir Walter Raleigh. He introduced not only tobacco but also mahogany to Europe.

Queen of Tropical Forest. Mahogany comes by its queenly rank among cabinet woods naturally. It is queen of the tropical forest. A mature tree usually rises a hundred feet to look down on the lesser tangled timber. It rules unchallenged over an acre or more of ground. The roots, resembling Louisiana cypress, spread out before they reach the ground. In the wondrous old days cutters erected a platform 10 or 12 feet high to escape chopping through so much wood. Now the roots are prized for their splendid figure. So modern cutting, following logging practice in the United States, keeps close to the ground. Logs are no longer squared; another victory for forest thrift. In many places trains and barges have displaced the ox teams and river floods as a means of transportation to tidewater. Last year the United States imported 72,000,000 board feet of mahogany (a board foot is one inch by 12 inches by 12 inches), nearly nine times the imports of 30 years ago. A single mahogany log will sometimes bring as much as $3000. No wonder, some men, enraptured by the beauty of the wood, have become mahogany misers. There is a record of one such miser in England. He hoarded a few chosen logs in his cellar. On no condition would he sell them. Each day, it is said, he descended the stairs lighting his way with a candle and dusted the logs with a silk handkerchief. After his death the logs were sold. Some of the miser's precious mahogany found its way to America.

Masters Worked in Mahogany

The old masterpiece models for modern furniture, the originals which good taste for two centuries has branded good, mostly are in mahogany. Thomas Chippendale was born in Worcester early in the 18th century. His family were wood workers. He grew up to be a wood worker also but he became a lover of beauty. Chippendale's chairs, tables and cabinets presented in his catalogue entitled "The Gentleman's and Cabinet Maker's Director" revolutionized domestic furniture styles. Many Chippendale designs are duplicated today in mahogany which he used more than any other wood.

Then along came Sheraton, minister, author, architect and cabinet maker. "Chippendale is all wrong," he said. Sheraton's style was a standard also. Then followed Hepplewhite, and Company. "Sheraton is all wrong," they said. Thereupon, they created the Hepplewhite style. All three masters in what is known as England's "Golden Age" of furniture-making worked chiefly in mahogany. Naturally the fact that masterpieces were made in mahogany, increased the wood's popularity.

PUSHING BACK THE UNITED STATES' EARLIEST KNOWN DATE LINE

Scientists are working out a gigantic jigsaw puzzle in the Southwest, first searching over hundreds of square miles of territory for the pieces that Nature has hidden through the centuries.

The story of this fascinating "game" is wrapped up in an announcement just made by the National Geographic Society that its Research Committee has made an additional grant of funds to continue this summer the "Beam Expedition" work under the leadership of Dr. A. E. Douglas of Steward Observatory, University of Arizona.

Age of America's Ancient Apartment Houses Unknown. No one knows the age of the interesting communal dwellings, America's first apartment houses, that have been unearthed in New Mexico says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The largest of these Pueblo Bonito in Chaco Canyon, has been intensively studied by National Geographic Society expeditions during the past six years. Much new information has been gathered in regard to these early Americans from the examples disclosed of their masonry, pottery, baskets, and jewelry; but in definite light has been cast on the age of their culture, for they had no calendar. Now this secret seems likely to be found out from the examination of what laymen might consider prosaic old wooden beams that supported the flat roofs of the Bonitos.

Dr. Douglas found some years ago that trees in growing not only leave a ring for each year, but that after the character of the ring denotes the particular year in which it grew. That is, in an unusually moist season an especially wide or well marked ring will be left in all the trees of the region subjected to the unusual conditions.

If a living tree 400 years old is cut and a recent characteristic ring identified, other outstanding rings made in the tree's growth can be dated centuries ago. These characteristic marks may be found, in turn, among the most recent rings of an ancient log preserved in a sandbank, and so Nature's calendar may be followed back still farther.

Scientists Hunt Old Wood

Since the working out of this method the scientists of the National Geographic Society's Beam Expedition have been searching the Southwest for specimens of ancient wood. Some have been discovered in the form of old tree stumps covered centuries ago by the sand and clay washed by some extraordinary storm. Others have been found in Indian pueblos, still in use and still others in the ruins of ancient structures.

In every case cross-sections have been prepared and microscopic studies made. Many of the specimens, of course, have been found to cover approximately the same period of time, but now and then a lucky find has pushed the earliest known date line of the United States a few decades or generations further back.

Mr. H. J. Petrie of 534 Main street, was one of three motorists to figure in a collision on Montvale avenue, near Campbell street in Woburn Wednesday night. He was driving a Nash touring car and was going east along Montvale avenue to turn into Campbell street when the accident occurred. The other cars involved were a Ford coupe, owned and operated by Walter H. Strobel of 13 Wright street, which was following Petrie's machine, and a Stutz roadster coming west on Montvale avenue, and owned and driven by James Butler of 30 Burlington street, Woburn. The Winchester man's machine was the only one which was not damaged.

The burned car was practically new, having traveled only about 2000 miles.

Newman of this town. The little girls, though only five years of age, are able to compete with children much older and always give excellent accounts of themselves. Evelyn's two sisters are also good swimmers.

Some are born fishermen and others acquire a love for fishing, but according to Squire Lunt it is the fellow who fishes day after day and years after year without catching much of anything worth noting, and who still persists at the sport, who is to be lauded. The Squire is a fisherman and has been for years. He still likes a trip down the harbor to the fishing grounds. But when his old boyhood friend, John Gutierrez, tangles his line up with another angler (who pulls out a congo eel which takes the prize) and gets a neat gift of $25 for his feat, the Squire says he feels sure there is a lot of hidden meaning in fisherman's luck. John, so they say, actually accomplished this last Thursday on the steamer Myrtle.

ST. MARY'S WON AT WOBURN

St. Mary's C. C. baseball team defeated the "Midgets" of the Woburn Sand Lot League Wednesday evening at Library Park, Woburn, 4 to 1. The game was a good one to watch, being for the most part a pitching battle between Francis Tansey, Winchester's crack southpaw and the veteran George "Kiko" Weafer.

Tansey had the edge, fanning 11 while allowing only 5 scattered hits. The venerable Weafer who was hurling high school ball almost before the sticky little St. Mary's pitcher was able to throw the American apple, was touched up for 8 bingles while fanning 3. Francis passed the only batter of the 7 frames.

The Midgets scored their lone run in the opening inning while St. Mary's bunched their tallies in the 3rd. The locals were considerably strengthened for the battle, the Dolan brothers, Fitzgerald and Chamberland being back in the lineup.

TRUCK COLLIDED WITH ELECTRIC

A big Pierce Arrow truck, owned by George E. Mincer of 43 Avon street, Wakefield, and an Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway car running between Woburn and Medford were in collision Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock on Main street in front of the Jenny Gasoline filling station. The truck, which was being driven by Charles E. Waitt of 14 Avon Court, Wakefield, was going south and struck the rear of the electric, breaking a window in the latter. The only injury reported was that sustained by John E. Nash of Roxbury, a passenger in the street car, who was slightly cut on the hand. Conductor W. J. Carney of Melrose was in charge of the electric.

WILDWOOD A BEAUTY SPOT

When enumerating the summer beauty spots of Winchester don't overlook Wildwood Cemetery. A place of much natural beauty, the painstaking care lavished upon it by Supt. Thomas J. Macksey and his assistants has made it in attractiveness second to none that we know of in this district. The marble and granite of its monuments seen against a background of velvet grass, well kept shrubbery, beds and walks, the whole canopied under many fine old shade trees makes a picture long to be remembered. When visited this spring by the New England Association of Cemetery Commissioners, Wildwood was characterized by that body as one of the finest and best kept cemeteries which it had seen. Aside from that occasioned by sentiment the place makes a strong appeal from the standpoint of sheer beauty. It is well worth a trip to see.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

A special meeting of the active members of the Winchester Boat Club has been called to take place at the club house, Monday evening, Aug. 9, at 8 o'clock. All active members who are residents of Winchester, are urged to attend if they can possibly do so. The meeting is to be of especial importance and it is very necessary that at least a quorum be on hand.

Winchester will be represented at the American Canoe Association's national meet at Lake George, N. Y., this year. Edward B. Sandberg and Kenneth M. Pratt will attend during the first week, from Aug. 14, to Aug. 21. Harry Gardner and Alan Hovey may join the first named gentlemen for the latter part of the week, and if they do, it is possible that they will enter into the club-four races. In any event, Sandberg will undoubtedly wield the double blades in the one-man events, and will be joined by either Pratt or Hovey in the tandem double blade races. Pratt will probably try his hand with the single blade as will Gardner. The Winchester paddlers do not expect to show up as a very powerful combination, but they do expect to gain in experience and incidentally, have a good time.

Mr. Herman Dudley Murphy will also attend this meet, as he does every year. Mr. Murphy has a wide reputation as a sailing canoeist and on a number of occasions has won races of importance.

THE 29th DISTRICT

Winchester Now to Have Its Own Representative in State Legislature

Winchester now has a State Legislature District of its own. No longer will it be paired off with one Ward of Melrose. The new district will be known as the 29th Middlesex District. According to recommendations filed with the Secretary of State this week by the County Commissioners, the latter body has decided to accede to the petition of prominent residents and the needs of the section, and create the new district. The revision of districts is made once in each 10 years.

Winchester residents are greatly pleased over the new division. For some time it appeared that this town would be apportioned with Lexington and a part of Arlington, meaning actually that Arlington would dominate the political field. This provision was earnestly opposed, although it would have been much to the advantage of our neighboring town in practically giving it three Representatives.

Our present representative, Mr. Thomas R. Bateman, has withheld his nomination papers until the matter of the new apportionment was settled, and he has now taken out papers which are being signed by Winchester people. Mr. Bateman will undoubtedly have the honor of being the first representative to appear in the General Court as representing this new and important district.

Not Alone

"It is a terrible thing," said the repentant prisoner, "to be known by a number instead of a name, and to feel that all my life I shall be an object of suspicion among the police." ### TWO-ALARM FIRE FOR RANGELEY HOME

During the thunder storm of last Tuesday afternoon the Fire department was called out at 4:50 o'clock by two alarms from Box 55 for a fire which threatened the home of Mr. Claude A. Hastings at 4 Rangeley Ridge.

How the fire started could not be exactly determined, but as the occupants had been away and the house closed since June it is thought that spontaneous combustion may have been responsible.

The fire was first noticed by a gardener in the employ of Mr. A. H. Marchant who saw smoke coming from the upper story of the Hastings dwelling while on his way home. Hastening to the home of Mr. R. V. Pettingell he told of his discovery and a call was immediately phoned to the Central fire station, summoning the Chief's car, Engine 1, Ladder 1 and Engine 3 to the scene.

The blaze was characterized by Chief DeCourcy as one of the most peculiar which he had experienced for some time. It originated in a closet on the second floor of the house and the flames ate both ways, going up a hatchway to the attic and roof as well as through the flooring to the room below. The fire did not spread but confined itself to a single small circular area about the closet. The heat of the fire coupled with the stifling atmosphere of the closed house and the heavy smoke made the work of the firemen doubly hard. A fight of about an hour and a half was necessary to subdue the blaze, the all out signal sounding around 6:30.

No estimate of the damage done was given out. The firemen confined the blaze almost entirely to a small area on the second floor of the dwelling, a hole only about 3 feet across being burned in the roof. Chemicals were used to extinguish the flames, eliminating the usual heavy water damage, but there was considerable havoc wrought by the smoke.

Quite a little crowd was attracted by the fire and the traffic in the vicinity was admirably handled by Sergt. William Rogers and officer James Farrell of the police. The first alarm sounded during one of the busiest times in the square and the heavy fire apparatus had to do some quick swerving to avoid some of the automobiles who were slow in obeying the traffic signals of officer Jack Hogan. The big ladder truck did not come many feet from the light touring car of one motorist who figured he had plenty of time to get across the square before its arrival.

KNDW YOUR OWN CAR?

Of course you do. But would you be able to pick it out of a crowd with unerring precision? The average man would say yes, and possibly would be right in his statement. That there is, however, room for error is convincingly demonstrated by the following which recounts certain happenings at the Winchester Country Club in the early evening Wednesday.

At 7 o'clock Police Headquarters was notified by Albert P. Smith of Myopia road that his Chrysler roadster had been stolen from the place where he had left it in the Country Club parking space. "Jack," as he is generally known, gave the police the data on the car and the authorities in 30 surrounding cities and towns were notified to be on the lookout for the machine. It remained, however, for the Winchester officers to run the car to earth.

Just before 9 o'clock traffic officer Rogan, on duty in the center, spotted Smith's car going through the square in the direction of Arlington. He immediately notified Sgt. William Rogers at headquarters and the latter got in touch with patrolman William Cassidy on the West Side beat. It sounds like a complicated process but the result of the action was that when the operator of "Jack's" car arrived at the corner of Church and Bacon streets he was stopped by officer Cassidy who was surprised to recognize in his supposed auto thief Mr. Benjamin F. Will of 3 Sheffield road.

Asked about the machine he was driving, Mr. Will averred that the same was his own and was greatly surprised to learn that such was not the case. The possessor of a Chrysler roadster of the same model, he had entered Mr. Smith's machine by mistake and had made off in it without discovering his error.

Together with officer Cassidy he drove to the Smith home where matters were straightened out in short order and amid considerable amusement.

The incident, however, was not closed, for the next morning the Smith chauffeur was stopped in both Arlington and Boston by policemen on the lookout for the stolen machine. In the latter case the driver was escorted to Station 3 and had some little difficulty in establishing his right to drive the car until the local authorities were reached and had proclaimed that all was well.

DEER TESTED ENOUGH THIS TIME

A Winchester man, charged with the illegal transportation of intoxicants and with driving without a license was found guilty on both counts by Judge Nash in the District Court at Woburn Wednesday morning after the case had been continued twice.

The defendant was arrested at 2:15 on the morning of Sunday, July 25, by officer James Farrell after the patrolmen had discovered that he had no license to operate in his possession and that his machine, a Dort touring car, contained a bag housing 12 bottles of beer and a glass.

Charged with the illegal transportation of liquor and driving without a license, the defendant appeared in the Woburn court the following Monday when his case was continued until last Tuesday to allow time for the analysis of the beer.

Tuesday at the resumption of the case the State's analysis was given as 2.87 per cent or 12 per cent above the 2.75 prescribed by the laws of the Commonwealth. Attorney Kenney, representing the defendant, asked for a second continuance on the grounds that the alcoholic content of the beverage in question might have increased 12 per cent between the time it was seized by the police and the time when it was subjected to analysis. He wished to satisfy himself that such had not been the case.

Apparently the State chemists did not feel that the beer had altered materially during the 24 hours which elapsed between the time of its seizure and analysis. Their opinion carried much weight and Judge Nash found the defendant guilty as stated above. He imposed a fine of $50 for the illegal transportation and $10 for the missing license.

ELKS RECEIVE BASEBALL CHALLENGE

Winchester Lodge of Elks has been invited to attend and participate in the outing to be held Aug. 25 at Mart in Luther Grove, Tyngsboro, by Woburn Lodge. In extending the invitation to the local Elks, the Woburn brothers express a desire to match hats in a baseball game. With the large number of expert players included in both lodges, an interesting game should be worked up.

Members of Winchester Lodge who desire to attend the outing are requested to notify Secretary James H. O'Connor before Aug. 12, and the baseball players are particularly requested to attend and participate in the match.

WHY THEY CALLED IT GEORGE WASHINGTON

School Committee Gives Reasons For Naming New School at North Reservoir

As announced last week, the School Committee has decided to name the new school building, now in process of erection at the North Reservoir near the Winchester Hospital, the George Washington. In making this decision the committee was influenced by two petitions presented it, one asking for the name "Highland," and the other supporting it in its original christening "George Washington."

The original christening was made by the committee it appears on its own initiative and without consulting or canvassing the district. Upon the announcement of this name many residents in the district objected, whereupon other residents supported the committee.

In announcing its final decision the committee has issued the following letter to the supporters of the name "Highland."

Winchester, Mass.
July 27, 1926

Mrs. Harry L. Pilkington,

Chairman of a group presenting a petition opposed to the name "George Washington" and of a group of petitioners favoring the name "Highland."

5 Wilson street,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Madam:

The School Committee have given serious consideration to your petitions received concerning the naming of the new school now being erected on Highland avenue. As you know, in addition to the petitions which you presented to the committee, another petition was presented requesting the committee not to change the selected name of "George Washington" unless it be to simply "Washington."

Your two petitions have more names upon them than the one favoring the name "Washington." There is, however, a very substantial number of residents of the district who are much opposed to giving up the name "Washington." It should be also said that the relative number of names on any petition is determined in part, at least, by the priority of presentation to those asked to sign. Such facts have been considered by the committee in coming to their decision.

Among the arguments presented by your committee was one stating that sentiment should have a part in naming the school and that this should be a local one rather than a national one. A very strong sentiment has been expressed by those who have lived for years in the section and who attended the Washington School, to keep the name "Washington." Here a local sentiment of significance is manifested. The school is dear to the memory of these people. They feel that the name is much more important to them as older residents of the district and as graduates of the school than it possibly can be for newer residents. It may be of interest to you to know that the first Washington School in Winchester was constructed in 1851. The name Washington has thus been attached to one of our schools for 75 years.

Among other arguments of your committee was one stating that there had been unpleasant associations connected with the old Washington School for years on account of the district in which it has been located and in some cases on account of the class of pupils in attendance there, and that to name the new school "Washington" would be to perpetuate these unpleasant associations. In reply to this we must say that the public schools serve all types and classes and recognize no social cleavage. To accept this argument would be an acknowledgement on the part of the School Committee that consideration had been given to social and economic distinctions. This the committee is unalterably opposed to doing.

Another argument of your committee is one that stated that historical research has shown that George Washington is not the man one would hold up before youth as a man of the finest character, in fact quite the opposite. Though we were shocked to hear this, and did not believe it, we have consulted a historian of ability who has assured us that such a statement is unfounded and would only be possible from ignorance of real historical facts.

The committee unanimously must, in the light of all these facts, respectfully decline to change the name which they have given to the new school. We do not know of any name that is, and should be, more revered by the American people than that of George Washington.

Respectfully yours,
School Committee
Robert M. Stone, Chairman.

BENEDICT CLUB LOST TENNIS MATCH AT ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

A win by Riley and Blanchard in the first match of the doubles prevented the Arlington Heights Tennis Club from making a clean sweep of its tournament with the Benedict Club at Arlington Heights last Saturday afternoon.

The doubles match won by the Benedict team was the feature of the tournament, being hard fought throughout. ## DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Men are paid either for what they think or for what their muscles do.

The next time you get cranky look in the glass and make faces at yourself.

If you go to your friend to tell him your troubles or to ask a favor, and he looks blankly at the wall, look for your hat and the door.

Forget the losses and mistakes of the past and live today. Your past experiences should have better fitted you for the future.

How often it is that we start out in the morning with a set of good resolutions for the day and begin limping by noon.

In passing along Mt. Vernon street not so long ago we overheard some of the conversation indulged in by two gentlemen standing upon the bridge spanning the Aberjona. "How long," asked one (pointing to the stagnant, weed-grown, scum-incrusted water of the mill pond) "do you think any other town, laying claim as Winchester does to being one of the most beautiful residential communities in greater Boston, would put up with a condition like that in the very doorway of its town hall?" His companion did not know. Neither did we. The question is, so far as we know, still open.

A recent dispatch from Washington states that the United States Bureau of Education is anticipating at no very distant date a lengthening of the high school day from the usual six periods to one of seven or eight. In support of its claim, attention is called to the city of Everett where the school day has been lengthened once each week on Wednesdays to include nine periods to provide needed time for chorus, orchestra and glee club work as well as for meetings of the lyceum, school council and other desirable activities. The life for boys and girls in American high schools has become so complex, with its athletics, musical and social activities that time must be provided during school hours for the studying which the busy young person is prevented by his interest in "extra-curricula" pursuits from doing at home. That is said to be the reasoning there.

The Star is inclined to be a bit skeptical of the longer school day, and especially so if that day is to be purely academic. In fact, Winchester has already tried lengthening its school periods to include supervised study by the teachers. The plan did not prove an especially happy one and was not long continued. Theoretically it was calculated to greatly diminish, if not entirely eliminate, home study. Parents complained that their children, arriving home much later from school, had fully as much studying to do as heretofore with less ambition to tackle the evening's pull at the books. The scheme did not appeal to the teachers; it goes without saying that it was not relished by the pupils. There are limits to the time which the growing boy and girl should be asked to spend on mental tasks. If the lengthened day is to be taken up with a supervised athletic program, that is another thing again. At present, however, Winchester has neither the facilities nor funds to provide them for such a program. It has found time to provide in its present school day a curriculum which seems sufficiently diversified. Lengthening that day would react as a hardship on the pupil who is obliged to work during his spare time. It doesn't seem necessary here. The parents should be able to supply the necessary impetus for successful home study even under the fetid social craze of the present era. If we are to credit recent statements of our High School Parent Teacher Association, they are going to do just that.

EVEN MALDEN SAW IT

The Winchester Star is very glad to know that the editor of The Malden Evening News is so much interested in what he terms "Democracy in Winchester." It is a known fact that if the coat, literally, fits too tight the wearer shouts.

In the article "Are You Democratic?" recently published in the Star, the editor was not aware of specifying any particular town or community. Conditions such as were described in the article exist wherever there are thinking people. Yet the editor of the Malden Evening News declares they do not exist in Malden.

A frank criticism is always welcome, but in his anxiety to criticize he misconstrued the meaning of the article to suit his own particular fancy, making it, seemingly, apply only to wealthy and aristocratic people. We would suggest that he read it again.

If the readers of his paper are as intelligent as he infers, they shouldn't be so short-sighted as to assume that an article published in a Winchester paper must apply only to Winchester people. We hope we are broader than that, and the article criticized has been farther-reaching than we anticipated. Even Malden saw it.

THE CHARM OF GOOD POETRY

Edited by Ellen Guild

In this poem by Jan Struther we are allowed a peep into somebody's middle-aged soul. Hanging on the brink between deep maturity and deeper old age who has not felt the urge of youth? Better to be old at once than be stung by these half-born desires.

FEAR

(By Jan Struther, in G. K.'s Weekly, London)
I am weary of youth—I wish that I were old:
For then my present would be full of peace,
My future free from fear, since it would bring Nothing more strange than death.

Oh, maybe then
I should not have this riot in my heart
Of ecstasy, these raptures of sudden joy,
Swift as the winds that shake the woods in Spring.
I should not know delight nor feel desire,
Nor with love's golden star-dust fill my eyes,
All bright and blinding-sweet.

But then, oh then
I should not have this panic in my soul,
Those moments when I shrink from life's unknown,
Desperate, sick with fear; these craven moods,
Moods when the blackest shadows of today
Stare white against the blackness of tomorrow,
And terror stifles thought.

If I were old,
Serene and safe, I should not suffer thus,
Wisdom would temper feeling. I should know
How little or how much or not at all.
Life matters. I should look with tranquil eyes
And quiet understanding on the young,
And pity them who had found content
Instead of joy, and rest instead of sorrow.

I am afraid . . . Would God that I were old.

All the world loves a lover. Especially when the lovers are young and the year is early summer. The poem below is a very good lesson for lovers to follow!

THE QUARREL

(By Harry Lee, in Smart Set)

We had quarreled, she and I,
She had stormed her pretty way,
Flared and flushed, and now we sat
Silent as the sultry day;
Silent as the thirsting leaves!
Then, across the tumbled hill
Ran a little rain-wind, crying:
"It is coming, come it will!"
Darkened skies, and suddenly—
Swift and beautiful, the rain—
Chaos had parted, and the sun,
Grown more kindly, shone again.

We saw the wheat on windy heights,
Rippling like a golden sea;
Wild birds filled the wood with song;
Dripping cheer coaxed the bee;
Pigeons preened their rainbow wings,
And the sweet one by my side,
Brushed the tears from her eyes,
Tossed her head and gaily cried:
"See how clear the air is now,
See how tender now the sky!
Did we quarrel? What about?
Lovers all should love July!"

The poem is supposed to represent typical English suburban entertaining. I wonder how many prototypes such a scene has in our own America?

ENTERTAINING

(By Edgar Tower, in G. K.'s Weekly, London)

I have guests in to dine,
They make jests over wine;
Play at whist for a bit,
Then desist playing it;
Talk the shop of the day,
Have a "drop" and then say
"We must go"—but they don't
And I know that they won't.
They'll remain what appears (To the same) many years
So I start to detect
From my heart every guest.
More polite would it be
And they might all agree!
Good and kind to say "How Would you mind going now?"
Etiquette will dictate
That it's better to hate!

THE WOODLAND NORTONS WON WINCHESTER FATHER AND SON TOURNEY

Young "Joe" Norton and his dad representing the Woodland Country Club with a medal of 78 won the annual Father and Son Tournament at the Winchester Country Club Wednesday afternoon, being one stroke under W. A. and Win Hersey of Wellesley who took second gross. These two pairs were the only competitors to break 80.

Two Winchester teams won the net prizes, Percy Goodale and son, Ben, having a winning card of 83-17-66, one stroke under the 80-13-67 turned in by J. L. S. and George Barton. Both these dads played around twice with their second sons, Bobby Goodale and Ed Barton. Young Billy Page, 11-year-old, 70-pound son of Larry Page of Weston was the youngest competitor to go around and his game was good enough to allow his team to break 100.

The teams from Winchester to compete in order of preference were P. A. and Ben Goodale, J. L. S. and George Barton, P. A. and Bob Goodale, J. L. S. and Eddie Barton, H. J. and H. K. Olmstead, C. H. and R. C. Carroll, G. O. Russell, Sr. and Jr., G. H. and J. P. Akins, W. D. and Charles Eaton, F. P. and R. M. Smith, F. M. and R. L. Smith, C. H. and C. L. Dodge, W. D. and A. S. Fairchild, and H. J. and C. S. Olmstead.

MARYKNOLL NOTES

Despite the excessive heat on Tuesday afternoon, one of the largest gatherings of earnest missionary workers so far assembled met at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald, 10 Hill street, for the regular Maryknoll party.

Some interesting communications were read, after which cooling drinks and sandwiches were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. John Mawn, Mrs. Harry E. Brown and Miss Kathleen Powers. The pictures of the circle were not taken because of the absence of the president, Mrs. Ella Fleming, who had been called to New York during the week by the death of Mr. Fleming's brother. The plan now is to take the pictures at the next party, to be held at the home of Mrs. Minnie O'Connor, Main street. These pictures are to be sent to Canton, China, and Jamaica, B. W. I. in answer to a request from the Mission Sisters.

The winners at whist included: Mrs. Edward Shea, Mrs. Flora White of Woburn, Mrs. Katharine Yetter, Kenneth Cullen, Mrs. Minnie O'Connor, Mrs. Mollie Maguire, Mrs. David Rangan, Mrs. Mary Roach, Miss Katharine O'Connor, Mrs. John Mawn, Mrs. Hannah Rafter of Woburn, Mrs. Abby McDonough, Mrs. Mary Kelley, Thomas Powers, Mrs. Mary Dooley of Woburn, Mrs. Nellie Moffett and Mrs. Edward McKenzie. The consolation went to Miss Sarah Sullivan.

ST. MARY'S TOO GOOD FOR ARLINGTON

About the only chance which the visitors had of scoring came in the opening inning when Chester got around to 3rd with but on away. With the clean-up men of the batting list coming up things looked a bit dubious but Kelley proved equal to the emergency, making Carpenter roll to Ambrose and Mandigan pup to Flaherty.

C. D. OF A. OUTING

At last night's regular meeting of the court, plans were completed for the big event of the summer season—the court's annual outing.

In charge of the affair this year we have an enthusiastic committee which has planned such an interesting day that the full membership of the court will be on hand to enjoy the festivities.

If a member wishes, she may take along some guests or her children, or both. The only thing necessary in this event is that she will get in touch with one of the following committee so that sufficient dinner reservations may be made: Chairman Nora O'Melia, Assistant Chairman Katharine F. O'Connor, Secretary Elizabeth C. McDonald, Regent Frances T. Conlon, Mrs. Minnie O'Connor, Mrs. Joseph Moffett, Mrs. Harry E. Brown, Mrs. Mary Kelley, Miss Mary Conlon, Mrs. Alice Martin and Mrs. Katharine Kean.

The committee announces also that caretakers will be provided to look out for the children at the beach.

It is the intention of nearly all the party to board the 9 a. m. train at either Cross street or Winchester, thereby being sure to connect with the 10:15 Nantasket boat at Rowe's Wharf. Those who plan to go in by trolley or to drive in must get in touch with either Mrs. O'Melia or Miss O'Connor at the wharf in order to obtain their tickets and dinner reservations.

Arriving at the beach, a swim will be in order, followed by dinner. Then will come the concert with Miss Katharine F. O'Connor in charge, assisted by Regent Frances T. Conlon and Sister Mollie L. Maguire. As the C. D. of A. concerts are noted for their brightness and pep, all are looking forward eagerly to this one. We are assured that the topical song written by Miss Katharine O'Connor and serving up hits on the various members, will surpass the efforts of other years and other composers. If it does, we'll publish it in next week's Star. The other concert stunts are so far being kept secret, except that we have been told that Ethel Kean will huck-and-wing during the choruses of the topical song while the singer is recovering her breath. Miss Mabel Coty will serve as accompanist.

As a re-action to the concert, whist will be enjoyed on the veranda and in the parlors of the hotel. Mrs. O'Melia has charge of this part of the outing. She will be assisted by Mrs. Mary Kelley and Mrs. Harry Brown. The prizes are all to be wrapped up so that at the conclusion of the whist many surprises will be in order.

If rainy on Tuesday, the outing will be held Wednesday and—don't forget the bathing suits and beach hats.

MR. CRAUGHWELL IS PLEASED

To the Editor of the Star:
In scrutinizing the columns of the last issue of the Star your humble servant was elated to learn that the group of men and women, namely the School Committee, manifested considerable spryness and exercised excellent judgment in naming the new school in honor of the Father of our country.

Now, Mr. Editor, I desire to inform some folks through the columns of the Star that George Washington University is in Washington, where the president of the United States' domicile is situated and where the most powerful court, namely the United States Supreme Court, renders decisions that are supreme insofar as more than 100,000,000 inhabitants of this continent are concerned. I am reminded, however, that the president, the Supreme Court, the United States Senate, the House of Representatives and the students and graduates of George Washington University have no objection, what-so-ever, in having the university named in honor of the First President of this country, and yet some folks in the residential town of Winchester evidently have manifested some spryness in opposition to naming the new school the George Washington School that is situated on the hill approximately eight miles from the Gilded Dome on Beacon Hill or the site of the elm tree where he took command of the American forces.

By the way, Mr. Editor, I trust that some of your correspondents, or in other words some of the folks whose names appeared on that illuminating petition that was published in a recent issue of the Star, will kindly inform the inhabitants of Winchester in the next issue of the Star why they are opposed to the name George Washington—and remember it was the George Washington steamer that crossed the briny deep (not the Delaware) and sailed or steamed over the treacherous mines and landed our soldier boys safely on the shores of the country that was made famous by Napoleon and asserted Lafayette. "We are here in order that democracy will not perish from the earth."

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

LOST, A PARROT

The police are constantly receiving reports that stray dogs, cats, children, and on occasion even horses and rows have been found and are being held against the arrival of their rightful owner, but we couldn't find any one in the department who could remember when the blither had hitherto held a notice to the effect that a stray parrot had dropped in for a social call on strangers and was being cared for until negotiations could be opened with its master.

Such was the case on Monday when Mr. G. W. Gates notified headquarters that a pol parrot had put in an appearance at his home on Warren street and was apparently in no particular hurry to leave.

Tuesday Mrs. Emily Latimore of Lawrence street called the station to learn whether any tidings had reached the police of a lost parrot which she was most anxious to recover.

Lieutenant Harold assured her that her pet was being cared for at Mr. Gates' home where we understand the reunion took place. The parrot's version of the affair had not been learned as the Star went to press.

ACCIDENT ON TURNPIKE

Mrs. Ethel F. Barnard and her two sons, Mr. Daniel F. Barnard and Mr. Richard Barnard of Fletcher street met with an unfortunate accident last Saturday morning on their way to Melvin Village, N. H. where Mrs. Barnard was to spend the month of August. They were riding in Mr. Daniel Barnard's Ford touring car on the Newburyport turnpike near Topsfield when Mr. Barnard put on the brake. As it had been raining a little, the road was very slippery, and the car skidded around and turned completely over. Mrs. Barnard received some bad cuts and bruises about her face. Mr. Richard Barnard also escaped with only some cuts and bruises while Mr. Daniel Barnard only hurt his side a bit. After several hours of rest recovering from the severe shock and fright, they continued the journey in another car. The Ford was quite badly damaged.

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH FRENCH RAILWAYS

Hints to American travelers on their first arrival in France are contained in the following bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The bulletin is one of a series issued by the Society on European travel.

A day or so before reaching port you will have visited the purser's office on shipboard to have a small amount of money changed into French currency, says the bulletin. Your boat-train ticket to Paris and a seat assignment will have been purchased on shipboard also. On stepping ashore you must pass through the customs room, assuring the French officials in particular that you have neither perfume nor cigarettes. Then you show your seat slip to your porter and follow him to your compartment. When he stores your hand baggage in the racks you are ready to make your first expenditure in French money.

The Gentle Art of Tipping

If you have only one or two light bags five to eight francs will be about right; if your luggage is heavy 10 to 15 will not be too much. Whatever you give will probably be received with scorn or with an indignant protest, for the porters have learned that this is a profitable attitude toward newly landed Americans. Don't be stampeded into doubling the fee on the spot as a certain number of Americans inevitably are. If you feel you have been generous enough wave the protesting gentleman away. If you feel that the amount should in fairness be revised upward, give an extra franc coin or two and he will probably go off happy.

With your baggage in place, you will find it worth while to saunter along outside your train until the odor of roasting food and a sign "Wagon Restaurant," on a car side tell you the location of the dining car. Near the steps you will probably find an official busily tearing colored tickets from a pad and passing them to your fellow travelers. The latter are making their seat reservations for luncheon, a custom which you soon wish might be introduced into America.

Dining Car Seats Reserved

In Europe there are no long lines of weary and hungry passengers blocking dining car corridors while they watch the fortunate diners, hoping each mouthful will be the last. Instead tickets are issued for the exact number of persons to fill the available seats, after which applicants must take tickets for a meal 45 minutes later or earlier. Finding the reservation attendant early will give you a choice of the first, second, third or fourth "series" of tickets. He will visit your compartment later, to be sure, but by that time you may have no choice other than to eat what should be a mid-day meal at either 10 o'clock or 2.

While you are waiting for your train to start you can begin some observations of French railway equipment. You have been struck already by the extremely awkward and steep steps that lead into the coaches. In America such steps would result in a succession of broken legs and necks and endless damage of suits; but apparently they cause little inconvenience in France. You wonder how any but the most agile of youthful travelers manage to negotiate them.

First Class Compartments

The coaches on the trains which operate from the chief ports to Paris are now mostly of the corridor type, almost as long as the standard coaches in America though not so high nor so heavy. The corridor extends down on side while on the other the space is divided into small compartments, seating six people each. You have looked upon first class, perhaps, as promising a certain amount of luxury; but you are disappointed to find that first class, on boat-trains at least, is little better than the day coach service in America. There is relative privacy, to be sure, since you have only five traveling companions, but three of these must ride backwards, sitting directly across in their rigid seats, necessarily staring at the passengers opposite them. In the American day coach, you recall, the seats are at least one behind the other.

The locomotives are not vastly different from those in America except that most of them are somewhat smaller. You come to think of these locomotives as much smaller than they are because of their shrill, piping little whistles, like those of steam shovels back home. The tenders are piled high with large black bricks the size of paving blocks. They are euphemistically called "briquesettes," and from the fires built of them pours a particularly sooty, black smoke. In the outer yards are great artificial mountains or coal dust from which the blocks are pressed.

"Thumb-Screw" Couplers

The coaches do not have automatic couplers of the American type, but instead are fitted with hand-operated devices in which the slack is adjusted by the turning of a large nut on steel threads. This arrangement is prized highly by Europeans and Englishmen who find the jerks of American couplers in starting and stopping most disagreeable. But the American cannot avoid thinking of toy trains fastened together by thumb-screws.

It is the little gondola freight cars that you pass in the yards when your train gets under way that brings the keenest memory of your toy train days, however. They look like slightly overgrown farm wagons with their wheels close together near the middle. The wagon illusion is heightened when you see that much of the switching is done by horses, usually in tandem, who have no difficulty in drawing these little vehicles and their loads.

Baggage Through the Window

The windows of French passenger coaches must be rated far superior to those of American cars. They are very large and it doesn't require the strength of a prize fighter or a football hero to open them. Usually a reasonable tug will lower the large, single glass plate almost out of sight.

These windows, incidentally, figure largely in French travel. Most of the hand baggage moves in and out of them. When your train draws up to the platform of your terminal station, a long string of porters stands in readiness. The porter opposite your window is your man; or more properly, perhaps, you are his. The generally accepted method there is to hand him your luggage through the window noting the number of his badge, and then to join him as quickly as possible. You grow to prefer this method to the tantalizingly slow procession down an American car aisle, your suitcase bumping the man in front, while that of the man behind bumps you.

Jimmie Didn't Quite Qualify for "Raise"

Jimmie was the office boy. Mr. Bailey was his boss. Jimmie had worked for Mr. Bailey nearly two years. And worked hard. Never had the office been kept in better order. The mail was always on time.

But Jimmie had "stinky" fingers. Pencils, postage stamps, rubber bands and other little tidings were wont to suddenly disappear. Jimmie felt himself innocent. He wouldn't actually steal anything. But Mr. Bailey had so many postage stamps, so very many pencils, that one or two wouldn't be missed.

One day Jimmie went to Mr. Bailey and asked him for an increase in salary. Said Mr. Bailey: "Jimmie, our customers are satisfied with our product. They are glad to pay our price. Now, I am buying your product—service. I am not altogether satisfied with it. But I will be, and I will be glad to pay your price when your service has the same thing to it that characterizes our product."

"What is that thing?" asked Jimmie. "Honor and integrity," replied Mr. Bailey.—New York Commercial.

Went Him One Better

A coddler in a university town, wishing to meet the clever advertising of an encroaching and unscrupulous rival, asked one of the professors to give him a Latin phrase that he could place in the window and attract the attention of the students. The professor promptly wrote the words "Mens Conscia Reclit" (a clear conscience). The shoemaker had the sign painted and with much pride hung it in a conspicuous position in his window. Imagine his discomfiture when he saw on a gaudy sign in his rival's window, the following day, the words "Meo's and Womeo's Conscia Reclit."

Legal Wisdom

Lawyers have some odd experiences. A good citizen died. The last request he made of his wife was not to let the undertaker twist his lips so he would appear to be smiling. "I've not had a very good time in life," said he, "still I don't want it to appear I am faked to go." But when the undertaker got through with him there was a trace of a smile on the man's face and the widow wanted the lawyer to tell her what to do. The answer depended upon wisdom rather than on precedent. The lawyer said: "Do nothing. What your dead husband doesn't know won't hurt him."—Carter's Weekly.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

NEW FIELDS TO CONQUER

Gas seems to revolutionize every industry that it enters, and now the reproduction of music is being done by the little blue flame.

An English inventor has perfected a gas burning phonograph in which gas flame is used to reproduce the notes. Vibrations from the diaphragm are transmitted to small gas burners attached inside the sound box, and it is said that the music thus resulting is of unusual purity, particularly successful in recreating the clear lovely tones of the violin.

Every day brings word of some new application of gas, especially in processes of manufacturing. When it has been so conclusively proved that "if it's done with heat you can do it better with Gas" wouldn't you think that every manufacturer, for his own satisfaction, would investigate the possibilities of gas service in his own plants?

Engineered to a Standard - Built Complete at the Factory

"Engineered to a standard." To do one job only—and to do it perfectly—to heat homes. To provide always, regardless of weather, just the right heat, at the right time. To operate without the expert supervision given industrial oil burners—but to be instead, wholly automatic. To be quiet, odorless, clean. To be unfailingly and instantly efficient. To be genuinely economical.

This, in Klean-Heet, is both an ideal and an actuality. For not only is Klean-Heet "engineered to a standard." It is also "Built complete at the factory." Klean-Heet's efficiency does not depend upon complicated installation. Nothing is left to artisans unskilled in the science of heating. In Klean-Heet, everything necessary to efficient operation in your home comes in-built, according to engineers' specifications.

That is why, through more than six years, Klean-Heet has so remarkable a record of performance. In homes of every size—and in every type of heating plant.

JUAREZ: SCENE OF "FOREIGN JOURNEYS FOR 12 CENTS"

Just as the United States' own frontier towns have quieted down in recent years, with a loss in atmosphere, perhaps, but a welcome gain in the life expectancy of the citizens, so the country's adopted resorts just over international lines, seem to have lost something of their old-time raucous personalities, says a communication to the National Geographic Society from McFall Korbey.

Take as Exhibit A, Juarez, probably Mexico's most important border city, which lies beyond a sluggish stream and a short bridge from El Paso, Tex. Juarez seems to have had its fill of the hectic dance hall and saloon days that followed on the heels of our 18th Amendment. Wild oats have palled, apparently; and the community has settled down to cater with measurable soberness—and certainly lucratively—to the type of American tourist who has only a minor inhibition or two to fling overboard when he finds himself, for an hour or so, in a foreign land.

Curfew at 9 O'Clock

No doubt a great deal of Juarez's recently acquired near-sedateness is due to its very effective curfew. No bell rings; but at exactly 9 o'clock, Mountain time, each evening a gate on the international bridge clangs closed. If any Americans are so luckless as to be south of the gate at that interesting moment they must remain for the night, and hotels of the usual American standard are not numerous in Juarez. It happens, therefore, that dinner, dancing and the begira across the bridge have become the fixed order of the El Paso-Juarez evening.

Business men and their wives from El Paso, a sprinkling of the American younger set, tourists from the four corners of the country, and a few Mexicans of the better class: these make up the table groups about the dance floors of the principal Juarez cafes each evening. The food is all that could be wished for: the usual American and Continental dishes, a few characteristic Mexican viands, and, thanks to Mexico's lenient game laws, venison, duck and quail.

Seated in one of the better Juarez cafes, one cannot avoid the thought that his situation is about what it would be in a fashionable club-cabaret some thousands of miles farther north. The outstanding differences seem to be that his surroundings are not so luxurious nor so exclusive.

How Dancers Pay the Piper

But the parallel must not be pressed too closely. All of the West's breeziness and the piquancy of Latin lands has not been rooted out. Juarez has a way all its own, for example, of proclaiming the old truth that he who dances must pay the piper. Hanging above the center of each dance floor is a contrivance of metal funnels, one directed toward each of the four walls. This fearfully made thing is a collector of perquisites for the orchestra. Music for a few whirled about the floor, then dead silence that must be broken by the rattle and clang of coins tossed down the machine's metal maws by the dancers. When the practiced ear of the orchestra leader estimates that a gill or so of gold hard money has been doled out, the music strikes up again with an added verse that is probably well worth to the dancers the coins that have stimulated it.

There is nothing noticeably exotic nor unrestrained about Juarez dancing, at least in the better cafes. Young and old and middle-aged Americans seem out for the dance south of the Rio Grande in exactly the same spirit in which they pursue their pleasures on the north bank of that river, or near the Potomac or the Hudson. There is the same music, the same steps, often the same people.

Twelve-Mile Speed Limit

Promptly at 8:30, each evening Juarez gives an early rendition of Cinderella's midnight departure. The "night life" dies a-borning. Orchestras suddenly stop and their members hurriedly pack their instruments. Chairs are pushed back. Outside, automobile horns begin to toot. But cars do not dash madly about. The new and somewhat chastened Juarez has restricted automobile speeds as well as evening entertainments; and the American who drives faster than 12 miles an hour has only himself and his hurried Gringo ways to blame if he is invited to swell the municipal treasury.

The cafe center of Juarez is nearly half a mile from the international bridge; but within a few minutes after 8:30 an unbroken line of automobiles extends to the river, while on side streets other cars wait to take their places. It is a slow job getting Juarez's evening throng of Americans repatriated for the night. Every car and its occupants must be given at least a cursory examination on the bridge by both immigration and customs officials. The procession starts and stops seemingly hundreds of times. When the early closing regulation first went into effect some cars were caught on the Mexican side every night. But practice has smoothed out difficulties, and now, usually several minutes before the bolts are shot home on the bridge gates, the last cars have rolled into the United States to scatter their passengers to homes, hotels, and theaters, or to places where they may dance away the rest of the evening under purely American auspices.

Day Time Juarez Drab

Juarez of the day time is a rather drab affair away from the market and the ancient church. Dust seems to strike the predominant note. The streets are dusty; the adobe houses are mostly dust-colored; even the very few bits of greenery seem sadly in need of a bath. One or two streets are paved; here and there in the residence sections the graceless adobe gives way to charming little places in Spanish style with pleasing architecture and palms and vines; now and then the Latin love of color bubbles up in a humble home owner and he covers his khaki walls with pink or blue or yellow stucco. These things show what Juarez may do when it truly finds itself.

But there are compensations for Juarez's drabness. On the sidewalks are handsome, dark-eyed youngsters and women in quaint costumes, while peons plod down the street beneath colored blankets and great broad-brimmed hats, and leather decked horsemen with huge spurs clang by. There is no mistake about it: when you are in Juarez, even though you can see a battery of American skyscrapers a stone's throw away, you are truly in a foreign land.

A little red tape must be negotiated in getting permission to go to and from Juarez, but not much. If you live in El Paso you carry with you, as a matter of course, along with your keys and your pocketbook and a clean handkerchief, the equally necessary passport with your picture attached. For who can tell at what moment a business acquaintance may suggest: "Let's run over to Juarez for lunch," or a hostess may ring up and ask you to join a dinner party on the Calle Commericia?

Economy in Paper

If you are a tourist the matter is even simpler. You stand in line, before a Mexican immigration official, you answer a few questions of a highly person character, you ink your thumb and smudge it on a card. Then, if you have shown satisfactory proof of your identity, you are permitted to enter Mexico at will for 10 days without charge. But the grim determination of the Mexican Immigration Service to avoid donating the tiniest bit of paper to tourists leads to some amusing incidents.

In the line ahead of me were a young man and his wife from Spokane who presented their marriage certificate as an evidence of their identities. "This will do nicely," said the official; and before the surprised couple could object he had spread the certificate on his desk and had banged down on it a rubber stamp as big as a postal card. "Turista" appeared in big blue letters. A few dashes of his pen, and the official handed the document back better than new—a marriage certificate and a passport rolled into one.

Next in line was a young woman from St. Louis who somewhat diffidently presented what appeared to be the envelope of a love letter—certainly a personal missive, addressed to her in a masculine hand. This, too, was a prize for the inspector, and the envelope's back became her passport. Warned in advance of the great Juarez paper shortage, I presented in addition to identification cards, a sheet of paper bearing my letterhead. The "Turista" stamp was placed near the top of this. The inspector then very carefully tore off the unused portion and asked if he might keep it. He feared, apparently, that the supply of marriage certificates and love letters might run short.

Electricity "Imported" From America

In many ways Juarez profits from the nearness of its big sister city across the Rio Grande. And there are plenty of El Pasoans who insist that the profit works both ways. All day long motor cars bearing American license plates throng the streets of Juarez. In the cafes and souvenir shops English is the predominant tongue. American money undoubtedly pours southward across the river in a steady stream. During the day El Paso power flows over international wires to help turn the wheels of Juarez, and at night the little city is largely lighted by current imported from America. For all of this, of course, there is a compensating flow of dollars northward. The town's street railway is a belt line from El Paso which enters over one bridge, penetrates the business district, and returns over another bridge—a foreign journey for 12 cents.

There are less tangible exchanges between these sister communities. The Mexican traffic officers who efficiently herd the long lines of American automobiles to the bridge learned their craft in the more strenuous traffic lanes of El Paso. When a disastrous fire threatened Juarez recently red tape disappeared and tens of thousands of dollars worth of great steel and brass fire-fighting machines were temporarily "exported" to Mexico along with the brawn and skill of American fire-fighters. When El Paso celebrates, units in Mexican uniforms add color to the line; and on summer evenings Juarez bands often furnish characteristic Mexican music in El Paso parks. Altogether these strikingly different communities on the Rio Grande seem to have established a unique sort of "municipal symbiosis," each contributing something which the other lacks.

Indian Summer

Scientists have described the warmth of Indian summer as oxidation of drying and dead leaves. Persistence of northerly winds may neutralize warmth of Indian summer, but oxidation of organic matter continues.

Good Finders

"If my youngsters are as successful at other things in life as they are in finding things, some good luck is always going to be with them," said a mother as her boy handed her a small blacksmith hammer he had picked up on a country road. "They have brought me in ice pick, a jar of sticky candy, a half-pint bottle of cream, a gallon of maple syrup, a rail clipper, a pair of eyeglasses in a case which I've advertised for days without any response, a no-kite, indeed, if I'd kept a collection of all the things they've found it would resemble a rummage sale."—Springfield Union.

ST. MARY'S WON AT WOBURN

St. Mary's C. C. of this town won a 5 inning twilight game from the St. Joseph's club of the Woburn Samlot league Wednesday evening at library Park, 5-3. Tansey was on the mound for the locals and his offerings proved puzzling to the tanning city lads, only 2 scratch singles being garnered off his delivery. Both of these hits came in the 2nd frame and coupled with a pair of wild pitches by Tansey resulted in two more or less unearned.

With two away Deangelis literally threw his hat at one of Francis' benders and the ball caromed away to left field for a fluke hit. He stole second and went to third when a bad third strike got away from Melly allowing R. Powers to make first. Tansey bore down on Anderson and in doing so threw one into the dirt in front of the plate. The ball struck Melly on the chest and bounced away, both Deangelis and Powers scoring. Anderson subsequently walked and Wheeler dragged a punt along the third base line for a safety P. Powers fanned for the final out.

Anderson opened the 5th with a free ticket and moved up on a second pass to Wheeler. The former scored when Tansey duplicated his former wild pitch, but this ended the rally which fell 2 runs shy of enough to tie.

A double by "Tom" Dolan and a home run by Francis Tansey in the 1st gave St. Mary's a couple of markers and they added one in the 4th as a result of Ambrose being hit by the pitcher, Melly's sacrifice and a hit by "Tom" Dolan.

St. Mary's put the game on ice in the 5th when Chamberlain's single, Fitzgerald's double, a wild pitch and an error gave the locals a second brace of tallies. Fitzgerald, Tansey and "Tom" Dolan were the hitting stars for Winchester. The local outfielders did not have a chance during the game.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

VOL. XLVI NO. 4

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, AUGUST 13, 1926

PRICE SEVEN CENTS

WINCHESTER GIRL MARRIED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

The marriage of Miss Isabel Ogan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Carleton Ogan of this town and Oxford, N. H., to Mr. Paul Rockwell Holman of Leominster, took place Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 4, at 4 o'clock in the West Congregational Church, Oxford, N. H. The church altar was banked with halsam and spruce trees among which were clumps of pink hollyhocks and larkspur giving the appearance of an old-fashioned garden. Pink sweet peas and larkspur decorated the organ carried out the same color scheme.

Mr. Robert R. Cookman of Fitchburg, as head usher was in charge of the wedding preliminaries. As the organist, Miss Ruthella Morse, played the wedding march from Lohengrin the four ushers, Mr. Lawrence McQuarrie of Quincy, Mr. Robert C. Rockwell and Mr. Richard C. Rockwell, cousins of the groom, of Leominster, and Mr. G. H. Clay Marsh of Nashua, N. H., led the wedding procession followed by the two bridesmaids, Miss Alice Ogan, sister of the bride, and Miss Margaret Tibbetts of Nashua, N. H., wearing pink gowns and black and white picture hats and carrying bouquets of blue larkspur. Next came the matron of honor, Mrs. G. H. Clay Marsh of Nashua, N. H., in a larkspur blue satin gown and hat and carrying pink sweet peas. Following her was the little flower girl, Pleasantine Wilson of Tuckahee, N. Y., cousin of the bride, wearing a pink frick and hat trimmed with blue and carrying a basket of pink sweet peas. Last on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Earl B. Wilson of Tuckahee, N. Y., came the bride in an ivory satin gown, the band of Alcon lace on the edge of which bordered the long train also. The bride's veil was of white tulle banded with Alcon lace and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridegroom and best man, Mr. Albert J. T. Woll of Chicago, Ill., awaited the bride at the altar. The bride's father performed the wedding ceremony at the close of which the bride and groom stood in the vestibule of the church and received their friends informally. After the wedding party left the church a reception to the relatives of the two families was given at the summer home of the bride, on the Ridge, in Oxford.

At noon on the wedding day an attractive and delicious dinner to the wedding party and relatives of the bride and groom was served by Mrs. Mann in the log cabin of the Oxford Lodge.

The young couple received many handsome wedding gifts. They will make their home in Leominster, where the groom is engaged in business with his father, Mr. William E. Holman.

DRASTIC REDUCTION IN FRIGIDAIRE

The local firm of Kimball & Earl announce drastic price reductions effective immediately on all lines of Frigidaire. The cut in price ranges from $20 to $90. Increased demand for Frigidaire, followed by increased production, is assigned as the reason by E. G. Biechler, president and general manager of Frigidaire.

"Through anticipated production increases we expect to materially lower our production costs," said Mr. Biechler commenting on the announcement. "We have sold more than 200,000 Frigidaire to date—a larger number than has been sold by all other makers of electric refrigerators combined. We feel that the public will demand Frigidaire in ever increasing quantities and now it is time to pass on the savings that will be accomplished."

Frigidaire recently announced a $20,000,000 factory expansion program which will give it an output of 600,000 refrigerator units next year. This new General Motors plant will be completed within a short time and will be in production early in 1927.

The price cut affects Frigidaire metal cabinet models, residential and commercial installations and also cooling units designed for use in the standard makes of ice boxes.

"Retail sales for the first seven months of 1926 indicate that we will pass far beyond the $80,000,000 market set as our goal for this year," Mr. Biechler said. "We have every reason to believe that cold weather sales will run many times higher than last year, for the public is just beginning to realize that it is summer in the kitchen the whole year round and that adequate refrigeration is needed every day in the year."

During the past 20 years, the expectancy of life of the average American citizen has been prolonged 10 years. This has been done through dissemination of knowledge of sanitation and health safeguards, plus the fine work done by the government in supervising the preservation of foods in transit. Better refrigeration in the home is the next logical step.

Rapid strides are being made by Frigidaire in the commercial refrigeration field. Sales to grocers, restaurateurs, meat dealers, druggists and florists have more than doubled in the past year. The tremendous increase in this field is altogether due to the great economies and added convenience afforded by electric refrigeration, Mr. Biechler stated.

FIREWORKS MONDAY EVENING

Italian Citizens to Observe Feast of the Assumption With Two-Day Program

"Italian Day," the so-called celebration by Winchester's Italian citizens of the Feast of the Assumption, a holy day internationally observed in the Roman Catholic Church, will be noted this year with a program characterized as the most elaborate that has been undertaken since the inception of the day's observance which has come to be one of the high lights of the summer months not only for this town but for the entire district.

Winchester's Italian celebration has won for itself a reputation which each year attracts huge throngs to the band concert and display of fireworks on Manchester Field with which the holiday is brought to a close.

This year's observance of the Feast of the Assumption falls on Sunday, Aug. 15, and as a consequence it was decided to make the celebration a two-day affair closing with the usual display of fireworks on Monday evening, Aug. 16.

In passing, it might be well to state that this celebration of the Feast of the Assumption has no patriotic significance. Its significance is religious. It is a holy, or feast day, and its observance here is merely the perpetuating of a time honored native custom by those Italians who now call America and more particularly Winchester, home.

This year's plans call for a rather full program on Sunday, starting with a hand concert in the Italian section of the town at 9:30 in the morning. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a parade beginning at St. Mary's Church with a line of march traversing Washington and Mt. Vernon streets to the square, thence by Main and Swanton streets to the Italian section comprising Florence, Irving, Holland, Dak and Spruce streets. The parade will break ranks at St. Mary's, the return there being by way of Swanton and Washington streets. Plans have been made to have the houses and stores in the Italian section decorated with flags and colored bunting during the celebration.

At 7:30 p. m. Sunday's program will be concluded with a public hand concert played from the band stand on Manchester Field.

Monday's program calls for a hand concert on Manchester Field from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. with a display of fireworks commencing at 9:30.

This year's music is expected to be especially good, the committee having been to considerable trouble and expense in securing the Italian Marine Band of Boston, Frank Popeo, conductor, to play at all the concerts on both Sunday and Monday. This organization enjoys a fine reputation among the Italian hands of the State and is equipped to render programs of classical selections so prized by music lovers. Its soloists, M. Prestutti, cornet; A. Grandolfi, trombone; and G. Alele, haritone, are capable performers upon their chosen instruments.

But, when all is said and done, it is the fireworks which attract most of the people to Manchester Field year after year, and with this in view the committee has worked hard to ensure an even better than usual display for Monday evening. While it seems hardly possible to eclipse those of previous years, we have the word for it of one experienced in such matters that this year's pyrotechnical display will be the best which Winchester has ever seen. The contract has been awarded to the Pearl Fireworks Company of Berkeley, R. I., one of the foremost manufacturers of typically Italian fireworks in this part of the country. Their recent display put on in connection with the Salem anniversary celebration was called the finest ever seen in that city. They have for some time had big contracts in Fall River and were recently the winners of a medal awarded by the city of Providence, R. I., for the best display of fireworks in competition with other firms. It would seem that Winchester is in for something rather good next Monday evening.

BRENDA BOND OPENS WITH NEW SHOW

Philadelphia papers have been particularly kind in their praise of Brenda Bond, who is playing one of the leads in the new musical comedy opening there last week, and dramatic critics declare her a hit of the production, "Bubbling Over," now playing to crowded houses, a most unusual feature for summer months. Miss Bond supports Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, and her song "True to Two," is said to be destined to be more popular in public favor than its predecessor, "Tea for Two." "Bubbling Over" is playing at the Garfield Theatre previous to its New York showing.

ST. MARY'S FOUND MIDGETS HAD ATTAINED FULL GRDWTB

One bad inning by the locals in last Saturday's baseball game on Manchester Field was enough to give the Woburn Midgets, leaders in that city's Sandlot League, a 2-0 win over the St. Mary's C. C. team of this town. Incidentally that one bad frame, the 8th, was enough to take the edge off what had been up to that time a gilt edged pitching duel between "Kiko" Weafer, veteran right hander of the visitors, and the equally experienced orthodox hurler, "Mex" Kelley of the Winchester club. Both are cagey old flingers with years of real experience behind them and the battle they waged was the feature of what otherwise was rather an uninteresting matinee. Kelley was every bit as good as the winning Weafer but the latter had the better support. "Eiko" was very good in the pinches, keeping the ball everlastingly out of the alley and forcing the quick-hitting St. Mary's batters to go after a lot of bad balls. The locals actually had more scoring chances than their opponents but had absolutely no punch when needed. The absence of "Jim" Fitzgerald, Francis Tansey, "Vin" Ambrose and "Flats" Flaherty takes a big edge from the batting strength of the Winchester team.

The Midgets won the game in the 8th, as stated above. The runs were both unearned and might easily have been prevented by some heads-up baseball playing. "Joe" Duran, first man up for Woburn, lifted a high fly in back of first base, just out of reach of both Chamberland and O'Donnell. "Spike" touched the ball after a hard run but couldn't hold the pill, the blow going for a hit. "Tom" Duran attempted to sacrifice and rolled the ball along the first base line. "Nip" Chamberland, an outfielder pressed into service at the initial sack, went after the ball, leaving the base unguarded with "Spike" O'Donnell covering second on the right hand hitting "Tom" Duran. Kelley took the latter's roller in plenty of time, but found no one to throw to at first for the putout. O'Donnell tried to make the bag but couldn't quite reach Kelley's perfect throw which rolled into the crowd, allowing the Duran boys to make second and third with no one out. The count should have stood one away with a man on second and the run would never have scored since the next two batters, Carey and Desmond, lifted to Dolan and Prue. As it was, however, "Joe" Duran counted on Desmond's hoist and "Tom" was over, a bit later when McManus' grounder went right through "Jomma" Dolan. It was hard luck for Kelley who had pitched a great game, but baseball is like that. St. Mary's has been woefully weak at first base all year when "Fitzie" has been out of the lineup and last Saturday was just another time when the value of a first sacker who knows how to play the bag became especially apparent. As we have said before the locals have been up against it for players all season and few of the boys have played any one position long enough to be thoroughly at home in it.

Both teams played some loose ball in the opening frame, but Weafer and Kelley managed to weather the storm. Woburn got a start with one away when Chamberland allowed "Tom" Duran's grounder to seep through his legs. Carey forced Duran at second, Kelley to D'O'Donnell, but made second when the latter threw wildly to first in trying for a double play. Desmond hit one at Ambrose which the latter failed to hold, Carey making third. On an attempted double steal Kelley intercepted Melly's short peg and his return caught Carey at the plate, retiring the side.

Winchester had a nice chance in its own half. After "Tom" Dolan had fanned, Callahan got a life when "Tom" Duran's throw pulled Desmond off first. Another wild peg by "Dinny" McManus on "Jomma" Oolan's hopper filed first and second and with Kelley up it looked like a score. "Mex" hit to "Tom" Duran forcing Callahan at third while O'Donnell's rap to the same player forced Kelley at second to end the frame.

WINCHESTER OF 25 YEARS AGO

(The seventh and last of a series of articles on Greater Boston towns and cities published in the Sunday Herald of Aug. 8, 1926.)

In trying to turn back the pages of history in any community, seeking perhaps to find out what sort of a place some town was at the close of the last century, prying perchance and by accident into a corner cupboard where a family skeleton has mouldered unmolested for 25 years; what more natural than to expect that in architecture and people the greatest change will be found?

That may be the rule, or it may be the exception which proves it; but if it is the rule, then Winchester is the exception; and vice versa, so that proof is forthcoming in any event.

Town Has Built Well

The fact remains that when the light of investigation was thrown on Winchester's past of approximately 25 years ago, I found after cruising about that beautiful residential community for the better part of a week, that the town had built well both in material structures of stone and steel and wood, and in citizenship.

Not therein was found the greatest change. The township of Winchester was incorporated in 1850, according to town record "clear of debt," and settling sail under the motto: "Economy and Prompt Payment." It would seem that the town fathers had hewn religiously to the line since.

In fact the town was not even responsible, directly, for the greatest change which has come over its face dating from the end of the 19th century. Winchester had many beautiful bits of natural scenery close to the centre of the town prior to that date, and for that matter has had them since, though in surroundings greatly glorified, for it was in the summer of 1900 that the Mystic Valley Parkway of the Metropolitan District Commission's reservation was completed through the very heart of Winchester. This one thing has perhaps done more to effect a change in Winchester's appearance, in that section at least, than any other.

Happenings and People

But when you hark back in the life of a town a quarter century is it not primarily of things such as this that one wonders. Thoughts turn rather to outstanding happenings and people of that era, to matters and things which were town gossip at the time.

So what more apt then, that in delving into town lore for some such events, that the writer should come across a letter written in 1900 to the Board of Selectmen of Winchester by Thomas B. Winchester, then of 138 Beacon street, Boston, after whose family the town was named. The heart of the letter was as follows:

"Will you please accept this portrait of my father and the punch bowl sent herewith."

Just how many of Winchester's present residents, not excepting those who were living there at that time, can tell offhand just where either of these mementos is now? Do they know for a certainty that the care and efforts at preservation which the town fathers promised in their reply to Mr. Winchester had been since carried out by succeeding administrations of the town's government?

Wonderous and Beautiful Bowl

This punch bowl is a wondrous and beautiful thing which was presented to the elder Winchester by a group of friends in memory of the many happy hours they had spent on his yacht. It is of massive design, and so perfectly and minutely wrought that actual miniature anchors and buckets and such things typical of seafaring hang from it. But where is it?

As a matter of fact no fears need be born on that score. After its self-appointed guardians had spent many a weary moment each day bringing it up from the vault on the town hall basement and then back again, the memento was carefully cleaned, polished, lacquered, and then sealed in a glass case. This completed, the case was placed on a shelf in what is now the reading room of the town library, just as safe from being employed for the contra-Volstead purpose for which it was originally intended, safer in fact, than had the prohibitionists realized their dream in 1900. The portrait as well is in the same building.

Funeral services were held at the Bennett home, 272 Highland avenue, on last Saturday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Mr. Arthur Tucker of Lexington sang several selections. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

Mrs. Earl W. Doub and daughter, Miss Janet of Stone avenue returned Sunday from an extended vacation at Boonsboro, Md. Mrs. Doub's father, Chief William R. McIntosh of the Police Department, left town last week, Wednesday for Boonsboro and accompanied his daughter back to Winchester.

Most of her childhood days were spent at East Orange, N. J., to which her parents removed while she was at an early age.

She was married on Sept. 9, 1909 to Wayne B. Thompson and lived following her marriage, in Bloomfield, N. J., until 1912, at which time she removed to Center Furnace, Center County, Penn. her husband's parental home. She had since her home in Winchester since 1914.

Surviving are her husband, three children May Brooks Thompson 15, William Irvin Thompson 13, and Elizabeth Thompson 12, two sisters, Miss May Brooks of Winchester and Mrs. William P. Beaver of New York and Beirga Leakes, and a brother, James E. Brooks of Glen Ridge, N. J.

WORK ON WAR MEMORIAL
REGUN

Ground was broken this week for the foundation of Winchester's War Memorial which is to be erected on the high school site at the corner of Main street and the Parkway. The monument is to stand at a point on an almost straight line extending from the corner of the lot to the southeast corner of the school building about 60 feet from the intersection of the sidewalks on the Parkway and Main street.

The base which is to be of concrete construction below ground and of cast stone above is to be approximately 20 feet by 14 feet and the entire monument will stand about 16 feet over all. The direct approach is to be by a 35 foot flight of stone steps which lead to a pebbled surface concrete walk extending in front of the monument from a point about 100 feet easterly on the Parkway to another point a similar distance southerly on Main street.

To the rear and on two sides of the monument is to be shrubbery and four concrete benches are to be placed around the base. The two walks which at present lead from the school building to Main street are to be altered somewhat. The central or main walk is to extend straight from the door to the sidewalk while that to the right, facing the building, is to be swung to the northeasterly.

The contract for the erection of the base, grading, etc., has been awarded to the James J. Fitzgerald Contracting Company of this town, Olmstead Brothers of Brookline, are the landscape gardeners. It is hoped to have the base in readiness by the first of September.

WINCHESTER 25 YEARS AGO

But to return again to the days of 1900. Many present day citizens of Winchester belong, and rightly to the Calumet Club. But how many of them remember that in 1900 that organization put on the sole program held in observance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the town? Not many judging from those I interviewed. Many were emphatic in declaring that no observance was made of that event at all.

Yet the club did put on a very ambitious program, with a reception and everything, under the direction of a committee the chairman of which was Edgar J. Rich, president of the club, and the secretary, Frederick N. Kerr.

Historical Speech
If that fails to recall it this surely should! What finer historical speech was ever made than the memorial one delivered at that event by old Nathaniel A. Richardson, who unfortunately died without issue. He was in his 80s at the time, yet he took up the history of Winchester from the earliest days, forgetting no name or illustrious deed connected with that name throughout all the 250 years since the first settlement of whites was made at what is now Winchester. It was a real classic of its kind, and so intimate and detailed an account of the glory that was Winchester and her people's that it seemed almost Mr. Richardson must have seen it all.

Granted that there was no observance of this event other than that of the Calumet Club, does not the question arise of why there was no town observance?
Has the great celebration of 1890, officially staged by the town, so soon passed on to the limbo where memory fails? That great event with its monster historical parade and a myriad of sport events even to swimming and bicycle races. It seems obvious that the town fathers, hewing to the municipal motto, decided another celebration.

Other Three Still Living
Mr. Boutwell, much to be regretted, died only this year, but all of the three remaining members are still living. Nathan T. Taylor is still living in Winchester, and has retired. James J. Fitzgerald, also of that town, is hale and hearty and a busy contractor. The last member of the board has pretty much vanished from the recollections of the town. He, Edward F. Jones, was local manager for a manufacturer of typewriters, and many years ago was transferred to the West. The last definite word that can be had of him was that he represented his company at the World's Fair in St. Louis.

Speaking of the world's fair, calls to mind the great splurge that was made there with telephones, and that in turn calls to mind Winchester's oldest medical practitioner, Dr. Benjamin T. Church. Throughout many decades he patiently ministered to the ills of Winchester's residents, and that he might better do this, created really quite a stir in the township by having installed the first telephone to make appearance in the place. He moved from Winchester finally, and is now living in Brookline, enjoying a well earned retirement.

Town's First Motor Car
"First" things seem to fall to the lot of men of medicine and surgery, which of course speaks well for the profession as a whole. To Dr. George N. P. Meade, still a practicing physician in Winchester, fell the honor of owning the town's first gasoline engine automobile.

Legend of the town has it that there was some kind of contraption which even pre-dated this machine of Dr. Meade's but it is generally conceded that this affair was a steam-driven car, so of course that disqualifies it immediately.

But call to mind if you can the first times that Dr. Meade chugged through the center of the town, stopping to make some purchases, and then getting out a weird crank, stuck it deep into the side of his pet much as he would handle a lancet, and wound it up valiantly.

To the youngsters and loafers about the Common it was better than a circus parade, this Knox "automobile," vintage of 1895, with its side crank, front seat that let down so one could clamber into the tonneau (for such they were in those days), fussy little two-cylinder engine, and over all a coat of glistening white paint. It is quite safe to say (Dr. Meade being in Europe at the moment) that for many a month nothing was the cause of alternately so much awe and amusement as was this brave car.

Cylinder Falls Out
Finally it became somewhat of a town fetish. It was passed on from hand to hand and its recollection has it finally died, still in the service of Winchester, when one of its two cylinders fell out.

Dr. Meade, by the way, was one of the star performers on that famous high school baseball team of 1895, the last team that Winchester was to see for several years. Others were James Nowell, still of Winchester, and with the Lee-Higginson Company; and Dr. Clarence E. Ordway, another practicing physician of the town, and who for several years held the one-half-mile record in track, at Yale.

That "car" of Dr. Meade's, by the way, was more than a cause of some worry to one of Winchester's tried and true officials. He was not at all sure, seeing it racing past the Calumet at some such unheard-of speed as to whether he should take the owner of it into custody.

For be it known that as far back as 1909, William Roderick McIntosh was Winchester's chief of police. At that time he was also keeper of weights and measures, lockup keeper, agent of the S. P. C. A., and agent of the S. P. C. C. The fact that more often than not he was facetiously referred to behind his back by the youngsters of the town as "Big Chief Sitting Bull," is sign not of shame but rather of the affection in which he was generally held. It was not many years ago that he retired, and is now living at his home on Stone avenue in peace and plenty.

Much the same can be said of Edwin H. Lovering, in 1900 the principal of the Winchester High School. He stayed on the job for a good many years, was made principal emeritus, but still continued teaching, and it not until last year that he finally and was definitely retired.

Clergymen and Newspapermen
To go to the two extremes, according to the lights of many people, Winchester at the beginning of this century, harbored well known citizens who followed the callings of clergyman and newspaperman. There was the Rev. Dr. John W. Suter, rector of the Episcopal Church, who is now living in retirement in Boston. Of his town sons, one followed in his footsteps, the Rev. John W. Suter, Jr.; while the other, Philip, grew up to the World War, served with distinction in the French ambulance service, and has now settled down to living in Milton and selling bonds in Boston. The Rev. William L. Lawrence, then pastor of the Unitarian Church, is now living with his family at Hollis, L. I.; while the Rev. D.

Augustin Newton, in 1900 pastor of the Congregational Church, retired some 15 years ago and is now living in Westboro.

To go to the other extreme, who does not remember Jay R. Benton, who for several years was city editor of the Boston Transcript, and who was prone to making balloon ascensions, usually in the company of Charles Glidden. He was almost as famous as a publicity agent for some of Boston's theatres.

And at this same extreme we find Theodore P. Wilson, who went into the composing room of The Boston Traveler in 1865 and stayed with that paper for 40 years. For Winchester, 1900 seems to have been a significant date. For in that year it was that Mr. Wilson became editor and owner of the Winchester Star, which was to become under his guidance a voice in the town, a paper which has since started more than one man in the public eye toward political fame. He son, Theodore, Jr., now carries on ably in his place, but finds time to keep up a well-founded golfing reputation.

In the days of 1900 Edwin Ginn was generally looked upon as one of the town's foremost citizens, and there are many things about the community which bear the mark of his hand. He headed the Boston publishing house which bears his name, and his son, Edwin, Jr., now carries on the family traditions in that industry.

Samuel W. McCall

Prominence from the political point of view falls, of course, to Samuel W. McCall, the former Governor, from Winchester. He started his law practice there, and in 1900 was not only a Congressman, but a delegate to the National Republican Convention. Then, too, there was Abner P. Weeks, whose estate, Rangeley, the old Skillings mansion, was one of the town's show places in 1900 as now.

But of Winchester in 1900 and Winchester in 1926, nothing perhaps can be pointed out as the one great change. The town has progressed and has grown amazingly. The change is general and not a bit startling, though definite. In one and only one way can it be clearly seen, and that is by photographs taken about 1900. So far as is known but one man is living, Henry C. Robinson, who spent the greater part of his life recording beautiful Winchester, who has this proof.

*Unofficial information shows the coming of Dr. Meade to Winchester during the year '96. At all events the aerial photographer was not a member of the high school ball club of '95. Its lineup included "Ed" Smalley.

THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU AS AN EXTENSION INSTITUTE

By R. F. Murphy
Representative National Better Business Bureau

The above heading is that of an article written by Roland F. Murphy, a former well known Winchester boy for "Associated Advertising," a monthly magazine published by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and edited at 383 Madison avenue, New York City. Mr. Murphy attended the Winchester schools and was graduated from the high school with the class of 1917. He served during the World War in the navy, receiving the rank of ensign in 1918. After his discharge he entered Harvard and was graduated in three years with the class of 1923, studying subsequently in the Graduate School of Business Administration. Two years ago he became associated with the Boston office of the Better Business Bureau, and is now in New York as a representative of the Bureau at the editorial office of the Associated Advertising Clubs mentioned above.

The years have marked a change in the trend of Better Business Bureau effort from an alleviation of the irritation to removal of the irritant. More and more it appears that the evils in advertising violate about the same basic principles, and that the curative measures applied to one line of endeavor will frequently work as successfully in another. The doctor's lancet may afford an apt simile, for the hidden bullet, until the lancet took it out, made the wounds of the veteran smart and his tongue curse. The wounds of commerce likewise embitter its tongue and hurt its system. To heal old wounds through probing for the cause and taking it away is the function of the Better Business Bureau movement—a function whose effectiveness has been demonstrated and one which will, we trust, carry the Bureau to new heights of achievement.

Illustrations, to us here in the work, are available at every hand. How effective this may be, how valuable the merchant—whether he sell clothing or securities—may find it, how beneficial to the buying citizens the scheme of operation may become, grows more vivid in the mind's eye through concrete examples. Let us outline a few.

The Bureau and the Merchant
Back in the mind of every human is a desire to produce. To produce with profit to himself and to the rest of mankind, he must dispose of his production. Centuries of practice have decreed that the distribution of manufactured goods can best be made through agencies which have a known place of business. The result has been the growth of all forms of distributors, merchants, mail-order houses, and direct sells—as the most satisfactory outlets for those goods which the human with the will to create produces. The same centuries of manufacturing and selling have bred the practices, the irritants, which persist to the present day. Nothing except the law has heretofore existed to erase them, and the law was necessarily punitive where, as we have felt, the need was for a corrective.

The surface signs are familiar to all. The steps taken to remove them perhaps are not.

Five years have seen the advent of the radio set as a means of tremendously popular entertainment. Here, whatever make the apparatus, was the case of an incredibly delicate mechanism which the radio industry undertook to introduce to the world. The record of radio progress in that short period of time is astounding. Today, radio sets are probably more common than the organs and pianos which we always considered among the first essentials of a comfortably furnished home. The work that has brought the radio industry from the field of highly restricted and specialized commercial lines to one of almost universal popular demand offers a most interesting study of edvertising and selling practice and malpractice.

Daily developments in radio research made sets obsolete from one day to the next. Merchants who carried heavy stocks of one machine on Saturday night found their demand dissolved into thin air on Monday morning. They had to junk the stock they had. They employed various means. Some came out in their publicity, frankly told their clientele the situation that faced them, lowered prices to meet the demand and got what they could. Others sold on terms which approached those of a salvage sale. A third general group resorted to every device which a countless century heritage of trading trickery had handed down to them. They used everything from the mildest of white lies to the most arrant misrepresentations to get rid of their surplus stocks. In many cases, the manufacturer was a party to the frauds. Where he advertised, he used edvertising to carry out his plans.

So did the merchant. Out of the welter of this chaos emerged every type and degree of advertising abuse. A modicum still exists—enough to make action still a necessity, but the comparative orderliness of large scale radio selling that now exists is, we in all modesty believe, a result of the intelligent corrective effort applied to removal of the underlying causes. Today, we have a new and highly competitive industry stimulating its markets through publicity which may temperately be described as creditable.

The Boston Better Business Commission found the radio business as carried on locally a fair cross-section of the same business as conducted in most American cities. There was the dealer who was trying to live up to his lights by doing the best he could to keep his advertising truthful and his selling methods clean. There was the merchant who was not averse to the lapse into the off-color segments of the merchandising spectrum. Finally, there were a few specimens of the deliberate fraud who depended on cheating the transients for their existence. Had the Commission confined its efforts to the frauds and the fakers, it is a fair matter of doubt as to whether any permanent good would have been the result. It chose rather to follow the procedure that had already proved its soundness by convincing the square dealer that his most complete protection lay in making the conduct of his own business and his advertising infallible—and in letting the public know it.

For those who elected to pursue this course, the Boston Commission was able to offer valuable help. It drew up a set of radio advertising standards which embodied what it deemed desirable in radio advertising, submitted them to its Merchandise Advisory Committee—trained retail men—and then presented the revised standards to a meeting of all radio dealers in the city who cared to come. Some provisions seemed too drastic, others too weak. The upshot of the meeting was the adoption of the first radio advertising standards in the country developed by a local better business bureau. The strongest point of the whole procedure, you will remember, is that these rules are not merely paper rules; they are enforceable, made so by the whole scheme of shopping, reports and publicity at the Commission's command.

The situation at present, then, is that the merchandisers of radio in Boston have a definite written code of standards by which they may guide their written representations and selling methods, an agreement to which they have put their names. This action has in large degree eliminated the chance for the individual transgressions which might otherwise take up the time of the Commission and the merchants which it serves. The public has the assurance that what they read and what they are told, they can believe.

Not long ago, the Better Business Bureau of New York City held an interesting exhibit of overcoats to show the dangers of comparative advertising, the sort of which proclaims the "$90 value for $45." Ninety coats, purchased in 15 retail stores were placed on display, identification marks removed, and a number of competent experts invited to examine and appraise the garments. The results showed so wide a divergence of opinion that the advertised representations made for these goods were proved nothing but guesses. One coat bought for $40 was appraised all the way from $25 to $74. The average range of estimates was $30.

Two meetings with representatives of the stores involved were held, and several proposals designed to obviate the misuse of such statements were advanced. At the moment, they are still under consideration. The mere weight of the report, however, has caused a strongly marked decrease in the use of comparative price claims. The good that came of that exhibit and those conferences will multiply as the old exaggerations disappear.

Significant, too, is it not, of the spirit in which the merchant has taken the bitter dose of criticism and taken steps to wipe out the cause? Makers of partifical pearls have more than once been prone to forget that their product came, not from the depths of the Indian Ocean, but from the floors of some dusty shop. A pearl, they told the public, was a pearl regardless of origin or manner of growth. With this contention the National Better Business Bureau took issue. A manufacturer of artificial pearls was asked to make clear in his advertising copy the true character of his product and a series of conferences led to the publication of statements which would clarify all doubt in the public mind.

In Baltimore, a dealer in musical instruments told his readers that "$5 down delivers radio to your home. Pay as little as $2 per week." He explained that he meant that five dollars sent it to the buyer's home on approval, and that, if approved, he might specify whatever down payment he pleased in order to be satisfied with weekly payments of $2 from his customer. The Baltimore Better Business Bureau took up the matter with the advertiser and the newspaper and succeeded in having the subsequent advertising make clear just what the terms of sale were.

In January of 1926 the Federal Trade Commission approved the standards adopted and actively promoted in August, 1924, by the National Better Business Bureau after conferences with all branches of the furniture industry from the lumberman on through to the retailer. "Name the Woods" as a workable code for furniture advertising therefore now has the sanction of the Government. The impetus given the standards by this action of the Federal Trade Commission should be a strong influence in stimulating the adoption of these standards by retailers in every town and city throughout the land.

The Bureau and the Investment Field
Different in detail but similar in principle is the plan followed in the financial field. Here, again, the problem was to probe the cause of public misunderstandings, and then to apply curative and corrective measures.

Damage from frauds once done, the victim has to suffer, regardless of what was done to the fraudulent security dealer. The Bureau reasoned that losses were the symptoms of an evil and not the cause. The fault here lay rather in public ignorance than in the course taken by the dealer. The logical step from this premise, therefore, was to attempt to better the public understanding of financial matters. That, briefly, has been the function of all Better Business Bureau effort in the financial field.

Here is an example. Several companies flooded the mails with advertising directed to the gullible offering "bankers' shares" in the Ford Motor Company of Canada. This name was featured in the literature. Your investor was given an opportunity to pay $10 each for these units. Investigation showed that the promoters had a few shares of the Ford stock which a bank held in trust. Against each share of stock so held were issued 100 "bankers' shares." The stock at the time was selling for about $490 a share, but the promoters of the scheme were getting $1900 for each share through these methods. Better Business Bureaus throughout the country immediately used every means at their disposal to place the facts before the public in simple language. How much this concerted action curbed the sale of these shares is impossible to determine, but it is safe to say that thousands, after a Better Business Bureau report, chose to have their money in their pockets rather than in exorbitantly priced "bankers' shares."

in Cleveland, Boston, St. Louis and Buffalo have for some time run continuous campaigns against financial frauds. To every prospective investor, they have offered their services through such media as newspaper advertising, posters, signs, and bulletins. Enlightenment on financial matters is the aim of all this matter.

In Akron not long ago was a promoter who circularized hundreds of people in regard to a bond issue to be made by a recently defunct salt company which he proposed to put into operation once more. The amount of the issue was $350,000 and he stated that the assessed valuation of the plant was well toward $1,500,000. He stated, moreover, that he planned to produce 60,000 tons a year and to make a net profit of $3 per ton on his production. The Better Business Commission in Akron pointed out that the "$1,500,000 plant" brought a maximum price of $50,000 when put up for sale last fall; that in all its previous history it had never produced more than 30,000 tons annually, and that $1 per ton rather than $3 represented the actual net profit per ton that an efficiently operating management might expect. The uninformed investors of Ohio had no means other than the information issued by the Akron Commission of knowing the truth about the offer. Facts are the weapons of the Better Business Bureau movement in the investment field.

In the field of modern medical progress, we have seen the institutions that aimed to advise the man of twenty-five how to curb the physical weaknesses which appeared in his contemporaries who had passed the 50 mark. In other words, their business has been to prevent rather than cure. Their activities have met with success worthy of remark.

The same methods with the same aims are found in the world of commerce. The Better Business Bureau movement is coming to be the extension institute of business.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

One reason why many men never recognize opportunity is that it usually indicates a hard task.

A man must have reason if he is to speak—but if he is to be silent he will not require it.

Revenge is the poorest compensation a man ever worked for.

If you do your best you have done 100 per cent whether that best is great or small.

Whenever a favor is conferred upon you remember it, but when you confer one upon another, forget it.

One of the great weaknesses of the human race is envy.

Many of us never realized what a beauty spot that knoll at the Main street extremity of the high school lot was until we saw it ripped up this week to make a place for the war memorial.

With the decision of the School Committee to retain the name "George Washington" which it had originally selected for the new school in process of construction on Highland avenue at Appalachian road comes the rumor, as yet unconfirmed, that those citizens who petitioned to have the building designated the "Highland School" are to combat the edict with something besides the "passive resistance" we hear about in labor and other disputes. The thought persists that the matter will yet come before a Town Meeting for settlement. It would not be the first time such has been the case. In this instance, however, one of the chief guns of the opposition to the School Committee's decree is spiked before the battle. We have never yet heard any one question Washington's patriotism.

With the passing of the Elks' Kiddies' Day there has been evinced here and there some little dissatisfaction with certain features of the affair. This of course is more or less to be expected. People who do things are bound to incur the displeasure of those whose province is to knock. Most of the fault found with this year's party seems to center about the children who were selected to be the guests of the lodge on July 28. The opinion has been advanced that certain of the youngsters who were at Little Nahant should not have been there. They did not "rate" the trip. Not only have the habitual malcontents about town derided this fact, but certain local Elks have also seemed to feel that "Kiddies' Day" is not reaching the children it was designed to benefit. We have even heard the thought expressed that the party probably would not be repeated. This would be a shame. It is inevitable that among the 465 youngsters who were at the beach last month there would be many to whom the trip was by no means a novelty. Had their presence prevented others from enjoying the outing, there would be grounds for a protest and a vigorous one. Such, however, was not the case. Every child who presented himself at Manchester Field was taken to the beach, ticket or no, and the private cars for the most part went to Nahant without passengers. It would seem that the committee in charge of the outing took reasonable pains to ensure a satisfactory list of deserving children. And make no mistake about it, they all had a wonderful day. Criticizing is all too easy and noisily there may be grounds for a bit of dissatisfaction. If so, surely those Elks who are disgruntled have an opportunity in the meetings of their lodge to put the matter right. We'll make a promise that any deserving kiddy whose name is in the hands of the committee before starting time will be included among those making the next trip, and we don't mean maybe. That's the way the Elks run things. And to those of you who aren't so strong for the affair,—take in the next party personally. We'll wager if you do, you'll come back believing as we do that "Kiddies' Day" is one of the most worth-while charitable enterprises on Winchester's list. Let's not even think of giving it up.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

At a well-attended meeting of the court held on Thursday, Aug. 5, plans were made for the whist which will be held in Lyceum Hall next Thursday evening with Vice Regent Nellie Moffett as chairman of the committee in charge. The success of this party is already assured as a goodly number of the members and their friends are planning to attend the party and several very fine prizes have already been donated.

The long-awaited outing of the court took place last Tuesday and the anticipations of many weeks were more than realized in the success which rewarded the carefully detailed planning of the committee in charge.

The members, 128 in number, together with many guests and children, met at Rowe's Wharf in time to take the 10:15 boat. After an enjoyable sail down the harbor all followed the leader to the Dartmouth Cottage where a speedy change into swimming trunks was accomplished. Much of the best fun of the day was had in the water, Sisters Mollie Maguire, Frances Conlon and Mrs. Lucy Kitchen proving our best swimmers. In fact, when Mollie bade us farewell and announced that she was about to leave for a swim to Apple Island, we more than half believed she could make it.

Upon our return to the cottage, exhilarated, happy and hungry, we found that dinner was about to be placed upon the tables. Only one formality remained—to count the kiddies and marshal them into the side dining room. This done, the dinner was soon the chief interest of all present, and for an honest-to-goodness chicken dinner chef, the cooks of the C. D. of A. have handed the palm to Mrs. Elinore McGovern of Nantucket Beach.

After dinner the concert was the big attraction, with Sister Katharine O'Connor in charge. It was a dandy concert. Perhaps it was the swim or maybe the dinner, but at any rate something was responsible for the fine performance of all those who participated. Sister O'Connor opened the concert herself with a fine rendition of an original topical song which was replete with bright hits and timely good-natured "knocks." In fact this was the best topical song which the court has so far heard and at the conclusion of each stanza hilarious applause resounded from the living room, hall and piazza where the various members of the party were grouped. By vote of those present we are inserting one of the stanzas in our notes herewith, choosing this particular verse because of the hit it registered:

Elizabeth McDonald missed the boat
She jumped in her river and set it afloat.
She rode on the water without any fear
And when we arrived she was waiting at the pier.
This is a lesson good and neat
This old gal is hard to beat.
If you think for a moment she is going to stop
On the next high wave she comes riding on top!

Sister May McGann presided at the piano and contributed much to the success of the concert. Sister Frances Conlon, our Grand Regent, read "The Widow Dooley" much to the delight of all present, and P. V. R. Minnie O'Connor and P. G. Alice L. Martin out-did their former successes in the rendering of those old favorites, "Seeing Nellie Home," and "Cockles and Muscles." Piano selections by Katharine McGinn, Medford, and William McGann, Woburn, were much enjoyed and the concert came to a close with a delightful group of songs beautifully sung by Sister Mollie Maguire who was in fine voice. As an encore and by request Sister Maguire sang "Poor Papa" as only she can sing it—with such telling effect that the waitresses and kitchen maids forsook their duties and gave themselves over to the fascinating abandon of the Charleston. And we venture to say that when Sister McGann plays jazz we all try a little surreptitious Charleston of our own. The old C. D. of A. favorite, "Good Night, Ladies" standing in a circle with joined hands brought the concert to an end.

Whist followed in charge of Sisters O'Melia, Kelley and Brown, 12 hands being enjoyed when the prizes, all wrapped up and most of them screamingly funny, were awarded to the following: Mrs. Edward Shea, Mrs. Grace McGilvray, Mrs. Harry Brown, Miss Alice O'Donnell, Miss Sarah Quigley, Mrs. Mary Kelly, Miss Mary Hanlon, Mrs. Catherine Lynch, Mrs. Mary O'Neil and Mrs. Minnie O'Connor.

After a visit to Paragon Park and some rides on the hobby-horses to please the little folk, all boarded the 6:45 boat for the enjoyable sail home which was blessed by the most gorgeous of sunsets.

Taking taxis from Rowe's Wharf the whole party connected with the 8 p. m. train for Winchester, tired but happy, after a day that had passed all too soon.

The success of the outing was due entirely to the chairman and assistant chairmen of the Outing Committee, Sisters Nora O'Melia and Katharine O'Connor who planned for us the best affair which the court has so far enjoyed.

Historian Mary E. Martin will spend the rest of the vacation season at Nantucket and Sister Jane King is at the Winchester Hospital where she is receiving congratulations on the birth of a baby son, Arthur, Jr.

Organist Mabel M. Coty is spending two weeks with friends at Hough's Neck.

THE CHARM OF GOOD POETRY

Edited By Ellen Guild

Anne Robinson has written some very lovely verse for little children. Here are two examples of her art and her perfect knowledge of the imagination that all normal children possess.

Rainbow and Silver Shoes
(Anne Robinson in The Step Ladder)

The fairy tailor has some shears
With which he snips and slashes
Old summer rainbows into strips
To make the Queen her sashes.

And as, of course, no silver shines
Like that of setting moon—
From this the fairy cobbler makes
The Queen her silver shoes.

How sweet it when the tailor's through
He's sewed his rainbow ends for you,
And I pass through the cobbler's door
To pick up moon-seraps from the floor!

Bees

The honey that they love the best
They drink from meadow flowers
But sometimes they will come at night
To drink the sweet in moonbeams.

To drink the sweet in little sun,
While baby fingers reach far in
And lap their tiny finger-tips!

All children love the mystery of stars in the deep blue of the night sky. A very little girl gave the idea for this thought!

To A Star
Ellen Guild

I shot a star!
Down Down
It came.

A flashing point of yellow flame!
Stars are not silver, as I thought,
But from God's golden sunlight wrought.

Baseball Notes

Batting and pitching records made public by one St. Mary's management this week show that the locals have a grand team average of .251 with the willow. "Spike" O'Donnell and "Jomama" Dolan are the only regulars who are batting less than .200 which of course is a low average. "Tom" Dolan is virtually leading the team with a .335 mark while Captain Melly who has played in 4 more games than the speedy little center fielder is macing the apple for .320. "Jocko" Prue is leading the team with an average of .375, but has played in but 3 games while McGrath and Fitzgerald among the high players have appeared in less than half the battles.

"Joe" Mathews and "Spike" O'Donnell each have perfect pitching records with one victory and no defeats. Tansey has an average of .834 with 5 wins and a loss. "Mex" Kelley has broken even, winning two and losing two.

GIANT MUSHROOM

Mr. Wellington F. Smart of Dix street, already credited with discovering the largest mushroom ever found in this vicinity, added another record to his achievements this week when he exhibited to his friends a giant Polyporus Berkeleyi weighing about 75 pounds. The plant was so large that it was necessary to cut it in quarters to transport it to his home.

This giant fungus was found in Winchester, although Mr. Smart does not state the exact place where it grew. For the past fortnight he has kept close watch on it. Wednesday he decided to pick it, and with the aid of an assistant transported it to his home.

It is not unlike a giant rose in shape and covers a good-sized table, being 37 by 42 inches. He exhibited it at the Mycological Society, of which he has been a member for the past 30 years, at Horticultural Hall during the week, and the members of the society state that it is undoubtedly the largest specimen of its kind ever exhibited here. It is edible, but acid, and Mr. Smart states that it makes excellent soup, he having already sampled it. He plans to keep a portion of it and store it away for winter use. His other giant mushroom, picked last year, measured 32 by 41 inches and weighed 45 pounds.

Mrs. Mary Kelley is entertaining Miss Julia Sullivan of Cambridge at her home on Hill street.

BIG SOCCER ATTRACTION

Local soccer enthusiasts will trek to Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon to witness the big attraction in which the Winchester Juniors will meet the Manchester, N. H., "Light Blues," known as one of the best soccer teams of the Merrimac Valley.

Saturday's meeting will mark the third contest between the two clubs, each having won a game. The teams met two weeks ago at Manchester and the local club was returned a winner, 8-5. The New Hampshire boys are out to square accounts, but the Winchester management feels that its team is going along smoothly enough to turn the invaders back with plenty to spare.

The "Juniors" have made an enviable record since organizing a couple of years ago. Last season they won the soccer championship of the second division of the Bay State League and were only nosed out for the big title after a stubborn fight.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL MARRIES

The five-day law was waived yesterday to allow Lieut. George H. Bohm, U. S. N., 26, of Philadelphia, and his fiancée, Miss Beatrice Warren Liver, 22, a Boston University student who lives at 3 Newport road, Cambridge, to secure a document from Judge Arthur P. Stone of the East Cambridge District Court which allows a marriage license to be issued them at once.

The wedding, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon, culminated in a rapid-fire courtship which began a month ago when the U. S. S. Raleigh, Lieut. Bohm's command, was stationed off Salem in its tercentenary celebration. The couple were introduced at an informal dinner on board.

After the celebration the U. S. S. Raleigh returned to the Charlestown Navy Yard and the romance quickened. This morning intentions were filed and advice sought on how to avoid the five-day clause. Soon they arrived at the East Cambridge Court and had a private conference with the judge. A waiver was granted them.

Lieut. Bohm is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bohm of Philadelphia. He attended high school in that city and received an appointment to Annapolis, graduating from there a short time ago.

Miss Liver is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Liver, with whom she resides. She was born in Winchester and was graduated from the Wheelock Kindergarten Instruction School in 1924. Recently she has been taking special courses at the School of Education at Roston University. She expects to receive a degree from that school shortly.

ST. MARY'S TO PLAY SATURDAY AT WOBURN

In response to a request for the use of Manchester Field by the Winchester Juniors' soccer team, which team wished to stage an important contest there on Saturday afternoon, the St. Mary's management is to play its game with the Midgits of Woburn on that day out of town on Library Park.

This was a fine thing to do and showed good sportsmanship on the part of Manager Frank Melly who felt that he could afford to step aside in the interests of the soccer followers.

Saturday's game at Woburn with the Midgits is the third and deciding match between the two clubs, each having won a game. "Kiko" Weaver is carded to hurt for Woburn and "Mex" Kelley will oppose him on the rubber. This alone should ensure a real contest, and especially since Melly expects to put a stronger club on the field than was the case last Saturday. The game will start at 3:15 and many of the fans will make the run to Library Park. A week from tomorrow the St. Mary's Club will swing into action on Manchester Field with the St. Joseph's team of the Woburn Sandlot League.

TRAFFIC SIGNS NOT YET COMPLETE

Winchester's new traffic signs, erected at various strategic points about the town, have occasioned much favorable comment. They make a handsome appearance and are of substantial construction. Many have asked what the words "to routes" signify. As we understand it the various motor routes throughout the country have been, or are being, numbered for convenience so that a certain route from Boston to Springfield, we'll say, might bear the number 270. Another from Boston to Providence, 35, from Worcester to New York 173, etc. A motorist driving through Winchester and seeing the sign "Arlington" with a directing arrow and the words "to route 270" would understand upon consulting his guide book that if he continued upon his way, he would strike Arlington on the way to a route which would take him either to Springfield or Boston.

The local signs have not as yet had the route numbers, or letters as the case may be, filled in. The Highway Commission is still at work upon the various routing symbols and the local authorities wished to wait until there was no chance of any change. As soon as it is practical these finishing touches will be added.

The STAR has but one criticism of the new signs. It seems that there is nothing upon them as they now are to acquaint the entire stranger with the fact that he is in Winchester. He knows, for instance, that if he continues as he is headed, he will reach Stoneham, Arlington, or, whatnot. But where is he now? The addition of the word "Winchester" to the signs would be an improvement, or does the town intend to erect a few of those "You are now entering" billboards?

DRIVER ABANDONED CAR AFTER STRIKING HYDRANT ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

About 3:20 o'clock Wednesday morning Police Headquarters was notified of an accident on Cambridge street near the residence of Mr. G. C. Munroe. Officers Kelley and Cassidy were dispatched thither and upon arrival found that a Ford sedan, which had evidently been going in the direction of Arlington, had run off the road and had collided with a hydrant which the force of the impact had broken off.

The machine was discovered lying upon its side with both rear wheels demolished, but no trace of its operator could be found throughout the neighborhood. After making some inquiries the officers learned that its occupants had made off in another car in the direction of Arlington.

The wrecked machine was towed to the Central Garage and was found to be the property of one Daniel J. Looney of 135 Antrim street, Cambridge. When questioned by the Cambridge police Mr. Looney claimed that he had last seen the machine parked in front of his home and believed it had been stolen.

Supt. Harry Dotten of the Water Department was notified of the damage to the hydrant and made temporary repairs at once.

ATTENTION! ELKS

All brothers of Winchester Lodge, 1445, who wish to participate in the outing at Martin Luther Grove, Tyngsboro on Aug. 25, with Woburn Lodge 908, are urged to hand their names at once to the Secretary so that suitable provisions for transportation, etc., can be made by the local committee.

LIGHTENING STRUCK WEST SIDE HOME

During the height of yesterday's thunder storm at 8:30 p. m. lightning struck a light wire at the home of Mr. Cutler P. Downer, 23 Sheffield road. The ground at the home had rotted off, causing the lightning to burn off the insulation and blow the fuse on that circuit. Aside from the smoke and burning rubber fumes there was no damage.

YOUR FIRST PEEP AT EUROPE

What will Europe look like? This question is constantly in mind as your first crossing of the Atlantic draws to an end, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The bulletin is one of a series devoted to European travel prepared by a staff writer of the Society who recently went over routes to be covered by thousands of American tourists this summer.

The ocean ferries of today cross the Atlantic by various routes says the bulletin, landing at ports from Stockholm to Naples. But the great majority of American travelers embark at New York, and a considerable proportion of them, bound either for Paris or London, put in first at Cherbourg, France.

The Hills of Normandy
If this is your route, your first view on the starboard side will be of the gentle hills of rural Normandy along which your ship coasts before nosing into the harbor of quaint old Cherbourg. On your port side the gaunt, drab Cherbourg breakwater will loom up, a protecting arm of gray stone sweeping off to the distant shore with here and there along its course a round, squat fort.

You have unconsciously expected Europe to have a different aspect from America, and in this first view it lives up to your expectations. Hardly a house is to be seen on the Normandy hills, but the countryside obviously has been shaped by the hand of man. It is a bizarre aspect which it presents: rough squares, polygons and triangles, fitted together with dark borders between them which you know are hedges—quite like a jigsaw puzzle with the joint lines emphasized. Here and there you will finally discover drabish patches which are the villages in which the farming folk live; for here the farmer does not live on his land, but in communities with his fellow agriculturists. Off to the left along the shore houses and chimneys appear closer and closer together and merge in the distance into Cherbourg.

France Meets You on Board
One's first contact with France comes on shipboard when the tender brings French immigration officials aboard. The passengers must line up in one of the public rooms of the steamship and file before these functionaries who examine passports and issue landing cards. Unless this important bit of pasteboard is presented at the gangplank the passenger will not be permitted to leave the boat.

By the time the passport ceremony has been concluded, French atmosphere has invaded the boat in the form of blue-bloused and corduroy-trousered porters who scurry back and forth with their shoulder-straps transferring the Paris-bound baggage to the tender. In hiring these individuals to help him on shore the traveler summons such French as he possesses, or failing to possess any, must capture a porter and lead him bodily to his baggage. After the baggage troop the passengers anxious to complete the last leg of their water trip and to step on French soil. As the tender steams shoreward one may get more intimate views of his first patch of France. The roofs and walls of the houses seem to bear every conceivable angle to one another and the mess-grown appearance of the roofs suggests great age. The sky line is a cluster of chimney pots which extend up in great rows like the teeth of combs. Two wheeled carts lumber along, drawn by huge horses hitched tandem. The French seem most considerate of their horses. Often on a rural road you are to see three magnificent creatures in a row drawing a load that would be no great burden to you, for one.

A Land of Bicycles

On the Cherbourg streets flocks of bicyclists pedal by. France, you soon learn is a land of bicycles. They are ridden by men, women and children, working girls and sedate matrons, laborers, army officers, and professors. At nearly every station you see them piled on trucks or being passed into baggage cars.

The small, rather stumpy automobile which you first see in Cherbourg will impress you as being rather queer contrivances; but after you have dodged through the maelstrom of them in Paris their strangeness disappears.

The first distinctive French sound which strikes your ears is that of the automobile horns, high-pitched, creechy little yawns that suggest a cross between a flock of squawking geese and a crowd of noisy election night revelers in America. Somehow you take an unreasoning aversion to these little hand-blown horns whose cries of distress ring in your ears day and night while you are in France and Italy. You would not mind so much if the signals were necessary; but usually they are not. The Parisian taxi driver habitually steers with one hand while with the other he incessantly squeezes the rubber bulb of his horn. When you cross to England you wonder why the so-called roar of London traffic impresses you with a sense of calm dignity. Then the answer breaks on you: you seldom hear an automobile signal, and certainly never a needless one.

European Always Man of Standing in East

Talking with Europeans who live and work in the East, I find that, if they love the East (which they justly do), it is always for the same reason. Aldous Huxley writes, in the Bookman. In the East, they say, a man is somebody; he has authority and is looked up to; he knows all the people who matter, and is known.

At home he is lost in the crowd; he does not count; he is nobody. Life in the East satisfies the profoundest and most powerful of all the instincts—that of self-assertion. The young man who goes out from a London suburb to take up a clerkship in India finds himself a member of a small ruling community; he has slavish servants to order about, dark-skinned subordinates to whom it is right and proper to be rude.

Three hundred and twenty million Indians surround him; he feels incomparably superior to them all from the coasts to the mountains, from the untouchable to the thoroughbred Brahmin, from the illiterate peasant to the holder of half a dozen European degrees. He may be ill-kred, stupid, uneducated; no matter. His skin is white. Superstition in India is a question of epidermis. No wonder if he loves the East.

Java's Jungle Ship

In the midst of a forest in the island of Java, not many miles from the chief port, Batavia, lies a big merchant ship, fully rigged. It is a long way from any navigable water, and is surrounded on all sides by jungle growth. Yet it was not built there.

Visitors who have seen this strange sight have wondered how a ship came into so strange a position, until the explanation was forthcoming.

The island and the whole of that region is highly volcanic, and in the course of one of the gigantic eruptions a tidal wave swept inland for many miles, carrying everything before it. On its crest rode a merchant ship. The wave receded and left the vessel high and dry.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

There are ten major uses of manufactured gas in the homes of America, according to an exhaustive survey conducted recently by engineers and research specialists of the American Gas Association. This compares with the single use of gas for lighting some fifty years ago. The advent of the electric light did not forestall the dawn of the gas industry, as was once predicted, for since 1881, the year the influence of the electric light was first felt, the annual sales of gas have increased 1700%.

It is estimated that there are many hundreds of thousands of adequately gas-equipped homes in the United States today. The use of gas means automatically heated homes, easy cooking, freedom from coal dirt and ash trouble.

The ten major uses of gas in the homes are as follows:

Lighting: either for supplementary use or for emergency purposes.

Cooking: easy and economical way of preparing foods.

Water Heating: providing an instantaneous supply of hot water the year round.

Room heating: auxiliary heating for special occasions, such as early fall and late spring.

House Heating: in a central heating furnace for any type of heating system.

Garage Heating: preventing radiator freezing, tire deterioration, battery freezing, oil congealing, etc.

Clothes Drying: rapid, sanitary, and clean drying of laundry indoors on rainy days, in cold weather, or all year.

Ironing: by means of gas-heated irons and mangles, to save labor and insure uniform results.

Incineration: disposal of garbage, rubbish and waste without odor, by burning in a suitable appliance, maintaining health and cleanliness.

Refrigeration: the latest use for gas, giving cheap, reliable and uniform refrigeration superior to ice.

ENGINEERED TO A STANDARD—BUILT COMPLETE AT THE FACTORY

There are

Two Types of Oil Burners

Kleen-Heet

Industrial—and Household!

The industrial burner is designed for continuous operation. It burns low-grade oils—with the aid of special pre-heating apparatus—under the care of a trained engineer.

The household burner is designed to be efficient in intermittent operation, as heat is needed. Automatically—without attention—it must provide clean, odorless, quiet, safe, even, economic heat.

The Winslow Boiler and Engineering Company makes both. Its superiority in both fields is accepted.

Kleen-Heet—considered by engineers the most perfect of all household oil burners—is not an adaptation of the industrial burner. It is engineered specifically to do one job—and one only—to heat homes to perfection! And it does! Its instant efficiency multiplies the many advantages of oil over other forms of heating.

This marked engineering superiority of Kleen-Heet is reflected in a six-year record of unflinching performance.

MEMO TO MR. KRIM RE REUNION

Abdel Krim, for two years commander of the RIF against the forces of Spain and later France, is to be exiled. News from Paris puts the 1000 of Reunion in the limelight as the future permanent home of the Moroccan insurgent.

France carries a full stock of islands suitable for exiles, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Madagascar was first suggested for Krim but the weight of decision falls 400 miles southward of Madagascar on Reunion.

"What good exile islands have you nowadays?" one may imagine the French Minister of War posing the Minister of Colonies.

"Some very good ones, indeed," the Colonial Minister certainly can reply. "There's Devil's Island in French Guiana for criminals—and then there's New Caledonia away out in the Pacific, a soothing paradise of the South Seas. How about Madagascar? Lots of room on Madagascar. Splendidly situated near the Equator. Or Reunion? There's a perfect retreat for political exiles. Forty-eight miles long and 24 miles wide, two volcanoes and only 107 vessels dock each year."

A Department of France 5700 Miles Away

Abdel Krim is quite familiar with Europe. It may subtract from the convenience of exile for him to be set down in an island predominantly European. To be sure the Reunioners are not as purely Caucasian as the British and Dutch of South Africa. Still 165,000 of the population of 172,000 are classed as Europeans. Indeed, Reunion is a department of France. The commonly accepted departments of France are within 380 miles of Paris. Reunion is 7500 miles by steamer and 10,000 by air. But who is to say it is not a department? In the House of Deputies in Paris, corresponding to the American House of Representatives, sit two duly elected delegates from Reunion. In the Senate is a Reunion Senator.

Even the names Reunion has taken from time to time show its intimate link with Europe. Like a lady fair in days of old when knight and lady wore ribbons of the same color, Reunion has changed its name with the rise of new political competitors on the continent. Masarenhas was its first name in honor of a Portuguese discoverer who sailed when Portugal was a first rate power. Louis XIII was in ascendancy in 1643 when Flacourt claimed it for France so it became Bourbon Island. That name was impossible to the Revolutionists. The island therefore became Reunion until a new "knight" arose in Europe when it became the Bonaparte. Since 1848 Reunion has been the official name.

The Layers of Reunion "Cake"

Conditions, geographical, climatic, and industrial, have changed less frequently than the island's name. Reunion, ever since its settlement, has been a sort of agricultural live-layer cake. The shore level is marked by the gardens of the ring of towns. Next comes a sweet layer; the sugar-cane belt. Then a dark green layer of forests. Fourth is the plateau region where European vegetables can be raised. The fifth layer is the brown of the volcanic peaks. Only occasionally is Reunion "cake" frosted with white snow because the warm sea all about tempers the climate.

If Mr. Krim cares to examine a slice of Reunion he will find it "sugar and spice and everything nice." The second layer, as mentioned above, is mostly sugar. Sugar and one of its progeny, rum, are the chief exports of the island; and during the World War it profited and perhaps profited more on sugar. In the spice line Reunion offers cloves. And thereby hangs a tale.

Our medieval ancestors loved to eat. Where the 20th century spends its surplus on six cylinders, the 15th century spent its pin money on its palate. Its idea of a square meal was red meat well seasoned. Seasoned well did not mean a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. Our forbears doused pepper on their meat and stuck it full of cloves. Spice Islands or the Moluccas in the tangled straits of the East Indies were found to be the native habitat of cloves. The joy with which the Portuguese greeted this discovery could only be equalled today by the burst of a Texas gusher oil well. They tried to keep their find a treasure secret. But the Dutch, who came into ascendancy restricted cloves to Amboyna Island and ordered their navy to destroy all other clove trees every place. In the face of death at the hands of the Dutch, a man named Poivre introduced the clove tree to Reunion and neighboring Mauritius, thus anticipating Europe from the Dutch monopoly.

Geranium Town

Many orchards of clove trees with their silvery evergreen leaves can be seen on Reunion. The clove buds are in clusters. First they are green, then they turn a brilliant red, when they are ready to be picked.

Another specialty from which Reunion profits is vanilla. The production of vanilla orchid beans, Reunion shares with the Seychelles to the north and with Mexico.

There are three towns on Reunion with a population of more than 18,000—St. Denis, St. Pierre and St. Paul. If Abdel Krim is given his choice, St. Pierre would appear to be the most attractive for a permanent residence. It is the center of the island's trade in essence of geranium. The flower that decorates our houses and gardens, is a commercial product here. What a prospect. A life of pensioned ease on a tropical island amid acres of geraniums.

FRANCE FROM A CHERBOURG-PARIS BOAT-TRAIN

One of the main roads to Paris which will be traveled by thousands of Americans this summer leads from the harbor of Cherbourg. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society, one of a series on current European travel, deals with this journey from Cherbourg to Paris.

The train which you board, says a bulletin, is a "boat-train," a special made up to leave shortly after the arrival of a trans-Atlantic liner, that you and your fellow travelers may be taken with as little delay as possible to the place you are all eager to reach—Paris.

Signs and Symbols of France

As your train crawls out of the town you begin to see touches unmistakably French: the railworkers in blue blouses, loose corduroy trousers, and the inevitable cap; queer squat little box cars with French signs painted on them; great piles of coal dust and finished briquets; cars switched by horses hitched tandem.

You pass a huge bluff of rakhly lipped craters, old fortifications on top. Your train gathers speed, and soon you are in the country bowling along at a good speed through a region not as different as you had expected from that in many parts of America.

But certain differences do stand out. You see only an occasional isolated farm house; most of the fields and pastures, hedge enclosed, have no buildings upon them. You are ready to believe that the falling birth rate has already depopulated France. But this is only another evidence of the predominant custom of living in villages. None of the houses you do sight are of wood; all are solidly built of stone. Near them are miscellaneous little out houses with roofs of sod. In the farm yards the two-wheeled carts seem to crouch, their shafts extending upward at a sharp angle.

Record Sowed by Hand

There are practically no grade

crossings; most of the roads are carried across the railway on brick or stone bridges. The telegraph poles are different. The wooden cross-arms are missing. Instead dozens of little metal brackets extend outward from the sides of the posts, from near the ground to the top, each supporting a single wire. You learn that man power may still be cheap. You see a sturdy French farmer on a raised scaffold sowing downward and lengthwise through a log. He is making boards by hand.

You are about to pay your compliments to France on the absence of billboards when one flashes into view. It is reasonably small and bears the name of a liqueur. A few miles farther on you sight one advertising chocolate. But modified, your compliment persists. At least there are few billboards. There are not scores of sawed-out cows, cigarette boxes, and bottles to hide the countryside; no acres of gaudy painted boards singing the virtues of every conceivable commodity from chewing gum and dog biscuits to bed springs and automobile tires.

A Harvest of Tree Limbs

The trees hold your attention; most of them are either gnarled stumps with fresh switches springing out, or long naked, gangling trunks with feathery wisps of green at the tops—trees such as you have seen in paintings by French masters. A more experienced traveler explains that French farmers harvest their tree limbs as Americans harvest fruit. The stronger limbs may be used as bear poles or other supports. Smaller ones are more like charcoal. Even the smallest twigs are bound into fagots. You see ordered piles of these bundles of fuel against farm house walls.

The train stops at a station labeled "Bayeux," and you see the three tall towers of the cathedral which shelters the famous Bayeux Tapestry, that remarkable 11th century "motion picture" of the Norman Conquest. So well proportioned are the towers that you do not realize their great height and size until you notice doll-like houses beside them, so dwarfed that you have overlooked them.

Demijohns on Station Platforms

Your boat-train swings past many small stations without stopping. You do not have to guess their names. They are announced in letters several feet high painted on water tanks or warehouse walls. You wonder at the packages of freight and express on the station platforms. There are vegetables in crates, and boxes whose contents you cannot guess; but chiefly there are barrels and kegs, baskets of bottles packed in straw, and queer-ly-shaped demijohns, also straw-encased. You are reminded, as you will be hundreds of times in the next few days, that there is no 18th amendment in France.

From time to time a train attendant appears in the doorway of your compartment ringing a hand-bell and announcing in French that another service of luncheon is ready. You show him your little purple or pink ticket and get a shake of the head if it is not your turn, a nod if it is. When your time comes you walk along the train corridor and through the connecting vestibules to your first meal in a European dining car.

NEW AMERICAN EXPEDITION ANNOUNCED

The "Visitors Welcome" sign will be hung out this summer at Pueblo Bonito, Chaco Canyon, New Mexico. Dr. Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic Society Expedition to Chaco Canyon, made this announcement on the eve of his departure from Washington for his sixth and probably last year of work at Pueblo Bonito. This prehistoric apartment house is now considered the most important site of Indian culture in all North America above the Rio Grande.

Experts and Indians to Help

Eleven other experts in different fields, including geology, engineering and archaeology, will join the National Geographic Society's Expedition to Chaco Canyon. Thirty Indians, blood descendants perhaps of the Indians who occupied Pueblo Bonito a thousand or more years ago, will be employed again to remove and sift the sand and debris that cover the outworks of the building.

Visitors can now be welcomed to Pueblo Bonito, which is the chief feature of Chaco Canyon National Monument, because the work of removing the sand and debris from the main section of the ruins of this 800-room communal house is finished. The rooms and the sacred kivas, or ceremonial places, are safely preserved against the ravages of weather.

Comparable to Valley of Kings

While Pueblo Bonito is the largest of the ancient pueblos which is well preserved, and probably was the leading city in the civilization of the Southwest in its pre-Columbus days, there are many other ruins to be seen in Chaco Canyon. The Valley of Kings in Egypt has a counterpart in this valley of ancient pueblos.

Two objectives are before the National Geographic Society Expedition in the sixth year of its work. The first is to determine the age of the various civilizations which inhabited Pueblo Bonito. The second is to continue the stratigraphy. The later consists in running trenches through ruins or debris piles. Last year a 400-foot trench 12 feet deep was run. In layers, or strata, were found the broken pottery and sweepings of the four different periods of occupancy. The stratigraphic work last year also uncovered some foundations for a broad extension of Pueblo Bonito which was never carried out. These foundations were not previously suspected.

Fashions Help Date History

Fashions are the archeologists' key to periods. Just as we fix the Civil War period by hoop skirts and the 1890's by puff sleeves and pompadours, fashions in pottery fix the Chaco Canyon periods. For this reason any bits of pottery which Dr. Judd and his assistants can recover by trenching are important to round out the marvelous story which has been revealed by five years' explorations.

Since the Bonitos had no written language they had no way of recording time. It has been necessary to find another calendar to fix the age of the ruins. Time is fixed in trees by the annual rings. Dr. A. E. Douglass discovered certain cycles in tree ring formations which agree with sun spot cycles of 11 years. By examining ring records from samples taken from new cut western pine, and from pueblo logs which the Indians salvaged from old Spanish missions and from logs found in Pueblo Bonito, a calendar has been constructed. But there is a break between the Pueblo Bonito logs and the mission logs. Some of the work this year will be directed to closing this gap and thus determining more exactly the age of this civilization.

Individuality

According to experts, the brush strokes of a painter are as individual as the handwriting of a writer.

Michael Grant of the town's highway department had a narrow escape from serious injury when the department's Ford sedan which he was driving overturned on Highland avenue Wednesday. Mr. Grant was thrown out and received several minor cuts and bruises. The machine was badly damaged and had to be towed away.

Last evening while Alexander McEachern was driving his Ford coupe south along Cambridge street he was obliged to swerve his machine sharply to avoid a collision with a Ford touring car which was coming out of Everett avenue. In doing so the coupe crashed into an electric light pole causing injuries to himself and two passengers, Margaret Noyes of Woburn and Philip Tackney of Bedford. All three were taken to the Winchester Hospital for treatment by the occupants of the touring car who were Herman F. Barker of Mansfield and John Bass of 7 Central street, Winchester.

Yesterday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock as Bruce Kindred, a chauffeur in the employ of the Kelley & Hawes Company was driving a Ford ton truck along Washington street the wishbone of the machine broke, causing it to crash into a tree. The machine was damaged but Kindred escaped injury.

It is reported that two boys whose names were not learned were painfully injured by a falling cement block while playing about the garage in process of construction at Main and Clark streets. This makes the third accident said to have taken place there since work was begun on the building.

Officer Hogan of the police was notified yesterday by a Clark street young lady that her camera had been stolen by boys while she was at the Palmer street beach. The former rounded up several youths who were thought to be implicated and soon had the missing camera.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherard Clay, with their niece, Luna Putnam, are occupying their cottage on Sunapee Lake in Newbury, N. H.

COMMENT ON THE FIREWORKS DISPLAY

Winchester is indeed fortunate. No town or city in this vicinity has the privilege of enjoying such a fireworks display as this place. Our Italian residents certainly out-did themselves again this year. It made our municipal display last 4th look like the proverbial "two cents." As a matter of fact it would be a good idea to turn our annual Independence Day fund over to them and let them give us a few fireworks. Each year their display surpasses that of the previous exhibition, and the program has now reached such proportions that one wonders how they do it. To say that the town was delighted with Tuesday night's display is putting it mildly. Our Italian residents deserve all the praise they are receiving. Never before were such magnificent or unique "set pieces" shown in a fireworks display in this vicinity. They were so varied and so huge that it was hard for anyone to make a choice or support his contention that any one suited him best. Only one criticism of the display could be made: If the smaller mechanical pieces could have been shown at an elevation they would have been seen by everyone. As it was, comparatively few saw them, or at best could see enough of them to make out what they were. The walking man, the running dog, the dog on the bicycle and the fire apparatus were so good and so unique that it was a pity that every person on the field could not get a good view of them. Of course it would be a difficult job to run these pieces on a platform or elevated track, for they covered the entire width of the field, but it would have added much to the enjoyment of all, especially the children. The burning church was probably the most unique display. When first lighted it made fine showing with its beautiful altar and steeple. When the structure took fire and the fire engine with its firemen and hose dashed across the field the crowd was amazed that such a pantomime could be arranged with powder and chemicals. The figures were lifelike, and the pure white water flowing from the hose constantly moved by one of the firemen, was marvelous. The fire bell, by the way, which was rung during the showing of the burning church, was loaned for the occasion by Chief DeCourcy of the Fire Department. It added much to the realistic part of the number. Probably the sea fight between the battleship and the submarine tickled the children more than anything else. Needless to say the grown-ups enjoyed it a little also. The battle was made it a little lifelike, with the guns, shooting and rockets firing. Every one saw the vital shot fired by the battleship which blew up the submarine. Probably that beautiful, rosy jug, which the blue man swung so lustily as he walked across the field, had nothing more harmful in it than a little sweet Italian wine. It certainly looked good enough to drink. Many of the displays were topped with flags, all of which were very beautiful. One universally admired piece, and one of the best of the evening, was the display of the American and Italian flags. After being started, the bright lights in national colors illuminated the unfolding of the flags—the American flag dropping, fold on fold, straight down in the center, with two Italian flags unfolding at angles on either side. It certainly was magnificent. The pin wheels were well worthy of their name. Never before were such beautiful devices shown here. And the colors were particularly noteworthy. Such blues, oranges, pinks and greens were marvelous. A piece shown early in the display which was much admired was the fan which opened. The changeable colors and the opening blades called forth much applause. The big center piece, set off at about the middle of the program, was of such dazzling white light that few could bear to look directly at it. The whole valley was illuminated like day by the brilliant glare given to the finale of bombs and rockets, and everyone present got his fill of noise and beautiful air display. For minutes at a time the rockets went into the heavens in a steady stream, following each other so fast that their tails made one long trail of fire, while the whole earth shook from the thunderous vibration of the bombs. Every kind of rocket and bomb imagined were exploding simultaneously. And did you hear that last one? The crowd attending this year's display has been estimated as the largest assemblage of people ever seen in our centre. Automobiles lined every street within a mile of Manchester Field and when one views that field in the day, and imagines it black with people to a point below the bandstand, some idea of the vast throng may be had. Every hilltop and elevation for miles around had its watchers. Window seats in east side houses were at a premium. Beyond a bare guess, no one can make anywhere near an accurate estimate of the number who saw the display. Every member of Winchester's police force was on duty, while the District Commission sent over a large squad of officers. The big crowd was very orderly, however, and the chief duty imposed upon the officers was that of directing traffic. (Continued to page 5)

FIREWORKS ATTRACT BIG CROWD

Italian Residents Stage Big Two-Day Celebration of Feast of the Assumption A big crowd, estimated in the vicinity of 25,000 people, thronged every available bit of space upon and surrounding Manchester Field Tuesday evening when it gathered to witness the magnificent display of fireworks which brought to a close the big two-day celebration staged by the Italian residents of Winchester in honor of the Feast of the Assumption, an internationally observed Holy Day in the Roman Catholic Church. This year's observance characterized in advance as the most elaborate yet undertaken surely lived up to every expectation. The fact that the Feast of the Assumption fell this year upon Sunday led the committee in charge of the celebration to divide the program so as to have the big fireworks display and its attendant band concert take place on Monday night of this week. Unfortunately the weather man interfered as he so often does and forced a postponement because of rain to Tuesday evening, but the show was well worth waiting for. Each year's celebration has been hailed as the "best ever" but that of this summer leads them all with plenty to spare. Sunday's program began at 8 in the morning with the arrival of the Italian Marine Band of Boston which had been engaged at considerable expense to furnish the music for the entire two-day celebration. After detouring at Winchester Station the band marched to the Italian section of the town where a concert was played at 9:30 o'clock. The concert was followed by a short parade through the principal streets of the district. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a second and more pretentious parade was held, starting from St. Mary's Church and proceeding thence by way of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets to the square and from there north along Main and Swanton streets to the Italian district, comprising Florence, Irving, Holland, Oak and Spruce streets. The return to the church was via Swanton and Washington streets and the parade broke ranks late in the afternoon. The line of march included the police escort which comprised Officers John Hogan, William Cassidy, Mark Kelly and Charles Harrold, the patrolmen being followed by the members of the committee in charge of the celebration of the feast. Members of both the Christopher Columbus Mutual Aid Society and the Italian National Foresters were in line as well as a group of 30 little girls dressed in white and carrying flowers. As usual there was carried over the route of the parade a statue of the Blessed Virgin decorated with long colored streamers to which, in accordance with the Italian custom, suns of money were pinned as the marchers passed. Over $500 were realized in this way. Sunday evening a public band concert was played from the bandstand on Manchester Field by the Marine Band with Frank Pope as Conductor and M. O. Gourzales, trombone soloist. The program follows in full: Italian Sinfonic March..... Constantini Overture..... Tchaikowski Selection..... La Traviata..... Puccini Dances of the..... Dello Gae Capture of Rome, 1870..... Tognari Hungarian Fantasia..... Tognari A heavy rain on Monday evening made it necessary to postpone the big fireworks display and band concert until Tuesday but apparently no one stayed away on that account. The usual big crowd was on hand and the police are of the opinion that more motorists visited Winchester this year than ever before. With the band concert scheduled to begin at 7:30 p. m. cars were beginning to park at vantage points along the Parkway as early as 5:30 in the afternoon and by 8 o'clock many of the more desirable positions in front of the bandstand were taken. As the time for starting drew near traffic became very heavy and the police were faced with quite a problem to find parking places for the multitude of machines. The cars were lined along the Parkway from well above Washington street to Bacon street while Washington street from the Wadleigh School to Main street and Main street from the square to Bacon street had double lines of parked machines. Mystic avenue, Maxwell road, Lloyd and Cutting streets as well as Fenwick and Symmes roads had their full quotas, with plenty more parked along Church street past Rangeley. In the square every available foot of parking space was utilized. Common street and the space behind the station being literally packed with cars. On Thompson street the police got permission from many of the householders to park the automobiles in private yards after space on the street had disappeared. The big crowd was orderly and was exceptionally well handled by the local and Metropolitan police. Chief McIntosh directed the Winchester police in person with Sergeant Rogers in charge of the detail on Manchester Field and Sergeant Cassidy looking out for traffic in the square. Officers Noonan, M. Kelley, Farrell and D. Kelley comprised the playground squad while Officers Donaghey, Regan, Lord and Shea were in the square. Officers A. O'Connell, Dempsey and Cassidy were on patrol duty with Officer E. O'Connell at the desk at headquarters. The Metropolitan detail of five officers was in charge of Sergeant Chaine who has rendered efficient service at Manchester Field many times in the past. (Continued to page 4)

CLINE—HAMILTON

A wedding of much interest to many residents of Cambridge and Winchester was solemnized in St. Mary's rectory on last Sunday evening when Miss Bertha May Hamilton of this town, daughter of Mr. George W. Hamilton of Ferry street, Malden, became the bride of John J. Cline of Cambridge, son of Mr. John W. Cline of New York City. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons of St. Mary's Church. The bride was attired in a gown of blue turquoise georgette and wore a picture hat to match. Her bouquet was of white roses. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Grace Hamilton of Winchester, as bridesmaid. Miss Hamilton wore a gown of yellow georgette with a hat to match and carried red roses. Wilbur Connors of Woburn was groomsmen. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Edward O'Connell on Kirk street. The bride's father assisted the young couple in receiving their guests many of whom came from out-of-town communities including Woburn, Somerville, Arlington, Everett and Malden. Several guests came to attend the reception from points as far distant as New York City and Philadelphia. During the evening a musical program was rendered by Perry's Orchestra and there were vocal selections by Joseph Morano of Woburn and Robert Hallberg of Winchester. An expert exhibition of the Charleston was given by Miss Mary Hamilton of Woburn. A catered supper was served. At the conclusion of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Cline left upon a wedding trip by motor to Maine and Canada. Upon their return they will make their home in Cambridge.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL NOTES On Saturday, Aug. 14, the nurses at the hospital had a delightful party, combining business and pleasure. The nurses met in the early part of the evening to sew name tapes on their uniforms and this brought this detail of their equipment up to standard. After the sewing bee they were joined by their friends and dancing followed. A contribution of $25 had been received by the nurses from Dr. Sheehan and Dr. Halligan. From this fund, were furnished the music and part of the refreshments—ice cream, punch, and nuts. The nurse in the diet kitchen made cakes and candy. The occasion was voted a great success. In July the hospital has received donations of magazines from Mrs. Benjamin Morgan, a crate of tomatoes from Mr. William Callahan, fans from Mrs. Fattengill and linen from Mrs. Russell. Miss Lillian Potts of Indianapolis, Ind. who is a graduate of the New England Deaconess Hospital, has assumed her position as operating room supervisor. Miss Ruth Peterson and Miss Orell MacCall are on their vacations. Miss Peterson is at her home in Woburn and Miss MacCall is spending her time at Kinder, Mich. Miss Emily Crossley, the technician in the X-ray department, has spent a week at Randolph and Miss Mary O'Shea, the night supervisor is on her vacation this month. Miss Mary O'Donoghue, the head nurse of the second floor, on vacation in August, is enjoying several motor trips and Mrs. Annie Mitchell, assistant to the treasurer, is also taking her vacation.

JAMES YOUNG James Young, aged 20, son of Henry and Alice (Keating) Young of 13 Oak street, Woburn, passed away Monday morning of this week at the Mass. General Hospital following an illness of slightly more than a week. About a month ago the young man had undergone an operation for appendicitis at the Choate Hospital in Woburn, but had apparently been well on the road to complete recovery when he was again stricken ill a week ago last Sunday. The following Tuesday his condition became so serious that he was rushed to the Mass. General Hospital where his case was finally diagnosed as meningitis. The deceased was well known in Woburn where he was a graduate of St. Charles Parochial School. He had been for about a year in the employ of Seller's Market in Winchester and had many friends here. Surviving besides his parents are two sisters, Miss Anna Young of the local office of the Edison Light Co., and Miss Alice Young and a brother, Timothy Young of Woburn. Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning with a High Mass of Requiem in St. Charles Church, Woburn, at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, East-Woburn.

DR. BUSTARD TO PREACH SUNDAY Greeted by Large Congregations Last Sunday At the Union Service of the Congregational, Methodist and Baptist Churches, now being held in the First Baptist Church, Rev. W. W. Bustard, D.D. of Cleveland, Ohio, preached last Sunday. Dr. Bustard was formerly pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church in Cleveland, Ohio, known as the Rockefeller Church, and has recently been supplying the largest Baptist Church in Los Angeles of which Rev. J. H. Brubaker was pastor. Dr. Bustard spoke to large audiences both morning and evening and his messages were very well received. He will preach again next Sunday morning and evening. His topic in the morning will be "Why Pray?" and in the evening, "The Greatest Verse in the Bible." The committee of the church is anxious that all who can go to church next Sunday will do so in order that they may not only hear this eloquent and copious preacher, but also that Dr. Bustard may be greeted by large congregations at these, his two closing services in Winchester.

HIGH FINANCE

A fair exchange is no robbery. Admittedly so, and yet there is an often room for a difference of opinion in the matter of what may be held to constitute a fair exchange.

Such a difference evidently arose last Saturday with Mr. Charles O. Smith of Chippin court and an unknown individual as parties of the first and second part.

As we got the story Mr. Smith sent his five year old son to a neighboring street on Swanton street, giving him a $5 bill wrapped in a note to the proprietor requesting certain articles of merchandise.

The store keeper was in the street bargaining with a salesman when the child arrived but a helpful stranger who happened to be in the shop took an interest in the little fellow and undertook to do something for him in the absence of the owner of the establishment.

He failed to fill the order as per instructions contained in the letter but he did, according to Mr. Smith, exchange a $1 bill for the five which the latter had given to his son.

Following the transaction the stranger apparently took his departure in good order but at some little speed. At all events when the proprietor of the shop arrived he found the boy alone with his note and the $1 bill. Feeling that a mistake had been made somewhere and knowing that the money at hand would not cover the bill of goods which the order called for the proprietor suggested that the youthful purchaser repair to his home and tell his folks that he lacked the necessary cash to successfully complete the transaction in question.

The suggestion was acted upon and Mr. Smith immediately repaired to the Swanton street establishment and laid the case before the proprietor with more or less force. At the same time another son brought the matter to the attention of the police. The store keeper was ready to do the right thing, promising to find out who the financier had been and meanwhile giving Mr. Smith $1.50 to make things right. This of course gave the latter a net loss of only 50 per cent on his original investment. Finally Officer Archie O'Connell was detailed to look into the case and at last reports had succeeded in settling the difficulty without resorting to arrests.

THE WIDE-OPEN SUNDAY

To the Editor of the Star:

Connie Mack, the baseball magnate, has appeared in a new role. In the Boston Herald of last Friday, he sneaked us a moral reformer,—"Saul among the prophets." His assertion would be most amusing were not the subject he discusses so serious and vital. The burden of his message is the moral benefit of commercial and professional baseball on Sunday. He does not condemn to the financial and social aspects, the huge gains which he and his crowd will reap when Sunday sports are commercialized—the moral taint and contamination which have always been connected with commercial Sunday sport, especially when legalized. Mr. Mack hopes that the initiative vote on Nov. 2 when it is expected, the question of commercial sports will be on the ballot in Massachusetts will legalize them. This will depend entirely upon the voters of the State. If those who do not favor the business of commercial sport on Sunday do their duty at the polls by voting no, the proposition will surely be defeated.

Only 52 per cent of all registered voters voted in the last presidential election. How many slackers will be absent on Nov. 2?

Another feature of the bill which Mr. Mack did not mention is this:

It will legalize, if carried, all kinds of out-door Sunday sports for money. Eight sporting syndicates are already knocking for entrance to the great Sunday carnival of greed, including soccer, baseball, football, foot racing, bicycle racing, yacht racing, athletic public games and sports. This should not be tolerated in Massachusetts, but will certainly become the law unless the good citizens are awake and active.

We do not believe that Winchester wants her beautiful playground open on Sunday to the howling, betting, congested crowd of Sunday desecrators, and that she will vote almost if not absolutely unanimously NO in big capitals.

KILCOYNE FAREWELL

Another of Winchester's youths left town last Saturday to begin his 14 years' of preparation for the Catholic Priesthood. George M. Kilcoyne, son of John and Katherine Kilcoyne of 21 Chester street, told his many friends and relatives "good-bye" as he embarked for the Jesuit House of studies at Lenox, where he will devote the next 14 years fitting himself for the arduous duties and demands of his life in the world renowned Society of Jesus, a life that means fruitful years of teaching either at Boston College or Holy Cross, in what is now called the New England Province of the Jesuit order, or work on the Missionary Band. The first two years of a Jesuit in the making are days of manual labor and prayer, wherein the aspirant imbibes and makes his own the institute or spirit of St. Ignatius. At the end of this novitiate the three-fold promise of poverty, chastity and obedience is assumed, the habit is given the young novice and he takes up his studies for an intensive course of five years.

Following this the scholastic teaching for four years and then repairs to the Theology House at Weston where he pursues a three-year course in theology till his ordination to God's priesthood. One year later the newly ordained Jesuit priest spends his tertianship at the novitiate once again and solemnly takes his three vows which bind him irrevocably as a member of the "followers" of St. Ignatius.

This, in time, is what the young man in whose honor a farewell reception was held last Friday night at his home must do if he wishes to work in the vineyard of the Lord as one of God's anointed, and this is what George Kilcoyne told his 30 or more pals and acquaintances who gathered to wish him luck and happiness, after the Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, founder and director of the "Knights of the Mystic Garland," of which George was the "K. L.," had surprised him with a Stator traveling bag and purse of gold.

Speeches and presentations over, the gathering set themselves to an evening of fun, set off with refreshments served by Tom Kilcoyne and his sisters, Katherine, Annie and Mary, assisted by Mary and Alice DeLaurier and Agnes Shaughnessy of Woburn. Six students of the class of 1926 at Boston College, of which the evening's honored recipient was a member, together with the members of Father Fitzgibbons' "K. M. G." and many relatives made merry till

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

We are perfectly willing to be laughed at for our wit, but not at our folly.

The man who keeps calm while the other fellow gets angry has infinitely the best of the matter.

It is said the Chinese, when in good health, pay their doctor's so much a month. If they are sick the doctor's pay them.

Let the wind do your singing, and the clouds weep your tears. Life is only short, and smiles will give you the greatest comfort.

The cynic and pessimist come nearest to being happy when they are miserable.

Many among the scratching, slapping, shoeing multitude gathered on the banks of the fragrant Aberjona last Tuesday evening were doubtless wondering just what was being done by that "Mosquito Committee" authorized at the annual town meeting in March to investigate conditions and make recommendations for the extermination of the musical pest. Members of the committee could easily have gotten unlimited data for their researches in the vicinity of the hamlet on that occasion.

As the arguments are heard for and against the name "George Washington" by which designating the School Committee has decided we shall know the new school in process of construction on Highland avenue at Appalachian mill, it has occurred to us that those opposed to the present nomenclature might advocate a change to the "Scotch School," in the "Highlands" of Winchester, thus in a measure attaining their contention that the building should have the name "Highlands" attached to it somewhere. With an apparent deadlock established as regards either the George Washington or the Highland name the Star suggests that the building be known as the "Willerness School." Apropos, what?

There is only one logical reason for calling the new school building at Winchester Highlands the "George Washington School"—that is misplaced sentiment. The new school is on Highland avenue, it is in the Highlands District, it is the highest building in altitude we have—and it has been traditionally referred to since its inception as the "Highland" School. There is no question whatever about the "Highland" end of it. Sentiment may dictate to a few that a building once used in the vicinity of Washington street, three-quarters of a mile away, should be perpetuated in the new structure, but without question everyone from this time forth, in searching for the Washington School, provided the name is allowed to stand, will end up down in the valley looking along the street of the same name. If there are enough residents still interested in the naming of this building to have the opposition of the School Committee and carry the matter into town meeting, we wish them success. George Washington was a brave and able statesman, and so far as we can ascertain has never been "taken in vain" by any of the "Highland" advocates other than what has been cleverly handled them by the opposition. Where is this opposition, by the way? To date the Star has not heard a half dozen who favor the name Washington.

It has been said, and rather more often than not, that the Town of Winchester owes much of its popularity to a great deal of its popularity to its magnificent park system. True enough! We have a most magnificent system here in our town. This broad, beautiful drive, winding by our river and lakes, set with living green hills on either side, cannot but be admired and envied. No wonder so many choose Winchester for a home. To drive through Winchester is always a pleasure which never tires. It would be seemly, however, to include in our beautiful vista just a thought of those on whom the responsibility of maintaining these beauties rest, and to Mr. Fred Allen, an old employee of the Metropolitan District Commission, all credit for our Metropolitan beauties is due. Drive where you will, from one end of the park system to the other, you will find no better kept section than that which runs through Winchester. Mr. Allen has ability and he uses it. His section of parkway is equalled by none. Probably you have never thought of him, much less seen him, for he is never in evidence. But he is the man. He knows his job and he attends to it, with skill and ability. Cheers for Mr. Allen! Alex MacDonald, all nearer at home, deserves all praise also. He, too, belongs to the committee. His eye for beauty is matched only by his ability to create it, and Mr. Allen has no second in Mr. MacDonald. These two gentlemen are responsible in more ways than one for our prestige and standing as one of the beautiful towns of Greater Boston, and should not be lost sight of in the general scheme of things which unite to make us contented and happy.

On "the morning after" one gentleman left at the Star office for inspection three half-burned pieces of paper, picked up during the fireworks display at Main street and Herick street. He spoke of the fire hazard and asked "Is it worth it." Perish the thought that someone's house would burn down—or even partially burn down, but we are just savage enough, or childish enough, or whatever it is that is in us handed down from primeval days, to really enjoy such a fireworks display as that shown Tuesday night. Of course we would not say for a minute that this paper would not set someone's house afire—but it didn't, so let's be happy. Of course we may be in the minority in our enjoyment of these fireworks, and the million or two who came to Winchester Tuesday night only did so to look things over and see what they could see and then go back home and stay there forever and ever, and never come to Winchester again to see fireworks, but all in all, if it were our house which was threatened; if it were—we would be willing to drag out the garden hose and sit around a while, just to witness another display like that. Fireworks are expensive, burn up a lot of money, are dangerous, annoy certain people with their terribly noise, attract a horde of people to our fair town, and all that and a lot more which some of us could easily think up—but we like 'em and we still like 'em; we'll tell the Town we do! Burning grass and blazing rubbish also endanger us, and while our brave and able firemen are always on the job, we love to think that they are even more than ever "watchfully waiting," with their hands on the throttle as it were, when our fireworks are shot off. So, be it hysterics or myonbeans, they are "Johnnie on the spot" in prompt order when an alarm comes in on fireworks night. If you don't believe it you were not on the Parkway Tuesday evening. So, generally speaking, we should deem it a misfortune should our fireworks be forbidden and we all of us, even the multitude who sat in darkened rooms in fear and trembling with the shales pulled down, deprived of this thrill.

THE CHARM OF GOOD POETRY

Edited By Ellen Guild

Keats has written a poem whose opening line many of us know and love. But I wonder how many have ever read the whole thing and realized its magnificent beauty?

All of the poems this week are coming to you through the courtesy of Mrs. Blanche E. Herbert of Willwood street who has edited a book called "The Good Cheer Book," and it is all of that. Her selections are only the most helpful poetry and these today are what we should receive from Nature in true thankfulness, if our eyes are sufficiently open to God's works.

A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever
A thing of beauty is a joy forever:
Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness; but still will keep
A bower quiet for us, and a sleep
Full of sweet dreams, and health, and quiet breathing.
Therefore, on every morrow, as we wreath-ing
A flowery band to bind us to the earth,
Spite of despondence, of the unfeeling heart
Of those who are old, of the great calamities
Of noble deaths, of the gloomy days
Of ill-remembered years, of unrelenting Darkness, let us turn to the sun, to the Might of our burning skies; yea, to the
Some shape of beauty move away the pall From our dark spirits. Such the sun, the moon,
The trees old and young, sprouting a shady boon
For simple sheep; and such are out-ill-
With the green world they live in; and clear rills
That for themselves a cooling covert make
'Gainst the hot season; the sun-drawn fountains
That with sprinkling of their musk-scented blossoms
And such, too, are the grandeur of the dooms
We have imagined for the mighty dead;—
All lovely tales that we have heard or read;
An endless fountain of immortal drink,
Pouring into us from the heaven's brink.

Here Byron, of the unhappy heart, expresses his loneliness in the midst of friends and success:

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,
There is society, where none intrudes,
By the deep sea, and music in its roar:
I love not man the less, but Nature more,
From these our interviews, in which I steal
From all that may be, or have been before,
To mingle with the Universe, and feel
What I can never express, yet cannot all conceal.

Charles D. Lakey has given us a wonderful tonic to take the first thing on arising. And take plenty of it!

This Miracle of Morning
I felt the pulsing of the dawn,
The throbbing of the ether fields from afar,
The miracle of morning drawing on,
And the fading of the silent silver star;
God's morning, swarming down without a jar,
With a glory on the leafage and the lawn
There was just a trace of color in the sky,
A pinkish scintillation, that was all;
But the day had kissed the waning night good-bye,
And the silent world was waking at the call.
The watchful cockerel told it to its mate,
The thrushes heard with rapture on the lawn,
And every bud and blossom was elate
With the miracle of morning drawing on.

Mrs. Browning (Elizabeth Barrett) has written many beautiful things but this poem seems to reveal her lofty character more than any of her others.

The little cress that fretted me,
I met them yesterday among the fields above the sea,
Among the winds at play;
Among the lowing of the herds,
The rustling of the trees,
Among the singing of the birds,
The humming of the bees,
The healthful hum of what may happen
I cast them all away.
Among the clover-scented grass,
Among the new-mown hay;
Among the hooting of the corn
Where drowsy poppies nod,
Where I thought I die and good are born,
Out in the fields with God.

And this work of William Wordsworth speaks for itself:

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So it was when my life began;
So it is now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or yet in the field with God.

FIREWORKS ATTRACT BIG CROWD

The Tuesday evening program of selections rendered by the Marine Band was rather more varied than that of Sunday and included several popular numbers as well as the standard and operatic airs so loved by the Italians. The music was good and much enjoyed by those close enough to the bandstand to have their hearing unimpaired by the constant chugging of automobiles. The complete program follows:

Summer Epithet (March) ..... Sousa
William Tell Overture ..... Rossini
Aida, Act 3 ..... Verdi
Valse de Cammermeier ..... Donizetti
Rose Marie (Selection) ..... Feint
American Patrol ..... Monaghan
Overture (Selection) ..... Verdi
Midnight Fantasia ..... Purkin

The display of fireworks which is the big drawing card of the entire celebration was unquestionably the best which Winchester has ever seen. In fact it was thought by one in the business to be one of the best ever shown in this district. The contract had been awarded to the Pearl Fireworks Company of Berkely, R. I., through its sectional representative, Mr. George Barbaro of this town. The Pearl Fireworks Company is rapidly establishing for itself a reputation as manufacturers of typically Italian fireworks second to none in this part of the country. It has been a repeated winner of prizes in competition with other concerns and is able to produce effects not undertaken by less able organizations. M. Antonio Natale, proprietor, is of the old school of fireworks manufacturers, having learned his trade in Italy where its secrets were handed down from father to son through several generations. He outlined himself Tuesday evening and many of his creations, more fully described elsewhere, were strikingly beautiful and most unusual. In passing we might state that his mechanical portrayal of a drunken man reeling about the field was so realistic that several in the crowd appealed to Serg. Rogers to place him under arrest.

The final barrage beggars description. It was a flashing glare of light, a shower of multi-colored stars seen amid dense white smoke and set to a thundering accompaniment of deafening explosions which finally came to an end after ten minutes with the setting off of a giant 10-inch bomb, literally shaking the earth.

During the bedlam, Box 331 was faintly heard sounding for a fire at the residence of Mr. Francis Richardson on Cutting street where falling debris had ignited an awning. The damage done was slight, but the roaring fire apparatus crashing through the crowd added to the excitement of the occasion.

This was so far as we learned the only unpleasantness to mar an otherwise perfect evening and the committee in charge of the celebration deserve much credit for the way in which things were run off. In all about $1500 was spent on the entire observance of the Feast with about $800 appropriated for fireworks.

The committee included Joseph Barba, Chairman; James V. Barbaro, Treasurer; Alfred Rolli, Secretary; Frank Dattilo, Domenico Della Sventura, Giovanni Gattinieri, Antonio Maiasgiolin, Ugo Rolli and Pietro Sciascia.

50 Body Styles and Types • • • 500 Color and Upholstery Combinations

This extraordinary forward step in the personalization of the motor is another triumph in Cadillac's long career of success and prestige.

It brings to Cadillac purchasers the practically unlimited range of 500 Color and Upholstery Combinations, and 50 Body Styles and Types—the widest choice ever offered by an American manufacturer.

This gigantic program is the culmination of months of planning and organization. In its way it is as great a success as any of Cadillac's engineering achievements—and is typical of the leadership which makes the Cadillac so noteworthy.

Notable also are new improvements and refinements and added luxury features—which, in their totality, bring the Cadillac to the highest development.

These place the Cadillac on an unapproached plane of distinction and luxury, and completely separate Cadillac from comparison with even the best cars of its price range and over.

The widespread interest already aroused shows that the new, 90-degree, eight-cylinder Cadillac is destined for success far beyond even that of the year just passed.

SUCCESSFUL STOCK SEASON PREDICTED

Mr. Viano of the Somerville Theatre states that he has signed three more well known stock performers who will be seen at the Somerville Theatre on Monday evening, Sept. 13, when that well known play house will reopen for another season of stock.

Herbert Ashton, Jr. who will be seen in the leading male role will close his present engagement at Cleveland, Ohio and motor directly to Somerville.

Marion L. White, the new leading lady, is spending the summer with friends at Sea Gate, Brooklyn, N. Y. She is a close personal friend of Walter Gilbert, leading man at the St. James Theatre, Boston, having played two seasons with Mr. Gilbert several years ago. Miss White is a blonde with a striking personality and possesses a lively and expensively winning smile. She has had a world of stock experience.

Doris Rich who will play second lead is a well known stock performer, having appeared in nearly every city of consequence.

Opposite Miss Rich will be seen J. Arnold Daly who made a decided hit in the Fall River company last season.

The juvenile role will be handled by Edwin H. Kasper who is at present playing a Broadway engagement in "The Blonde Sinner."

The players comprising the company coming here this season are tried and proven artists in their individual parts and all have played in productions and well known stock companies.

The production end this season is in the hands of Eugene Harper who was with David Belasco several seasons while Phillip Sheffield will be the director in charge.

A crew of workmen are busy painting and renovating the interior and it is Mr. Viano's intention to have the earliest and most home-like theatre as well as the best stock company in New England.

Subscriptions are coming now in increasing volume each day for season reservations. Seats for the season can be booked ahead and in this way retained each week at no extra charge, thus enabling one to have choice seats each week avoiding having to call for seats and relieving the possibilities of not being able to get the seats one wants.

COMMENT ON THE FIREWORKS DISPLAY

The crowd was well handled. The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, besides having as many electric cars on hand as their trackage would take, had many of their big buses. After the fireworks were over the pedestrians were given first consideration. Auto traffic was kept out of the square so far as possible, and it was amazing how fast the big crowd disappeared. The autos were traveling out of town in lines a good half-hour after the last number was over, but there were no accidents of consequence and little confusion.

The fireworks, by the way, were accompanied by a band concert of the usual high merit furnished by our Italian residents. Due probably to the still and heavy air, the music did not travel so far as usual, and possibly the noise of the crowd helped to drown it. The thousands who were fortunate enough to get near the bandstand, however, enjoyed a very beautiful concert.

Comforting Certainty of Performance!

This—through more than six years has been the satisfying experience of Kleen-Heet owners:

When they turned over to Kleen-Heet the heating of their homes, they promptly—and permanently—shed all their heating worries! All that remained was to set the thermostat—and to remember occasionally to order oil.

What matter freeze or thaw! Indoors, where Kleen-Heet was, there was unvarying comfort. And more!—the ease of mind that comes with the perfect assurance that one's comfort will not fail.

With such a record, it is but natural that Kleen-Heet's engineering superiority among oil burners should be everywhere accepted.

And that Kleen-Heet should be so dominantly the choice of the well informed.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

NO BED IN THE KITCHEN!

London, England, has just been holding an Ideal Home Exhibition, and among the wonders of the display was an up-to-date American kitchen, completely furnished from gas range to paring knife, according to American standards.

But sight-seers from Sweden, Denmark, Poland and Russia complained that there was something very wrong about this kitchen. It lacked a bed! Where would the cook sleep—surely not on the porcelain-topped table.

Some of our grandparents probably recall these huge old-world kitchens, which also served as dining room, living quarters for the domestics and general assembly hall for the whole family in severe winter weather.

How much cleaner and more sanitary are our modern American kitchens, devoted solely to the preparation of food. Even the old coal stove is gone. The last word in kitchens is the all-gas kitchen, and when gas is the fuel you'll find cleanliness and order.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Romkey and daughter Mabel of 22 Stone avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Smith and daughter Helen of 16 Westley street, accompanied by Miss Laura L. Huff of South Natick and Mr. Leon E. Leavitt of Boston, returned last Saturday from a two weeks auto trip through Maine. They reported good weather and a very interesting time visiting Old Orchard, Boothbay Harbor, Orrs Island, Poland Springs, Bolgrade Lakes, "Mellie" Dunham's home at Augusta, and other points of interest. While in Freeport, Me. they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Patterson at a real old-fashioned clam bake at Mere Point, Me.

A Winchester motorist was fined $14 in the District Court at Widum Wednesday morning as the result of his marline, which he had left on Winchester place, breaking from its moorings in front of the Central Battery Station and rolling down the incline and against the building on Mt. #### WINCHESTER MAN LEADS AIR SERVICE TROOPS ON TOUR OF DUTY IN SOUTH

Major Wooley Heads 26th Division
Unit, M. N. G.

The 26th Division Air Service, Massachusetts National Guard, left Saturday at 5 o'clock in the steamship Ontario for its annual tour of duty at Langley Field, Va.

In command of Maj. Charles H. Wooley, the Air Service Division consisting of a full squadron of fliers, photo section and medical section, will undergo a two weeks' training course at the field before returning to Boston on the steamer Chatham, Aug. 30.

A hitch in transportation arrangements with the Boston Elevated delayed the arrival of the enlisted men nearly an hour. It had been arranged that busses would convey the men from their administration headquarters at the South Armory to the Merchants and Miners Pier, Northern avenue, but when the busses failed to arrive the squadron marched to the pier.

The Ontario, in which Capt. William J. Bond is making his last trip before taking command of the company's newest steamship, Fairfax, made a special stop at Newport News to land the troops. The vessel carries cargo and passengers for Norfolk and Baltimore.

After landing Monday at Newport News the squadron moved in trucks to Langley Field at Hampton, and flying maneuvers, with photographic and bombing practice, began at once. An advance detail of the squadron was already on the ground.

In Boston the section has its training headquarters at the East Boston

Airdrome. Planes used in the weekly drills include a De Havilland, an O-2, one of the newest types of Army observation planes, and a SE-5, one of the newer pursuit planes. In all there are 10 planes used by the squadron.

While in Virginia the men will be inspected by Adj. Gen. Jesse E. Stevens and his staff. It is expected. Some time during the two weeks Capt. Horace Heisen, commander of the East Boston Airdrome, will fly down in company with Capt. Charles Ford.

This is the second year the squadron has spent in its annual tour at Langley.

The officers who sailed with the men, in addition to Major Wooley, were: Capt. Clarence E. Hodge, Capt. Louis E. Boutwell, Capt. Edward P. Bowman, Capt. Albert L. Edson, Lieut. Conrad Richardson, Lieut. George E. Sprague, Lieut. Bert Davlin, Lieut. Julian S. Dexter, Lieut. Robert Nagle, Lieut. Stanley Beck and Lieut. Clyde C. Jankway.

Two other officers of the squadron, Lieuts. Gordon Prince and William P. Mather, were unable to make the trip.

Sailing on the Ontario were three wives of the officers, Mrs. Boutwell, Mrs. Davlin, with Miss Elizabeth Church and Miss Cynthia Gibson, and Mrs. Bowman. They will return on the steamship.

The photo section of the squadron is commanded by Lieutenant Dexter, and the medical section by Captain Bowman.

Including officers, the party numbered 192.

The sudden change in weather Wednesday night brought a light frost in the low-lands yesterday morning—the first of the season.

INTRODUCING The Improved Packard Six

TODAY'S Packard Six will outperform, in traffic and in speed, any Packard car ever built with one exception.

The exception is today's Packard Eight—The Boss of the Road.

The Packard Six has long excelled in beauty, in comfort and in distinction. In simplicity and in economy. Greater than ever in all of these, it now also excels in performance.

Those who drive the improved Packard Six will let others pass as a matter of courtesy, never of necessity.

In car beauty contest or contest on the open road it will more than hold its own against any Six, or any Eight, excepting cars of racing type.

Most useful and most appreciated of all, however, will be the car's agility and ease of control in crowded traffic.

For more than six years the Packard Six has been an inspiration to engineers.

It has been the most copied car in the world, mechanically and in body lines.

Now the industry has something new to inspire it—the most brilliant performance of any Six, or any Eight, light or heavy.

If you would know the finest in motor cars permit us to demonstrate the improved Packard Six.

We give you the word of one of the oldest and most conservative companies that you will experience the greatest thrill of your motoring life.

Despite the fact that the glory of all previous Packards has been surpassed, Packard Six prices have not been increased.

You are cordially invited to ride in and drive the improved Packard Six whether you intend to buy a new car or not.

We shall be more than repaid in seeing you get your thrill and in the story you will tell your friends.

Our next advertisement will tell of the improved Packard Eight—

THREE AUTO MISHAPS SUNDAY

Two men were treated at the Winchester Hospital early Sunday morning for injuries sustained in an auto accident which took place on Cambridge street in Woburn at about 1 o'clock.

At 1:40 a. m. officer John Noonan of the police, while patrolling his beat on Church street, was accosted by a motorist who gave him the name as Ernest A. Jeffrey and his address as 666 West College avenue, Somerville.

Jeffrey was driving a Hudson sedan and wished to be directed to the Winchester Hospital. He had as passengers Daniel McInnis of 388 Washington street, Somerville, Thomas V. Lahey of 76 Winter street, Arlington, Richard White of 17 College Hill road, West Somerville, and John P. Morrissey of 367 Columbia road Cambridge, whom he had picked up following the accident mentioned above.

McInnis was treated at the hospital by Dr. R. W. Sheehy for a bad cut on the forehead, nine stitches being necessary to close the wound. Lahey had sustained a cut under the right eye. The other occupants of the car were uninjured.

Shortly after midnight a Hudson brougham, owned and operated by James Violante of 575 River street, Mattapan, and a Hudson coach, owned and operated by Avard G. Thompson of 111 Wyman street, West Medford, were in collision at the junction of Washington street and the Mystic Valley Parkway.

According to an account of the accident, the brougham was on Washington street headed north when it was struck by the coach which was going westerly along the Parkway.

The force of the collision swung Violante's machine completely around and tipped it over. Riding with him were his mother, and sister Miss Helen Violante, and Miss Claudy Intinerelli of Valentine street, Cambridge.

They were taken from the over-turned car by officer James Farrell of the police assisted by Chief David H. DeCourcy of the Fire Department and Mr. George O'Shaughnessy. Mrs. Violante complained of injuries to her back and side and was taken to treatment to the office of Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. The others in the party were not hurt beyond a bad shaking up.

With Thompson in the Hudson coach was his wife, Mrs. Emma G. Thompson. Neither was injured. Violante's machine was badly damaged and had to be towed to the Central Garage.

At 5:05 in the afternoon a Ford sedan, owned by Simon Dulang Jr., of 1 Eastern avenue, Wakefield, and operated by Arthur F. Dulang of the same address after coming to a stop on Main street in Park street was struck in the rear by a Ford runabout owned by the Minnesota Heat and Refrigerator Company of Boston and driven by William F. Morrissey of 263 Broadway, Cambridge.

Both cars were somewhat damaged but no one was reported injured. The other occupants of the runabout were Charles Lundgren of 641 Cross street Malden, Richard Carroll of 325 Windsor street, Cambridge and Samuel Trotella of 233 Harvard street, Cambridge.

ANNUAL OUTING OF ARLINGTON GAS LIGHT COMPANY

The annual outing of the Arlington Gas Light Company Employees Association was held Tuesday, Aug. 17 at Thompson's Grove, Wilmington, when about 250 members journeyed to that popular place in busses, trucks and touring cars. The start was made from the Company's works on Grove street and a more jolly crowd would have been difficult to find than that which started out to have a playday amid pleasant scenes, congenial friends and associates.

Chairman E. C. Bryant, in charge of transportation, started the crowd off about 9:30, which arrived at the grove in Wilmington at 10:15 a. m. A ball game was the first event between the married and the single men, that was won by the latter, 10 to 7, after nine full innings. The battery for the single men was McGarry and Thomas, with Hatch and Lopez for the benedicts. It was a well played game as the score shows, and the fans were given some thrills from the quality of game staged, in fact this was the feature of the outing.

This strenuous game gave the players, at least, keen appetites, for the luncheon participated in at the noon hour from the well-filled boxes brought by the picnicers, whose parties were wet with the tunes and ice cream furnished by the company. Music by Spaver's Orchestra during the lunch hour added to the same. In fact the music was so alluring that those who love to dance the light fantastic, simply could not keep their feet still, and danced to 2:30, heart's content in the hall until 2:30, when the music was run off. During the dance there was an elimination number, won by Miss Allyn and Mr. McLaughlin, the former presented with a box of candy and the latter a box of cigars.

The sports proved exciting, as well as amusing. Those winning the events were presented prizes from the Association by Mr. Cass. The day that had been ideal for an outing, came to a close as far as the picnicers were concerned, at 6:30, that saw all safely returned to Arlington.

Owing to the absence of Mr. Winchell, who is on his vacation, Mr. E. C. Bryant, superintendent, took charge of the outing.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

Last Saturday afternoon those in the square witnessed an unusual accident at the railroad crossing. Just as the through express headed north was thundering into the center of the Congregational Church directly into the locomotive's path. The bird was struck by the smoke stack of the engine and knocked down against the cow-catcher, from which it was hurled into the center in front of Lyceum Building. It was picked up by Trooper John Dempsey of the State Patrol who happened to be passing. The bird was alive but had suffered the loss of a wing and was badly battered about the head. It was taken in charge by "Professor" Jones who has always evinced the greatest interest in the flock of pigeons, which frequents the bus square and to which the injured bird evidently belonged.

PRaise FOR WINCHESTER POLICE

To the Editor of the Star:
At about quarter of twelve the night before last my automobile was stolen from my yard without my knowledge. About 15 minutes later Sergeant Cassidy, of the Winchester Police force, telephoned me that the car had been stolen, had been recovered by Officer "Dan" Kelly and was in the Central Garage undamaged.

The alertness of Officer Kelly in discovering the theft, apprehending the parties responsible and recovering the auto, together with the prompt courtesy of Sergeant Cassidy at the time and of the Chief the next morning, not only impressed me greatly but also seemed to me to be worthy perhaps of general knowledge of the matter.

Very truly yours,
R. J. Holmes

SYMME'S CORNER HOME ENTERED

The police were notified Tuesday evening by Mr. Herbert E. Stone that his home at 3 Edgehill road had been entered some time during the past month in the absence of his family and thoroughly ransacked. Chief McIntish investigated and found that entrance had been gained by forcing a window. The fact that the house had been closed since June made it hard to place the time of the break and the authorities have very little upon which to work. Loot to the value of between $125 and $150 was taken by the thieves.

Pupils will be admitted to the first grade who are 6 years of age on Sept. 1, or who will become 6 not later than Jan. 1, 1927. ## JONAS A. LARAWAY TO RUN FOR REPRESENTATIVE

Mr. Jonas A. Laraway is to oppose Rep. Thomas R. Rateman for the State House this fall from our new district.

NOTICE

Announcement has been made that the opening fall meeting of Winchester Post, American Legion, will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 1, in the Legion Home on Washington street.

FREDERICK L. WALDMYER

Winchester lost another of its residents of long standing last Friday afternoon when Frederick L. Waldmyer, for the past 9 years water registrar of the town and a former Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, passed away at his home on Webster street after an illness of several months. He suffered two strokes early in March but so far recovered as to be able to visit a bit around the square and Town Hall when he was again bed-ridden during the latter part of June. Rallying again he was once more able to be up and out around his house and grounds when a third stroke suffered the middle of last week proved fatal.

Mr. Waldmyer was born in Boston and was 68 years of age. He lived for a time in Chelsea before coming to Winchester some 50 years ago and was educated in the Chelsea schools and at the Allen School in Newton. The son of Philip and Sarah Waldmyer, he was as a young man associated in business with his father who was the proprietor of the widely known Waldmyer Leather Tannery which was situated on what is now the playground, Manchester Field.

After the town had taken over the tannery site and following the death of his father, Mr. Waldmyer became associated with the Water and Sewer Department. For 22 years he served the town, first as engineer and superintendent at the North Reservoir pumping station, then for a short time as water inspector and later as water registrar and clerk of the Water and Sewer Board. He was regarded throughout the district as one well posted in matters pertaining to his department while his pleasing personality and interest in local affairs won for him a wide circle of friends.

In the old days when the volunteer fireman service was prized among the young men of the town as a high honor, Mr. Waldmyer entered the service of the Winchester Fire Department as a call man on the old Hose 1 Company. For five years he ran with this company until in 1879 he was transferred to the Engine Chemical Company of which he was made captain. He later joined old Laddler 1, serving as captain until 1891 when he resigned because of business pressure. His interest in fire fighting did not end with his departure from active duty and in 1895 he was appointed to the Board of Fire Engineers. He served on the board until 1901 and was chief engineer for four years. Later in 1911 he again served for a short time as chief engineer and also as assistant chief and clerk of the Board of Fire Engineers. He was succeeded in 1912 by the present chief, David H. DeCoursey.

Mr. Waldmyer's enjoyment of all branches of sport led him to take an active interest in Winchester's baseball association which several years ago organized and supported a town team with a State wide reputation in the semi-professional ranks. He was for a time the association's president and after the organization ceased to function continued to follow closely the town's activities upon the diamond. Some years ago he was a well known figure in the bowling activities of the Calumet Club. During the World War he served upon the Committee of Public Safety and was a member of the Home Guards. He was affiliated with William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Winchester Lodge of Elks, Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., Omar Grotto of the Mystic Shrine, and was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Retha L. Waldmyer, and four daughters, Mrs. Gertrude (Walter Ronald) Locke of West Brattleboro, Vt.; Mrs. Caroline (Frederick) Rogers of Springfield, Mrs. Retha (James A.) Newman of Leominster, and Mrs. Marguerite (Robert M.) Bowen of Boston. Ten grandchildren also survive him.

Funeral services were held on last Sunday afternoon at the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. Arthur L. Winn, a family friend and a retired clergyman of Winchester. A large delegation of town officials, members of the Water and Sewer Board, employees of the Water and Sewer Department, many former members of the Fire Department together with representatives of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, Winchester Lodge of Elks and the Calumet Club attended the services. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

The bearers were Past Worshipful Master William M. Belcher and Secretary Ernest R. Eustis of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, Past Grand J. A. Hersey and George H. Hamilton of Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows and Exalted Ruler Fred H. Scholl and Postmaster George H. Loehman, E.L.K. of Winchester Lodge of Elks. During the services Mrs. Helen Ellefson Barr sang several selections. Interment was in the family lot at Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

Miss Elizabeth Moore Stearns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Stearns of Salisbury road and Charles Anderson Dodge, Lieutenant U. S. N., of Pasadena, Cal., son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnathan S. Dodge, were united in marriage Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany. The ceremony, which was largely attended, was performed by the pastor, Rev. Allen Evans, Jr.

The bride was accompanied by Mrs. John M. Murray of Concord, N. H., as matron of honor and by her sister, Miss Eleanor Stearns of Winchester, as maid of honor. Miss Marion Blanchard of Peabodick, N. ## WINCHESTER BOY SAVES SANDY BEACH RATHER Daniel McGaffigan, 22, of 11 Winthrop street, Stoneham, was rescued from drowning Wednesday afternoon at Sandy Beach by the prompt action of Henry Bridge of this town who brought the former ashore after a sudden ill turn had caused him to sink while bathing at the popular Mystic Lake resort.

Bridge, who is a former high school football player and who makes his home with his mother, Mrs. Maude H. Bridge, at 37 Lloyd street, was leaving Sandy in his canoe late in the afternoon when a shout from some of the other bathers at the beach called his attention to McGaffigan whom he saw laying on the bottom of the lake.

Leaping from the craft Bridge dove twice before bringing the unconscious man to the surface. After being taken ashore the latter was revived by first aid treatment administered by Lifeguards Murray and Norton and was taken to the police shanty at the entrance to the beach where he recovered sufficiently to be taken to his home early in the evening.

McGaffigan had a similar experience about a year ago and recently had been under the doctor's care because of illness. His rescuer graduated from the Winchester High School a year ago last June and from Worcester Academy with the class of 1926. He is to enter M. I. T. this fall.

PUBLIC LIBRARY, WINCHESTER, MASS.

McINTIRE—LYNCH

Miss Helen A. Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Lynch of 9 Grove place was united in marriage Sunday evening at 7.30 to Mr. Arthur J. McIntire of 27 Beacon street, Woburn. Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbon, officiated at the ceremony which was performed at St. Mary's Rectory.

The couple were attended by Miss Catherine Lynch, the bride's sister, who wore a gown of orchid georgette with a large silver picture hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses as maid of honor, and by Frank MacDonald of Woburn as best man.

The bridal gown was of white canton crepe embroidered in white seed pearls and surmounted by a veil of white tulle caught up with a band of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Following the church ceremony a wedding reception was tendered by the parents of the bride at their home, 9 Grove place, where beautiful cut flowers and ferns lent a festive air to the occasion. A buffet lunch was served and musical entertainment enjoyed. Among those who contributed to the program were Frank MacDonald of Woburn with vocal selections, Charles Murphy of Wollaston and Thomas White of this town with vocal duets and Earl Young of Woburn with a specialty act. Guests were present from Boston, Wollaston, Cambridge, Arlington, Stoneham, Melford, Burlington, Woburn and Winchester.

After a wedding trip to St. Anne de Beupre, Canada, Mr. and Mrs. McIntire will reside in Sherburn street, Woburn.

MANY LOCAL ELKS AT WOBURN OUTING

About 40 members of Winchester Lodge of Elks attended the outing of Woburn Lodge at the Martin Luther Grove, Tynesboro, Wednesday, enjoying a day of genuine fun and recreation. Winchester was invited by Woburn to participate in the outing, the chief event of which was a baseball game between the two lodges.

The local nine was captained by Jack Hanlon, and while the score was finally credited 9 to 6 in favor of Harold McDonald's team, it was nip and tuck for most of the way. At that, many of the players showed up in really old-time form, and some very pretty plays were pulled off, much to the amusement and gratification of the fans.

As an impromptu feature a soccer game was held between the two lodges. This contest was popularly termed the "sooco" match by those who participated, and is reported to have been a draw. There were a number of quip pitching contests, the championship being finally decided in favor of Mr. John Lynch and Michael McCarron. These two champions, while teaming up as members of rival lodges, felt they had maintained the standing of the older members of the party, which in fact they certainly had, as none of the younger element could touch them for poise and accuracy.

During the afternoon a list of sports was run off, in which Winchester Lodge members participated but failed to qualify. A buffet lunch was served throughout the day, with a substantial banquet at 4 o'clock.

The deceased was educated in the Winchester schools and in 1897 was married to Felix J. Carr. She was a member of the Massachusetts Catholic Women's Guild and of the Married Ladies' Sodality of St. Mary's Church.

Surviving besides her husband are a son, James H. Carr of Newark, N. J., two sisters, Ellen L. Connors and Mrs. Josephine E. Thompson, both of Somerville and one brother, Thomas J. Connors of East Boston.

Varied and Extensive Program Planned

Summer is drawing near its end and attention will soon be focussed on activities for the coming season. The rooms of the Calumet Club have been considerably renovated, and the bowling alleys reconditioned.

The Entertainment Committee has prepared a varied and extensive program starting Oct. 2 when the opening dinner will be given. This will be "guests" night and each member will be privileged to invite one guest. Detailed program for the entire season will be given in a later issue.

It is hoped to start the men's bowling tournament early in October. Members should post applications for new members early, so that they may take advantage of the looking. New members are also requested to make application early to the Club, or to some member, so that they may participate at the very beginning of the Fall activities.

Postmaster George W. Loehman announced yesterday that there seems to be grounds for hope that something will be done shortly on the new Winchester postoffice. He has received from the Treasury Department at Washington a questionnaire asking about local building conditions such as the topography of the site, gas, lighting systems, water, etc.

Mrs. Nora O'Melia and daughter, Miss Christine O'Melia of Loring avenue attended the National Convention of the Irish National Foresters at the week at Philadelphia.

Miss Mary Gillispie, clerk at the office of the Board of Health and Building Commissioner is enjoying her annual vacation.

State Trooper John Dempsey of this town was one of the arresting officers at Ipswich last Saturday when a rum runner was captured while carrying 18 cases of contraband. The defendant was subsequently found guilty and fined $170.

Many Winchesterites were interested to learn that Miss Helen MacMillan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward MacMillan of Bernley, but formerly of this town, had passed her examinations and had been admitted to the Massachusetts Bar. Miss MacMillan received her early education in the Winchester schools and is a graduate "Cum Laude" of the Portia Law School. She formerly made her home with her parents in the Highlands district and has many friends in Winchester.

Officer Archie O'Connell of the police is enjoying his annual vacation. Mr. and Mrs. James S. Murray of the Parkway are at their summer home in Swampscott.

Funeral services for Alonzo H. Blood, brother of the late Henry Blood of Winchester, were held Thursday afternoon at the funeral parlors of the Kelley & Hawes Company, and were conducted by the Rev. S. Winchester Adrians of this town. Mr. Blood was 75 years of age and was a former principal of the Walpole High School. He died on Wednesday at the Newton Hospital after being knocked down by a truck the previous Friday while crossing Center street in Newton. He had formerly made his home in New York City. The interment was in Wildwood.

St. John's Catholic Club of Cambridge won a six-inning game from the St. Mary's C. C. of this town Wednesday evening at Rindge Field, Cambridge, the score being 3 to 2. The locals outthrew their opponents, but the wildness of "Robby" Callahan, on the hill for St. Mary's proved the deciding factor. Captain Melly was the batting fool of the evening, getting two hits in two times up for the convicted 1.000.

At 12.30 Wednesday morning Officer Mark Kelley discovered a Dodge touring car abandoned on Cambridge street near the Robinson estate. The machine was found to be registered to a Newton party and the authorities at that place were notified.

A Buick sedan owned and operated by Clarence R. Preston of Glenzary and a Ford touring car owned by Joseph Ethier of 7 Central street and operated by Frank R. Bowers of 7 Craigie circle, Cambridge, were in collision on Church street at Dix street at 9.40 Wednesday evening. The sedan was turning into Dix street when it collided with the touring car which was backing out of the same roadway. Both machines were damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tilley of Lloyd street are enjoying a two weeks' vacation in their old home city, Newport, R. I. Baseball audiences in Newport will be greater by one during Mr. Tilley's sojourn there as he is a fan of the dyed in the wool variety.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Sister Julia Meskell has returned from a visit to the principal plants of interest in Canada. Her itinerary included Montreal, Quebec and the famous shrine of St. Anne-de-Bellefleur. Miss Meskell and her brother were accompanied by a party of friends.

Another Canadian visitor during the past week was Sister Emily Scholl who, with Mr. Scholl and their two boys and a party of friends drove to St. Anne-de-Bellefleur via Littleton, N. H., and the Franconian North, returning by way of New York and Lake Champlain, Vt.

V. R. Nellie Muffett conducted a very successful whist on Thursday evening of last week, thereby adding a tidy little sum to the funds of the Charitable Committee of which P. G. R. Alice Martin is the chairman.

Many of the sisters have received from Sister Nora's booklet, who is away in Philadelphia the National Convention of the C. D. of A. Mrs. O'Melia is accompanied by her daughter, Miss Christine and following the banquet which will conclude the convention at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Mrs. O'Melia's party will spend a few days at the C. D. of A. Club house in Atlantic City, N. J.

Trustee Katharine E. O'Connor is spending a few days in Stoughton as the guest of her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James O'Connor of that town. While there, Sister O'Connor will enjoy the various parts of the program which will commemorate the 200th anniversary of Stoughton's beginning. The officiating clergyman of the celebration exercises, a native of Stoughton, is Rev. Charles J. Ring, who is also Miss O'Connor's brother-in-law, his sister, being the wife of Mr. James O'Connor, formerly of this town.

Miss Mabel M. Coty, the Court's organist, has returned from Hough's Neck where she spent an enjoyable two weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Tuile at their seaside cottage.

The Court's next affair will be a whist on Sept. 16 in aid of the Charity Committee, with Mrs. Minnie O'Connor as Chairman of the committee in charge.

With the receipt of the current issue of the C. D. of A. Herald, the official publication of the order, the members have had impressed upon them most forcibly the very prominent part which the C. D. of A. played in the recent Eucharistic Congress, it being the only women's organization so honored.

Sister Catharine Kean, the Court's Treasurer and Mr. Kean have returned from a pleasant stay in New York, having made the trip by auto.

SUNDAY SPORTS

To the Editor of the Star:
In your issue of Aug. 20, there was a letter from the Rev. Martin D. Kneeland which many of my friends in Winchester thought was directed at me and in the meantime has caused me considerable annoyance in denying the fact. It was directed at an entirely different party. The letter was a criticism of the manager of the Philadelphia American League team and as Mr. Mack, otherwise, Cornelius McGillicuddy, probably does not know the reverend gentlemen's attitude on Sunday sports and would also care very little for such an opinion. The writer will try and help Mr. Mack by answering it.

The country at the present time is sick and tired of being reformed and a general feeling of unrest prevails, as Mr. Kneeland is well aware, and it is a mighty poor time now to start any more reforming. To be sure the matter of Sunday sports will come up at the next election, and it would be a very good idea to let the voters of the State decide the question one way or the other, and in this manner settle for the time being whether we want Sunday sports in the State or not. I would not have the audacity to try and tell the voters of Winchester how they should vote on this question and in Mr. Kneeland's letter he tells us nothing new.

Mr. Kneeland should be aware that at the present time baseball, and other sports take place on Sunday; also that theatres are open for which an admission is charged. At the sporting attractions a collection is taken up on Sunday. This we all know is against the law, but as in the case of prohibition the law is not being enforced, and I do not know how you are going to enforce it. We play golf and tennis and for that matter every kind of a sport on Sunday, and in my honest opinion it would be better to do this in a legalized manner than the way it is done at present. The vote in this town will be watched carefully and those interested in Sunday sports will see if the town thinks one way and votes the other.

Finally all I can say to Mr. Kneeland is that "He sits in a sea-green gown,
With a bucket of bird paint;
And paints the things that isn't
For the food of the things that ain't."

SPEND MUCH FOR CURE, LITTLE FOR PREVENTION

An average of about $10 annually is spent by each of the 115,000,000 people of the United States, it is estimated, for drugs and medical and surgical attention, exclusive of dental work. To prevent this calamitous waste, the several communities spend from nothing to a dollar a year per capita in diffusing through public schools of the country knowledge of hygiene and observance of the laws of health. The average outlay for this preventive work is not more than 25 cents per capita.

MOTORCYCLIST STRUCK "THAT TREE"

Joseph J. Orben of 176 Clifton street, Wallingford, Conn., was taken to the Winchester Hospital at about 10:20 o'clock last Saturday morning for injuries sustained when the Harley-Davidson motorcycle on which he was riding along Church street crashed into the big elm tree opposite the real estate office of the Edward T. Harrington Company.

How the accident occurred, was not learned. Orben was on his way to Rockingham, N. H. He was following Joseph Bedford of 43 Third street, Newport, R. I., and Howard G. Chinn of 20 Army street, same city and was going easterly on Church street when the accident occurred.

Frank Nolan of Woburn went to Orben's assistance and accompanied by Bedford and Officer James E. Farrell of the police, who was informed of the accident while directing traffic in the square, took the injured man to the hospital. The latter collapsed upon his arrival and was found to have sustained an ugly gash on the inside of his upper leg which necessitated nine stitches to close.

He was attended by Dr. Arthur L. Brown and was at first thought to have been badly injured about the head and shoulders. Later reports, however, were more reassuring and no serious results are anticipated.

The motorcycle was badly damaged and was taken in a truck to police headquarters by Sergeant Rogers and officer Farrell.

WINCHESTER BOY PICKED UP IN PORTLAND

Wanderlust evidently got the better of 13 year old George W. Cromwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Cromwell of Westland avenue, last Thursday. When he did not present himself at his home around the usual time his mother became alarmed and notified the police, who immediately broadcast a description of the missing youth to neighboring stations with a request to all officers to be on the look out for the young wayfarer.

The following day local headquarters was called on the phone by the Portland Me., police who had picked up young George and were holding him until the proper authorities arrived to take the lad to his home.

The Cromwell home was notified and Mr. Cromwell left at once for Portland to escort his son back to Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Cochrane are spending their vacation in Canada.

MELROSE SCORED ONLY RUN

A double by Myles Lane, Dartmouth's all-around luminary and former Winchester diamond favorite, was converted into the big run which won a hard fought ball game for the Melrose City Club from the St. Mary's C. C. last Saturday afternoon on Manchester Field.

It was all done in the 9th. Previously the capable stickers of the Melrose team had been able to do but little with the fine pitching of Winchester's old reliable, Mark Kelley, who hurled as nice a ball game as even the most exacting might claim for.

"Mex" might have weathered the final frame and sent the battle into extra innings, had his support refrained from going suddenly Democratic when the pressure got a bit heavy. It all happened like this.

Lane, first man up in the 9th hit one of those curving rollers which strike just inside the foul line and then roll to glory in unfair territory away from the fielder. The ball landed in left and went for a fluky double, Lane being very fast for a big guy. Simpson layed one dead along the first base line, and the ball was fielded cleanly by Kelley. Turning to throw to first for the putout he found no one at the bag. O'Donnell having run in after the ball while Flaherty remained at second.

Myles of course advanced to third on the play and Simpson, taking advantage of the local's lapse, kept right on from first to second. Kelley who was all set to throw to first had to recover his balance and his throw to Flaherty was too late to get Simpson while it afforded Lane an opportunity to dash for home. A fast accurate peg would have nailed the runner at the plate, but "Flats" O'Heave was wide of the mark and what proved to be the winning tally was across in a cloud of dust.

Things looked bad and they were destined to look a while later, Simpson stole third. He was out at the plate a moment later when "Jomma" Dolan took Dolan's hand run in front of 2nd with his glove hand and pegged fast and accurately to Mely, the latter doing his part with some pretty blocking.

With Dolan on first and one away Marshall hit the only really good blow of the afternoon, a cracking double to right, sending the runner to third. Simple, a good hitter, was ready and anxious. He hit one hard at "Bowie" Ambrose who played the ball mighty well. He took the pill right on the bag and apparently had it on Dolan before he got back to the base. "His ump" however, was never there and he ruled otherwise so it was three on and one away.

At this point Kelley gave as fine an exhibition of courageous pitching as we ever saw on the playground when he put on steam to fan Harris and Wortman in a row to end the frame.

Winchester had a couple of chances to score, but found Harris too good for the brand of hitting its players have been showing lately. In the 4th an error by Dallahan and a single by McGrath gave the locals a man on second with two away, but "Jomma" Dolan's best was a hoist to Dallahan.

In the 8th with one out "Tom" Dolan got a life on Flaherty's single to left. Kelley hit a looping fly into short left field which Lane reached but couldn't hold. Dolan, who should have been half way between, had held his base and was forced at third, Lane to Delano. With first and second occupied "Spike" O'Donnell tried hard for a hit. He belted one squarely on the nose to right center, but a great running catch by Simpson upset the local applause.

The game was a fine pitcher's battle between Kelley and Harris and to our mind the former had the better of the argument. "Mex" held the strong visiting batters to 5 hits while fanning 11 and passing one. Harris was found for 5 hits by St. Mary's while fanning 7 and hitting one batter. The locals made but one error to Melrose's three but the latter team was the better in the pinches.

TURNER AND NAZRO WON FOUR-BALL

The 72 turned in by H. B. Turner and P. Nazro was good enough to win the four-ball match play, one-half handicap at the Winchester Country Club last Saturday afternoon. E. B. Bulger and E. R. Rooney tied at 73 with S. T. Hicks and H. B. Turner for second place.

IS THE NAME TO BLAME?

We have heard that "a good name is above riches." How many believe, as the writer does, that the "Primaries" need a better name, both literally and spiritually?

Common usage has familiarized us with it, but it fails to give any impression as to the purpose of the election it bespeaks.

The highest value of a name should be its explanatory service, why, therefore, not call these Primary Elections according to their function, viz, "Elections to choose candidates?"

And who, this Sept. 16th, are going to choose the candidates, Are you and I, or are we going to "let George do it?"

If, as has been said, "the sins of commission are greater than those of omission," then we, largely speaking, by not taking a voting interest must not blame "George" for having taken an over-zealous one in those neglected, but important, "Primaries."

The following is the best "boiled down" exposition I've seen of the "Primary" situation:

"Is it true that the primary system itself is responsible for the spending of huge sums of money by candidates for election, either to the Senate or elsewhere? The favorite explanation of those who blame the primaries for present conditions, which they offer as an excuse for the use of vast sums, is that such expenditures are necessary in order 'to get out the vote.' Leaving aside the questions whether the sums spent in Pennsylvania and Illinois were used legitimately or honestly simply to 'get out the vote,' and whether the expenditures actually did 'get out the vote,' the partisan excuse made, touches the heart of the whole matter for the public to consider."

"Getting out the vote" covers the whole problem of nominations for office in a democracy. If the vote does not 'come out' in order to express the will of the people as to the character and abilities of those whom they wish to elect to do their public business, it really makes no difference what system of nominating machinery is used—convention or primary. If a large proportion of the voters do not use whatever nominating machinery is in vogue, that machinery will inevitably fall into the hands of self-seeking leaders who will use the system for their own ends through a trained organization of followers and with a minimum of consideration for honest and efficient performance of public service."

If not already registered, the town clerk's office will be open Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 between 2 to 5 and 7:30 to 9 p. m.

The writer is asking everyone in town to take a voting interest in the Primaries this year for the above reasons, and because she believes "if you want a thing done, ask a busy man to do it." That's Winchester.

Give us bits of ivory, give us harps of jade,

To make a musical music for so beautiful a departing maid!

Welcome Home!

Gas Service is Waiting for You

It's good to go away, but it's better to get home. Bark to comfortable beds, a good hot "soak" in a real bath tub, a meal that's thoroughly satisfying. How many everyday comforts-of-home we miss for the first time when we're off in the woods somewhere, or at the average summer cottage. Gas service, for instance. How good it is to know that gas is waiting at home, ready to "fire up" the water heater, to cook a quick meal, to take the damp chill off the living room if it turns cool tonight.

Gas service, as per custom, will take no vacation this summer. It's always on duty in your home—no matter how long you stay away or how unexpectedly you return.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

If there is anything in the theory of the survival of the fittest, certainly there are some people who have been overlooked.

If you want to be real happy do a kindly deed for some one who needs it.

Any man or woman who cannot shut out happiness from the hilltops, can at least say amen in the valley.

Learn to divide your day in proper proportions, sleep, work, rest, and enough happiness to make the day harmonious.

Men and women should avoid trying to keep up a youthful pace as their age matures, you can't go far, so don't try it.

We were glad to learn this week that our endorsement of the recent fireworks display on Manchester Field met with enthusiastic approval in at least one instance. The STAR is informed that Winchester's oldest citizen, Miss Annie Dault, now in her 102nd year, viewed proceedings from her home on Mystic avenue and greatly enjoyed the display. She, like ourselves, thought the fireworks this year were the best ever and is looking forward to the next "Indian Day." Our compliments, Miss Dault, and may we all retain, as you have, the capacity to enjoy the good things of life as the years fly by.

The STAR notes that other communities as well as Winchester have their troubles in selecting sites for the new school buildings which are being erected. In Dunsters the location of a new $275,000 school is to be determined by ballot at a town meeting to be held next month. Proposals for the lot to be selected, signed by not less than 10 citizens, are to be in the hands of the town clerk eight days prior to the meeting and that one receiving the greatest number of votes is to be taken by eminent domain at a price not to exceed figure. In passing many of Winchester's buildings would have been employed here. Could we all have been satisfied under such circumstances?

ANOTHER PHASE OF OUR BUILDING LAWS

An interesting point in our much discussed and criticised building laws has arisen in connection with the recent fire in the building on Main street occupied by the Fells Market. This building, owned by Sarah S. Lieberman, was badly damaged by fire a few weeks ago. In making repairs the owner applied for a permit to do ten thousand dollars' worth of work, this figure later being reported as reduced to eight thousand.

Our building laws provide in substance that if repairs or alterations exceed fifty per cent of the assessed value of a building the structure shall be made to comply with the laws as applying to new buildings. In other words, the building shall be torn down. As the Lieberman building, an old-time dwelling built into an apartment house and stores, is as-essed at $7000, the owner met with a snag in attempting to carry out her repairs.

To further complicate matters, it is reported that the owner carried insurance on the structure to the amount of $35,000. This in itself is not unusual, but if the report is correct in the rumor that a "demolition" clause was inserted in the insurance policy, it places the incident in an interesting light, for under such clause, if the building is torn down, the owner calls for the full value of his policy.

What the outcome of the affair will be is in question. It is understood that the insurance companies interested in the matter have taken it before the Board of Appeals, while the owner is sitting tight. Meanwhile other property owners about town are commencing to read over this fifty per cent clause of our building laws and considering the advisability of adding demolition clauses to their insurance policies.

It would seem furthermore, that there is room for some revision in property valuation by our assessors. We have often heard that one may insure property for as much as he pleases, but it must be admitted there is a wide difference between an assessed valuation of $7000 and an insured value of $35,000—if such was the policy. There is little incentive in this town to erect substantial buildings in our business center, and it has long been said that if any profit is to be derived from business property it can only be made by nursing along the old wooden structures which long ago should have been torn down. Our trouble is not so much with high valuations, which in many cases appear more than ample to many of us, as it is with the general equality of the fixed value.

FAHEY BOYS DID WELL IN RECENT GOLF TOURNEY

Thomas F. Fahey, Jr., and Phillip Fahey, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Fahey of Hutchinson road, are rapidly establishing for themselves an enviable reputation among the youthful golfers of the district.

Thomas, Jr. is especially to be congratulated upon the fine showing which he made in the recent Cadillac Tournament held under the auspices of the Albemarle Golf Club when he finished in the runner-up position. His card of 73 was the best of the tourney and is only two strokes over the coveted par for the course. The youngster showed some nice golf to accomplish the feat yet it was evident that his playing was no flash in the pan. He averages 85 for the difficult Winchester course and has been around in as low as 83.

Young Fahey got away to a good start, having been playing the royal Scottish game since his 6th year under the tutelage of his father who is greenskeeper at the Winchester Country Club. He is capable of driving better than 200 yards consistently. His brother Phillip who is only 11 and who acted as Tom's caddy at Albemarle is also showing much promise as a future golfer to be reckoned with while sister Mary, aged 9, is also making a good beginning on the greens and fairways. Both boys are enthusiastic about her future.

Another Winchester caddy, Vernon Anderson, also played in the Albemarle tourney and finished well up among the low score competitors.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk as follows:

Edward Dillon Fitzgerald of 20 Winchester place and Mary Bridget Fitzgerald of 303 Western avenue, Allston.

Peter Paul Albani of Bedford and Margaret Christina O'Mello of 18 Loring avenue.

The Board of Selectmen has appointed Raymond F. Fenton of Swanton street to fill the vacancy among the Democratic election officials occasioned by the inability of Merryman S. Price of Washington street to serve.

MR. PHILLIP SHEFFIELD
MR. PHILLIP SHEFFIELD, DIRECTOR AT SOMERVILLE THEATRE THIS SEASON

Mr. Sheffield who is well known to many Medford people will assume charge of Victor's Somerville Players when the Somerville Theatre opens Monday, Sept. 13, for the regular stock season.

Mr. Sheffield needs no introduction as an actor of superior histrionic ability, having appeared at the St. James Theatre, Boston, when that theatre was a regular stock house, and also at the Somerville Theatre where he was very popular in juvenile roles for several seasons.

Under his personal direction will appear some of the very best known stock artists, including Marion White, leading lady who on the legitimate stage supported the following stars: Raymond Hitchcock, Florence Rittenhouse, June Walker, Ernest Glendinning, and others. Herbert Ashton, Jr., leading man who comes to Somerville after two successful seasons in Cleveland, Ohio, and who is considered as good if not the best leading man in stock today.

Miss Nancy Baker will be the ingenue. She is a graduate of the Chicago Conservatory of Music and is a protégé of Julia Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck Co.

Edwin H. Kasper, "Juvenile," is at present in the cast of "The Blonde Sinner" playing a Broadway engagement and will open the regular season with the Somerville Players. Jack Westerman who played comedy roles and character leads at the Mallen Auditorium for two seasons will be a very valuable addition to the company. The theatre has been renovated throughout and presents a very attractive appearance.

Matinees will be on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday. The subscription list is now open and orders are coming in increasing volume daily.

What Might Have Been

"Now I suppose," remarked Mrs. Snuggs, "that the surgeons of the army are attached to the medical corps?"

"Your supposition does you great credit," replied Mr. Snuggs, sarcastically. "It's a wonder you don't imagine the doctors joined the army for the purpose of building bridges or going up in a balloon. Where should army surgeons be except in the medical corps?"

"Well, I thought that they might possibly belong to the liners."

Where to Buy Used Cars

Many an honest and really able dealer is the victim of the new car he sells.

If he happens to be handling a car that does not enjoy a really good reputation, he is under the necessity of forcing sales of his new car by making bad trades—by making too high allowances on used cars.

Then in order to stay in business, he must try to pass those bad trades on.

The values of used cars are fairly well established and known to all dealers. Any premium over and above that value is, in short, only a price cut on the new car. It doesn't mean that the dealer is more liberal or a better buyer. It simply means that the published price of his new car is not the real price.

The Cadillac dealer is in a position to give you sound, fair values in used cars all the year round. The extraordinary sales success of the new, 90-degree, eight cylinder Cadillac brings him the very choicest used cars on the market, and the widest assortment.

Because of the long established Cadillac policy of selling all Cadillacs at the lowest figure consistent with good business, he is not tempted to make price cuts even under the guise of trading allowances.

He pays every dollar the used car is worth—and he sells it at a fair price. The Cadillac dealer's used car customers are among his best prospects for used or new Cadillacs—and each used car customer is treated as a customer and not merely as a one-time trader.

When you want a used car, go to the Cadillac dealer. Let him show you what he offers.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

THE FLAME THAT NEVER DIES

For over a hundred years the same fire has given heat for the manufacture of gas in New York City. From a coal fire started in 1823 the furnaces of all the huge gas plants of that city have been started.

The old Greek carried fire from the home land to their colonies as a symbol of the spirit of Greece—and thus it is in New York—the spirit of the industry keeps the century-old fire continuously burning.

Earthquakes, fires, floods and cyclones have failed to discontinue gas service in many cities. Even the great Chicago fire of '71 did not interrupt gas service. Besides the convenience of continuous gas service in the home, it is still more essential in industry where a minute's failure on the part of the fuel means great financial loss. This is one of the reasons why manufacturers are turning to gas as the ideal factory fuel.

Can't Hurry Slow Thinker

Bright people must learn to be tolerant and patient with slower people, says the American Magazine. Failure to recognize this often gets a fireman into trouble with his men. Naturally, the fireman is likely to be brighter than those under him. And if he can't be tolerant with their slowness he is in for trouble. Trying to hurry naturally show people is a foolish process. It hurts and irritates.

The duller of man is mentally, the less capacity he has to hurry. He can't hurry. You will never make a fireman or executive unless you are able to learn when your men are going at their best natural speed. If you push them beyond their limit—not your limit, but theirs—there is going to be a break.

Things of the Past

Whatever became of the village genius who invented a "pillow-shin boiler" and got a write-up in the county-seat paper? Also, what's become of the grass widow who used to make the wax flowers?—Buffalo Evening Times.

Coming to Earth

It is acknowledged by aviators that the most difficult part of a trip begins when one is nearing one's destination.

In landing a machine certain rules have to be observed. The pilot must first circle once round the aerodrome; then he must shoot off a green light which, in effect, asks, "Is it safe to me to land?" If a similar green light is sent up from the aerodrome, he may land; if, however, a red one is shown, it means that there are other machines in the ground, or for some other reason it is not safe to come down. He must then circle round until a green signal is given him.

On the grounds of the Vreaydon (Eng.) air port there are gas flares that mark the boundaries of the landing spaces. These flares shine intermittently and one fuel supply keeps them burning day and night for six months. In addition the ground is swept at night by several powerful searchlights.

And Now the BOSS OF THE ROAD

IT IS most fitting in this, Packard's second quarter century of fine motor car building, that Packard announce—

The Greatest Car Ever Built.

You may expect the improved Packard Eight to out-perform any stock car in the world—in everything from agility to top speed on the open road. This is the conservative statement of a conservative company.

Today's Packard Eight is the supreme combination of beauty, of brawn, and of fleetness.

It is the fulfillment of an unchanging and uninterrupted ambition—a generation-old ideal—to be the first to build a motor car balanced in every attribute.

In the improved Packard Eight no one thing has been developed at the expense of any other.

Everything from rough-road comfort to closed-car miles in less than 45 seconds is in perfect accord.

And in grace, the eleven-time winner of International Car Beauty Contests, now presents even more alluring lines.

The standard models are slender and symmetrical, divan-like in luxurious comfort, and may be had in a multitude of color and upholstery selections.

For those who want the utmost in individuality, a distinguished line of custom bodies is available—each the genuine creation of a famous builder.

And now, another conservative statement—no matter what you have hoped for in a motor car, your hopes, individually and collectively, will be found surpassed in today's Packard Eight—

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

During several months of each year it is not an unusual happening for a butterfly or a bee to stray into some domicile here in Winchester and walk dispassionately over a glass pane, seeking egress. Insect intelligence never seems to understand the impossible. The captive will leave the window and fly about the room, but it will return to the barrier, and move up and down as if vainly hoping for some inlet. Lately the Spectator saw something like yet unlike this. A large moth failed to see why it could not get indoors and repeatedly drove against the glass as if determined to force its way. Each aggressive movement on the part of the moth was followed by the effort of a feline to get outside and seize the winged creature. The transparent substance bothered the quadruped as much as it did the insect. Perhaps most Winchesterites have seen young children puzzled by mirrors.

While we have been talking about noise the world has been getting noisier. There is no question about that. Even Winchester's oldest inhabitant will tell you that down to within a decade or two Winchester was a very quiet community in a really quiet world. Today almost everything that man makes is at the same time a noise producer. Even the clock and watch tick, while some are made to scream; steam has brought noise almost to perfection; electricity has set machines humming and grinding through our streets, and the other noise for communities not larger than Winchester has been hellish. And, the Spectator would emphasize, noise is waste. It is the perpetual landmark of the limitations and failure of invention. When we get a machine that will run, we either lack the time or the knowledge to go on and make it run in silence. If our solar system made its racket at all in proportion to the racket of our invented mechanisms there would be no such thing as living in it.

A good Winchester woman is disposed to think favorably of the Boy Scouts. She was endeavoring to find the house of an acquaintance who lived where houses do not rub each other's elbows. Not succeeding, she asked a boy who replied "I don't know, but I'll find the house for you." Other boys passed, and he called, "Say, fellows, do you know where Mrs. So and So lives?" Broadcasting answers, and he soon found the address. The sucker went to the house, but no one was at home. As she returned she met the boy who politely asked, "Was your friend at home?" This was given to the Spectator as a typical instance of the courtesy taught to Boy Scouts, and may as well be mentioned.

Dr. Ben L. Reitman, who is head of Chicago's Hobo College, mentions the passing of the "bum." In the public squares, parks and lounging places where the forlorn outcasts of Society once known as "bums" did congregate, Reitman says they are all gone and he finds in their place a much-improved clan of both men and women. Dr. Reitman springs something entirely new in the shape of menaces. He says he has discovered that bottle-fed children are more apt to become criminals than are children nursed by their mothers, and that ought to worry a lot of mothers here in Winchester and elsewhere for some time to come. Reitman calls himself not professor or doctor but a "criminal ecologist" and "outcast behaviorist"; not that he himself is the criminal, and outcast referred to, but that his collegiate labors fall among the criminal and outcast. All the same, fewer hobs are seen in Winchester today than in the days of old, and it has been a long, long time since an honest-to-goodness "bum" "sacileg" the streets of our community.

ARE YOU HELPING?

(Written for The Winchester Star)

What are you doing for Winchester today, for all it is doing for you? With its life and its chance and its toil and its play. And its music and laughter and dew? What are you doing to help Winchester along for the help it is giving you right now? To the children that list to its prayer and its song. And are touched by a holler now? What are you doing for a Winchester that can smile. And help you to smile on your way. For the sake of its children each day?

How many grateful tributes start that way! And then go on to tell of unvarying comfort—of freedom from worry about heating—of cleanliness and quiet—of improved health—of new-found economies—of satisfaction that has flamed into enthusiasm!

In hundreds of such tributes from users is written Kleen-Heet's remarkable record of unflinching performance—in homes of every size—through more than six years.

And thus it is that the engineering superiority of the Kleen-Heet oil burner—so clear to the technically trained eye—has come to be accepted everywhere. And that Kleen-Heet is so outstandingly the choice of the well informed!

To All Ford Owners

Rumors have been spread in print and orally to the effect that the Ford Motor Company contemplates manufacturing a small six, a light eight and a still lighter four and we are of the opinion that despite the denials of this Company through their readers and through their retail salesmen's meetings as well as through the denials which have appeared in newspapers, there still seems to be an uncertainty in the subject.

In an attempt to once and for all stop these rumors and finally settle down to the business of merchandising the most economical and most dependable transportation in the world, please be advised that there is no new Ford model coming along nor is there a new Ford car to be introduced. These are facts and the sooner we have them firmly established in our minds the sooner will your business and our business increase.

Ford products have never been so high in quality nor so low in price. Every transportation need—commercial and personal—is met at low cost of operation which is incomparable. Therefore, please banish from your minds all thought of new models and let's take advantage of our present opportunities.

The preacher will be Rev. Albert W. Jefferson D. D. formerly pastor of the Calvary Church of Lawrence. Dr. Jefferson will also be the preacher at the Baptist Church the following Sunday.

Rev. W. W. Bustard D. D. will preach at the Baptist Church again on Sept. 19.

BASEBALL SATURDAY AND LABOR DAY

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 on Manchester Field St. Mary's C. C. baseball team will play the first game of a district "World Series" with the Riley Shop team, recently crowned champions of the Woburn Sandlot League. The second game will be played at 3:15 on the afternoon of the holiday at Library Park, Woburn, and the third on the Saturday following also at Woburn.

No local baseball season seems complete without its Woburn series and this year's get-together should prove attractive, if St. Mary's puts its best possible team on the field. It can hardly hope to cope with the hustling "Rileys" with any makeshift lineup of near players.

On paper it would seem the locals are rather the under dogs since the Rileys took the championship from the Magdalen who held a decision over St. Mary's. It should be remembered, however, that this win was accomplished behind the sterling pitching of the veteran "Kiko" Wadler who was ineligible to represent the Highland team in the sandlot league. There was no pitcher in the league on par with the chunky hurler when right, and "Kiko" was very right against St. Mary's.

The locals can hardly hope to win against the Woburn club without a capable first sacker and some batting strength in the outfield. St. Mary's will have latter pitching than the Rileys and possibly this will offset the more potent thump of the sandlot champs. If the locals will give "Mex" a couple of runs to work on, he'll pull them through if it's humanly possible.

And speaking of Kelley, report has it that there is to be a day in his honor on Manchester Field in the near future. The veteran right hander has done a lot for Winchester baseball this summer and is deserving of recognition. A more complete account of the plans will be available next week.

MRS. ALFRED J. EDWARDS

Mrs. Rhoda (Nott) Edwards, wife of Mr. Alfred J. Edwards, died at her home at South Acton yesterday, aged 77 years. Mrs. Edwards was a native of England, and up to eight or ten years ago, when she moved to South Acton, made her home in Winchester, living here for over 20 years on the west side hill off Cambridge street. She was widely known among the older residents of the town.

She was a member of the Church of the Epiphany and of the Order of Eastern Star, being affiliated with the Stoneham Lodge and later with the lodge at Maynard. She was also a member of the Women's Auxiliary of South Acton.

Besides her husband she leaves one son, Mr. William H. Edwards of this town, together with four grandchildren and one great grandchild. She had one other son, Sidney J. Edwards, who was formerly widely known here. He was killed in action during the World War, being a member of the Canadian Black Watch regiment.

The funeral services are to be held this Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, and are to be held at the residence, on School street, South Acton. The burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery, Acton.

STRUCK CHILD ON WASHINGTON STREET

Clifford Graves, 10, a Maine boy who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Casler on Fairmount street, while crossing Washington street at Swanton street at 5 p. m. Wednesday was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Kirby of 35 Harvard street.

According to Kirby who reported the affair at police headquarters he was driving the machine in question, a Ford sedan, north along Washington street and was about to pass a large truck which was approaching him when the Graves boy stepped from behind the vehicle directly into his path.

The little boy was struck a glancing blow and knocked down. He was taken to the hospital, where he was found to have sustained a cut on the head and a general shaking up. No serious results are anticipated.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE OPENING SEPT. 13

The work of renovating the Somerville Theatre, is progressing rapidly now, extra workmen were added to the regular forces this week so that everything would be in readiness for the opening night, which is Monday, Sept. 13.

Matinees will be on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday as in seasons past. The winning man this season is Herbert Ashton, Jr., who comes here directly from the Princess Theatre, Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Ashton has a remarkable resemblance to Eugene O'Brien, the famous movie star. He was the original "Little Willie" in "Salome Jane." Marion White who will play opposite Mr. Ashton is a striking blonde beautifully proportioned and possesses a magnificent wardrobe. The contrast physically, between Mr. Ashton and Miss White will be decidedly marked as Mr. Ashton is of the Valentino type.

Few actors can boast of so many productions and road shows as William Melville, Mr. Melville claims Boston as his birthplace.

The balance of the cast is adequate and as Philip Sheffield is to be the director, this season of "Viano's Somerville Players" patrons are assured that plays will be skillfully produced and intelligently interpreted.

The box office will open Labor Day at 9:30 a. m. and will close daily at 9 p. m. Subscriptions are literally pouring in and Miss Conte who has been connected with the Somerville Theatre for several seasons will be at the window to greet her old friends and incidentally to make new ones.

Pupils will be admitted to the first grade who are 6 years of age on Sept. 1, or who will become 6 not later than Jan. 1, 1927. Parents who believe their children may have advanced more rapidly mentally than their age would indicate and whose children have not reached the required age as specified above, may make appointments at the office of the Superintendent of Schools for such purpose will be held at the office of the Superintendent of Schools Thursday, Sept. 2 and Friday, Sept. 3, and on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

All children must be vaccinated and bring to their respective schools a vaccination certificate. If in any case a child is not a fit subject for vaccination, he must present a certificate from his physician so stating the fact. All pupils who attended school this past year, but who are not vaccinated because they were not fit subjects must be vaccinated before being admitted to school in September, or else present another certificate stating that they are not fit subjects for vaccination.

Parents are urged to be prompt in sending their children to school on the opening day in September so that pupils will not lose the early beginning work.

Practically every room in the club has been repainted and the floors refinished. The indoor golf outfit installed last spring and which proved very popular with the members, has been set up again and will undoubtedly prove a big attraction.

The club house will be open for the coming season this Saturday night, although no special attraction has been planned. The list of events on the fall program includes in addition to the opening of the pool, billiard and bowling tournaments, a dinner for the members and an early smoke talk.

CARS CRASHED ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Only one injury was reported as the result of a collision in which two cars were badly smashed up last Sunday at 11:45 a. m. on Cambridge street near the Winchester Boat Club.

Just how the accident occurred is not known. The cars involved were a Nash sedan owned and operated by Francis G. Prescott of 1051 Monmouth Building, San Francisco, Cal., now stopping in Boston, and a Cleveland sedan owned by Joseph J. Hurley of 42 Randall street, Boston, and driven by John J. Hurley of the same address. The Nash was going south on Cambridge street while the Cleveland was headed in an opposite direction.

It is thought that the crash may have been caused by one of the machines turning out to avoid a passing street car. Both were badly wrecked and had to be towed to the Central Garage.

In the Cleveland with Hurley were Mrs. A. Hurley and Miss Eva Hurley. The former was slightly injured in the crash and was taken to the Winchester Boat Club and attended by Dr. M. J. Quinn. With Prescott, in the Nash, were Mrs. Prescott and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Prescott, all of whom are stopping for the present in Boston on Beacon street.

TRUCK OVERTURNED BY BURSTING TIRE

Thomas Devro of 90 Swanton street and Fred Sadich of 9 Harvard street were taken for treatment to the Winchester Hospital last Saturday shortly after noon time as the result of an automobile accident in which they figured on Washington street just beyond the junction of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets.

Devro and Smith were riding with the former's daughter in a Ford truck owned by Anthony Devro of 23 Irving street and operated by Antonio Abate of 41 Irving street, the latter driving under Smith's license.

The machine was headed south on Washington street and had passed the junction of Mt. Vernon street when the bursting of a tire caused it to tip over and throw its occupants to the ground.

Devro was hurled against a granite curb and the right side of his face was badly bruised. He was taken by officer James Farrell of the police in a passing machine to the Winchester Hospital where he was attended by Dr. Shochan of Stoughton. Smith was found to have injured his knee and was taken to the hospital in the ambulance by officer Edward O'Connell. He was treated by Dr. M. J. Quinn. ## FORD KNOCKED DOWN LAMP POST IN SQUARE

Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock Anthony Bellanco of 561 Broadway, Somerville, while driving his Ford touring car southerly on Main street and when about to turn into Church street tried to go overland across the corner of the sidewalk at Knight's Pharmacy instead of making the turn in the usual way.

He might have accomplished his purpose, since the Ford is a hardy car and not one easily balked in any attempt only slightly out of the ordinary. But the obstacles stacked in the way of Bellanco's flivver were too great for one lone hand to beat. The granite curbsides it might have overcome but when an electric light pole happened to be coupled in the handicap was too heavy even for a champion.

The flivver struck the pole squarely, splintering it at the base and reducing it to a horizontal position, but the best the motor could get in the mixup was a lucky draw. It had its headlights and radiator smashed and was otherwise battered about the front end. It was towed to the Central Garage.

Neither Bellanco nor a young man who accompanied him, one Ernest Andy of 58 Plunkney street, Somerville, was injured. The former claimed the accident was caused by the buckling of the Ford's front wheels.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The more a man finds fault, the more proof that he hasn't done anything worthwhile himself.

Truth doesn't need curse words to make it stick. A liar gets mad and swears but he is only a bluff.

There are pleasures, occupations and duties for every day of our lives. Do today what is of today, you may be too busy tomorrow to attend to it.

If you have ever heard any of these philosophies before forgive us and remember that old "Bill" Shakespeare repeated frequently.

An old favorite saying is "don't do nothin' too much."

The Star has been informed that work is to be begun in the more or less near future upon the project which is to provide sewerage facilities to care for the waste which Woburn industrial plants, particularly tanneries in the south-easterly part of the city, have been dumping for some years into Winchester's river and lakes. Already $110,000 has been voted by the city to begin upon what is expected to be a $300,000 proposition and there is every reason to believe that the additional funds will be available as needed. Woburn has apparently waked up in real earnest to its obligation of ridding the district of a long endured nuisance.

While the thought is entirely a pleasant one that conditions which have caused our waterways to become offensive to the eye and nostril, if not actually unhealthy, are at least on the way to being cleared up; there is another side to the matter which it seems should engage our attention at this time.

If Woburn is to construct a sewer to care for the waste from its industrial plants and other sources, what is to be the ultimate disposal of this sewage? Is it to be added to that which already flows through Winchester to the metropolitan sewers extending southerly from the Mystic Dam? This same Metropolitan sewer proved entirely inadequate last winter to take care of the volume of sewage brought to it under abnormal weather conditions, and if still another system has to be taken care of with no increase in its capacity, what is the answer to be?

Those of us who experienced conditions prevailing in the river during two weeks preceding last Christmas when a lack of suitable outlet south of the square caused sewage to back up into local cellars to the extent of seven or eight inches dislike to wonder. The stench of the late unpleasantness remains too fresh in our memories. And yet the question seems a particularly pertinent one.

Our Winchester authorities should take every precaution to prevent any condition of things tending to increase the likelihood of a recurrence of last winter's disaster. Aside from the unpleasantness of the situation the property damage was considerable.

It looks greatly as though the new Woburn sewer might not be so entirely a happy thought as we at first supposed. We personally, having experienced both evils, would prefer the sewage in the river and lake rather than in our cellar.

PRISON BARS FOR CHILDREN

Parents who constantly nag at their children with orders such as "Don't" and "Stop" are putting the children behind bars. No good and a great deal of harm are caused by giving negative orders. The child becomes irritated and cross. He is denied the right to do some specific thing, and there is no activity suggested instead. The wise parent is constructive. He gives the child some helpful job or errand to do, thus diverting the child from the thing he shouldn't be doing. By building up the positive side of the child's nature, the negative side dies a natural death. Children do not do naughty things for pure cussiness, but they are easily excited, and a volley of negative orders is sufficient to make them willful and disobedient. Far better to give the child a new job so that he will automatically forget the wrong.

THE SECRET OF FRIENDSHIP

(Written for "The Winchester Star")

If you want the best of friends, remember that friendship is a gift. Those who are worthy of respect. And all the questionable cases reject. The way to walk life's track is straight ahead, and do not turn back. Then, as you see growing old, folks will think you're good as gold. And their best respect you'll hold. Eugene Berlram Willard

Food Transport Costly

Many kinds of food are shipped from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast in specially made express cars, which are attached to passenger trains and run on fast-time schedules. The building of one of the "passenger express refrigerator" cars is officially stated to be not far from $1,500. The California shipper who fits one of these cars with butter and ships it to New York or Philadelphia does so at an express charge of about $1,000. The cost of shipping a car of this type filled with fruits and vegetables from the Pacific to the Atlantic usually runs from $800 to $900.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

To talk with persons who have known widely different sea coasts is always of interest. The Spectator is thinking at this moment of two Cornishmen. All their recollections of the ocean were mingled with awe because vessels had been driven up against the rocks. At various points along our coast the beach is wide, a long space intervenes 'twixt the promenade and the ocean. Under such circumstances though the sound of the waves be incessant, the sea is a neighbor next door. But one Dane, here in Winchester, told the Spectator that he could for years hardly think of existence without the salt water. It ran close up to the door. While it might sometimes be stormy and dangerous the people hardly seemed to think of that, it was as much a portion of their lives as the street that ran in front of a house or the field in which the crops were raised.

There is little reason to divide the lovers of the throng from the lovers of solitude. If a thousand persons are on the water front there will be the interest that a gathering always brings. If the observer is alone he will be able to look about him with less distraction. One may have solitary and social moods.

Here are two bits of seashore experience, both from Winchesterites of thorough sincerity. A Winchesterite on the verge of nervous prostration told the Spectator that nothing so benefited him as to go to the shore and lie for hours on the sand, barely conscious, trying as if he exerted his mind at all, not to think, simply to rest. An older Winchesterite, far from robust, told that a trip to the shore was a blessing to him because he rose at 2 a. m. to go fishing. The dark of the morning, the winds and the sense of being at the sea did for him what no medicine could have done. It would not have been possible to coax him to lie for hours on the sand, nor would he who loved the sand have started out for a pleasure trip at 2 o'clock in the morning. Who can say that one was wiser than the other?

On a certain street in Winchester stood a baby carriage and the mite of humanity inside seemed well pleased with the world and all its inhabitants. But ought a baby be left without guardianship? Coaches may overturn. Kidnappers may invade Winchester, the practical joker may wish to torment parents, there may be an enemy capable of injuring or killing a little one. What possibilities lie in the word "Kidnapper." Sometimes the person who steals a baby desires a ransom, but sometimes the act is committed by a parent or relative who is devotedly attached to the child. The Spectator

A GIFT PRIZED MORE THAN TURQUOISE BY THE ZUNI

Fulfilling a promise of a year's standing, Dr. Neil M. Judd, leader of the National Geographic Society expeditions to Pueblo Bonito, New Mexico, recently presented to members of the Zuni tribe a gift for which they would gladly have paid in turquoise. It was a live, brilliant Mexican macaw, a bird full of meaning to certain of the Indians; yet only a few members of the tribe had ever before seen one of these brightly feathered parrots.

Each of the dozen or more clans (individuals related through the maternal line) at Zuni has its own plan totem: the Bear, Badger, Coyote, Eagle, Snake, Corn and Mustard. Dr. Judd writes in a report to the National Geographic Society, "Of all these clans none has a larger or more vigorous membership than the Macaw people. The Macaw clan has furnished a majority of the leading men at Zuni for several generations past. But these leaders knew the macaw, their clan totem, only through verbal description, handed down from one generation to another. Two years ago a small delegation went to San Domingo, a Tewa pueblo near Albuquerque, there to trade turquoise ornaments for macaw feathers. There are two captive macaws at San Domingo, obtained through exchange with Mexicans.

Recognize Pictures of Traditional Totem

During past years at Pueblo Bonito several of my Zuni excavation crew have been members of the Macaw clan. Pictures in our camp library verified descriptions of the macaw, to give the Zuni name of the macaw. These men were highly pleased last fall when I told them I should try to obtain for them a live bird, as a gift to the entire Macaw clan.

But this spring when I arrived at Zuni I found that carefully laid plans were intended to divert my purpose and bring something of an individual reward. Two of the boys had made it known that the bird was to be a present to each individually, and I suppose each of the pair had already taken orders for macaw feathers, indispensable articles of adornment in certain ceremonies and in the preparation of prayer plumes. But I insisted the macaw was a gift to the entire clan and not a personal reward to a single friend. It was my expressed opinion that the Sun Priest, as highest official of the clan, should receive the bird and act as its custodian. And right there I discovered some surprising information about the macaw and its habits.

Zuni Nature Fakers

Taking advantage of my limited Zuni vocabulary and still hoping to obtain the bird for himself one of the two boys, in my presence, told the Sun Priest that in their native habitat the macaws gather in flocks of from 300 to 400 and, as they see a man passing through the forest, swoop down to attack him. The macaw was credited with being especially fond of human flesh and extremely dangerous in captivity. Previously, the Sun Priest had learned from the second hopeful lad that the macaw was apt to die if he did not get the kind of food to which he had grown accustomed. But after an hour's discussion the fears of the Priest were eliminated and he consented to care for the macaw in behalf of his people.

ple. Word came to camp last week-end that the Sun Priest and the macaw had established friendly relations and that both were quite content.

No one knows how long the Macaw people have been represented in Zuni. Tradition says they came up out of the fourth world with other clans in that dim distant past when all the races of mankind, the birds, animals and trees spoke a common language. Macaw clans are to be found in some of the other Pueblo villages of New Mexico and Arizona. But in no instance, so far as I am aware, can one learn definitely how long these clans have possessed the macaw as a totem or how they first became acquainted with the bird.

During the course of the National Geographic Society's explorations in Pueblo Bonito, we have found over 30 skeletons of the great macaw. And Pueblo Bonito, from archaeological evidence was abandoned about 1600 years ago. It appears then that the inhabitants of this great prehistoric village must have obtained live macaws through barter with the tribes of central Mexico. The birds were kept here in captivity for we have found the perches on which they had been tethered and we have found the corn, pinyon nuts and squash seeds on which they were fed. The Macaw clan doubtless wielded a considerable influence at Pueblo Bonito.

One may imagine simulated Mexican Indians carrying on their backs cages containing live macaws, captured in tropical forests, trudging across the hot sands of the Southwest in ancient times, bound for the famous, terraced village of the Bonitos. Mules, horses and other beasts of burden were unknown in the Americas before the arrival of the Spaniards early in the 16th century. Yet Fray Marco de Niza, as he journeyed northward out of Mexico in 1539 to the discovery of the Seven Cities of Cibola, notes in his journal that he passed Mexican Indians returning with turquoise they had obtained in exchange for parrot feathers.

Alphabetic Pill Cure

A city of London druggist has simplified illness enormously. He provides an emergency compact medicine case in which each bottle of pills is distinguished by a letter of the alphabet.

All that the purchaser has to do—whether he travels or merely steps at home to the pill—is to diagnose his symptoms, and a finger rapidly up and down the list of 51 ailments supplied until he finds his own, and cast his glazed eye anxiously to the right.

There he will discover the letter of the alphabet which is marked on the bottle that contains the pill that will make him again the man he was—respected by his family and loved by his friends. If, for example, he is racked by hay fever he will take "one B every hour; sick S every hour."

A Strohliaker touring car operated by Francis Delaney of 11 Forest circle while going westerly on the Parkway Tuesday evening was in collision with a Ford truck operated by Tony Catino of Lexington street, Burlington, who was headed east. The accident occurred near the Bacon street bridge, and both cars were damaged. No one was injured.

The Metropolitan District police notified the local authorities that they had found an abandoned Dodge coupe on the Parkway shortly after 11 o'clock Tuesday night. The machine was unlighted and had been in a collision. It was registered to a Winchester party but the local authorities were unable to find anyone by the name given who knew anything of the matter. The strike which stopped work on the demolition of the wooden structure on Main street, formerly occupied by the Winchester News Co., Mathews' Barber Shop, W. C. The evening passed pleasantly with a program of vocal and instrumental selections and the serving of a dainty collation. Miss Fitzgerald was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts and in a charming manner expressed her appreciation to the guests, present from Allston, Brighton, Cambridge, Lawrence, Woburn and Winchester.

ESCAPING STEAM SCALDS WORKMEN AT WINCHES. TER BRICK PLANT

Six men were taken to the Winchester Hospital suffering from bad burns and other injuries resulting from an explosion occasioned by the premature opening at about 10:30 Tuesday morning of a huge cylindrical brick drying kiln at the plant of the Winchester Brick Company, just across the town line off Cross street in Woburn. The injured were Andrew Doherty, 27, of Summer street, Stoneham; Frank Gonsalves, 32, of Belmont street and Richard Coleman, 21, of 6 Border street, both of Woburn; and Walter Kirby, 23, of 35 Harvard street; Lawrence Nunally, 19, of 68 Irving street; and Donald McCarthy, 18, of 30 Irving street, all of Winchester.

All suffered from bad burns about the head, arms and shoulders as well as from shock while Gonsalves lost the little finger on his right hand and sustained a broken nose. Doherty was more seriously hurt, sustaining a fracture of the spine and pelvis. He was in great pain when removed to the hospital in the police ambulance by officers James Farrell and Edward O'Connell, the car having been summoned by an emergency call from the plant when it was found that the injured man could not be moved without a stretcher. The others were taken in private cars to the hospital where they were treated by Dr. Martin L. Sheehan of Stoneham.

After a preliminary examination of Doherty Dr. Sheehan ordered X-rays taken to determine the extent of his injuries and it was found necessary to amputate the little finger on Gonsalves' right hand. Both were retained at the hospital, the others being allowed to go to their homes. Later both McCarthy, who was a member of last year's football team at the Winchester High School, and Nunally returned for further treatment. All are reported as getting along satisfactorily, neither the name of Gonsalves or Doherty being upon the hospital's danger list.

The incident which might very easily have entailed much more serious consequences occurred when the door of the big drying kiln was opened before the steam pressure to which the bricks are subjected in the drying process had been completely drawn off.

The kiln which is about 80 feet long and six feet in diameter houses a great number of bricks for drying and is equipped with an air light door which is hinged into place to withstand the 200 pounds of steam pressure used in the drying process. The bolts were removed before the pressure had entirely gone down and the heavy door was hurled outward with great force, felling several of the men and allowing them all to be scalded by the rush of escaping steam. Fortunately none of the bricks were thrown from the cylinder by the explosion.

Superintendent Frank Gallagher of the plant was standing near the kiln at the time of the accident but fortunately was not injured. He with other workmen aided the injured into the yard and sent calls for ambulances to both Winchester and Woburn police headquarters. Doherty apparently received the full force of the blow from the heavy door while Gonsalves' hand was badly crushed. It was at first thought that the former had been fatally hurt, but latest reports are more reassuring.

NOVELTY SHOWER TUESDAY EVENING

Miss Mary B. Fitzgerald of Allston, bride-in-be of Edward D. Fitzgerald of this town, was tendered a reception and novelty shower on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. Fitzgerald's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, 20 Winchester square. The affair was a complete surprise, arranged by friends of the young couple in honor of their approaching marriage which is to take place on the morning of Labor Day at Allston.

The evening passed pleasantly with a program of vocal and instrumental selections and the serving of a dainty collation. Miss Fitzgerald was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts and in a charming manner expressed her appreciation to the guests, present from Allston, Brighton, Cambridge, Lawrence, Woburn and Winchester.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The manager of the Regent Theatre is pleased to announce the forthcoming presentation next Monday and Tuesday of Cyril B. De Mille's melodramatic photoplay of the Russian revolution, "The Volga Boatman." This is a superb production featuring William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Victor Varconi, Julia Faye and Theodore Kosloff. This is a gripping love story of a plebeian boatman and a Russian Princess, developed against the super-dramatic background of a country in which over night, servants become masters and masters servants—a tremendous human theme vibrant with thrills and appeals.

Charles M. Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Watkins of 2 Ridgely road will return to the Huntington School to continue his studies when school opens on Sept. 22.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The Winchester Boat Club was represented by four members at the American Canoe Association National meet at Lake George, N. Y. this year. Mr. Herman Dudley Murphy, the well-known sailing canoeist and a veteran A. C. A. member, headed the Winchester party. The others were Kenneth Pratt, Edward Sanilberg and Alan Hovey. Mr. Murphy entered into all of the sailing races and at the end of the meet his record proved to be second best as he succeeded in securing a second or third place in all of the major sailing races. His reputation as a sailor of the small, speedy, fresh-water craft is very widely known and based upon years of marked success. No such meet would be complete without Mr. Murphy's entry.

Pratt, Sanilberg and Hovey spent their work in camp very pleasantly and on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 20 and 21, entered into the paddling races. While they did not win any of their races, or in fact, make a very strong showing, they did gain in experience. Pratt tried his hand at the single-singles, the tandem-singles, with Sanilberg as his teammate, and he paddled No. 7 in the Eastern division. The Pratt-Sanilberg tandem finished fourth out of nine entries, while the Eastern Division was won by the second, Pratt, therefore, figured in two races, well up at the finish. Sanilberg, a "double-blade," by choice, figured in a single-blade fourth place with Pratt, and a third place in the tandem-singles, with Hovey, his regular partner in this event. Hovey and Sanilberg also finished in a double-blade four-man crew, with two men from a Providence, R. I. club.

An A. C. A. National Meet is one of strong competition. The entry list shows clubs from New York City, Syracuse, Vineland and Buffalo, N. Y.; Englewood, N. J.; some clubs from Pennsylvania and a number of Boston clubs. It is hoped that another year Winchester will have a larger representation. Those who attended this year are sure to repeat, as they have been thoroughly won over to the camp.

Winchester is to enter the annual Labor Day meet in the held under the direction of the Lawrence Canoe Club at Canobie Lake. A double-blade club-four is now practicing each evening, consisting of Edward Sanilberg, John Caldwell, Kenneth Pratt and Alan Hovey. This same lineup may also enter the single-blade race, and a tandem-singles. Pratt and Caldwell will make up another entry, while Sanilberg and Hovey will try the tandem-singles race. This meet will be the final "out-of-town" one for Winchester this year.

A final regatta on home waters will be run on the Saturday following Labor Day, and will consist largely of novelty events.

WESTERN UNION WARNS OF FAKE TELEGRAPH SUMMONSES

The Western Union Telegraph Company through its Boston office has issued a warning to all patrons in this district to be on guard against the machinations of a gang of sneak thieves who judging from reports are working rather generally in greater Boston.

The procedure is to have the woman member of the gang call a residence asking the prospective victim to go to his local telegraph office to get a message being held for him there. As soon as he leaves his home or office as the case may be the other members of the gang step in and loot the place.

It has been done, and while Winchester has had no trouble thus far it is well to be on the watch. The following, reprinted at the request of the local Western Union Office.

The Western Union does not require its patrons to go to the telegraph office to receive telegrams. If you should be called on the telephone and asked to go to the telegraph office to receive a telegram ask to have it read to you over the telephone.

Mr. Stanley Butterworth of a Grove street has a real grievance against the driver of the motor vehicle who sometime during last Friday night drove his machine across the sidewalk in front of his home, smashing the walk and a small heeler as well as doing considerable damage to his lawn. A heavy truck was evidently responsible for the trouble.

Miss Ethel Kean of Randall's and Miss Marie Lynch of Woburn are leaving Monday for a trip to New York.

Engineered to a standard—Built complete at the factory

Why— "The Choice of the Well Informed"

To the understanding eye of the technically trained man, the engineering superiority of the Kleen-Heet oil burner is marked. Such a marvel of fine simplicity! Instantly efficient! Fool-proof! Trouble-free!

For Kleen-Heet is accurately "engineered to a standard"—the standard of perfect, automatic, economical home heating. Thus, it provides a size for every need. And it is self-contained—"built complete at the factory" under the engineers' eyes. Its efficiency does not depend upon complicated installation. It requires no change in your heating plant.

That is why Kleen-Heet has so remarkable a record of unflinching performance—in homes of every size—through more than six years.

And why Kleen-Heet is so outstandingly "the choice of the well informed."

KELLEY DAY, SATURDAY, SEPT. 18TH

Plans are well under way to make a big success of "Kelley Day," which is to be staged on Saturday, Sept. 18, by local baseball fans in honor of Mark Kelley, St. Mary's veteran pitcher and all-round star.

Big "Mex" has pitched high grade ball for the Winchester team all season and has done much to make the games on Manchester Field worth the watching. Without his good right arm and baseball judgment the locals might have been hopelessly outclassed in many of their engagements and the fact that he has worked gratuitously to help the boys out of the hole occasioned by the loss of Francis Tansey has made the fans feel that he is deserving of special recognition.

Many a team would have been glad to pay real money for the brand of pitching which Kelley has given St. Mary's, and continued to give them in the face of support which in many instances would have caused veteran hurlers of his ability to give up in disgust.

Mark has had a long and varied baseball experience which includes engagements in the old Twin State League and with some of the best semi-professional teams in this district. He was instrumental in twirling the Legion team of two years ago out of a bad hole and has rendered the town line pitching service on many other occasions.

He is deserving of his "day" and the fans about town will welcome the opportunity to do him honor. The game which is to be staged on Sept. 18 will be the third of the series with the Riley Shop team of Woburn, thus ensuring a worth-while afternoon from the competitive viewpoint.

The committees are as follows:

General Committee
James Farrell, Chair, John E. Hanlon, Geo. W. Tilly, Treas., Francis Moly, Rev. P. Fitzgerald, Geo. H. Looman, Geo. T. Davidson, Thomas E. Fulton, James J. Fitzgerald, Fred H. Schell, Alex. MacDonald, William Hooy, James Hink, Ernest Kosta, Geo. LeDine

Publicity Committee

BASEBALL TO-MORROW

St. Mary's baseball team will entertain the fast St. John's C. C. of North Cambridge tomorrow afternoon at 3.15 p. m. The St. John's club is managed by "Louie" Cote, father of the famous captain of the strong Holy Cross nine of the past season and who is at present playing with the Toronto team of the International League after receiving a tryout with the New York "Giants." Cote plans to have the following well-known stars in his lineup: Gibson, all-scholastic first baseman from Cambridge; Latin; Horan and McGowan, playing second and third respectively, are also all-scholastic players. The game will start at 3.15 with Mark Kelley throwing them up for the home team. The home club will also be strengthened by the addition of "Jim" Fitzgerald and Francis Tansey and an interesting encounter is expected.

The Misses Jeannette and Katherine McCormack were the guests of friends in Quebec over the holiday.

WATERFIELD LODGE NO. 231, I. O. O. F.

Nomination of Officers for the coming year will be held at the first regular meeting of the fall term, Monday evening, Sept. 13.

Miss Lucille Pierce and Miss Ruth Langille spent the week-end in Montreal.

WINFIELD E. PRIME

Mr. Winfield E. Prime of Prospect street passed away at his home at 3 o'clock this morning. He was stricken with a shock last Monday morning shortly after arising, his left side and speech being paralyzed. He was unconscious from the noon of that day until his death. He returned with his family from his summer home at Cousins Island, Me., on Sunday, and although he had not been in the best of health during the early summer, he had much improved during recent weeks and his sudden affliction was most unexpected.

Mr. Prime was one of Winchester's prominent citizens. He was "an old Charlestown boy," born in that village 65 years ago. His parents were Oliver and Emma (Kennard) Prime. His early youth was typical of many of our successful men. He attended the public schools of Charlestown and Boston University, graduating from the law school. Between his study periods he worked at the numerous jobs the boy of his period found at hand to earn a little spare money.

Upon his admittance to the bar he opened an office at 23 Court street, Boston, later becoming associated for a time with Selwin Z. Bowman and then conducting his own office in the Kimball Building at 18 Tremont street, where he was at his death the oldest tenant. He was an able and successful lawyer. Mr. Prime was a member of the First Congregational Church of this town.

He was elected State Representative from Charlestown in 1890 and from this town in 1913-14, serving on many important committees. In town affairs he was also active during his residence of over 20 years here, serving on the Appropriations and other important boards.

He was also prominent in Masonic circles, being a 32d degree Mason, past master of Faith Lodge of Charlestown, member of William Parkman Lodge of this town, Winchester Royal Arch Chapter, Knight Templar and a member of the Shrine. He was past noble grand of Runkel Hill Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Charlestown. His business and political affiliations were extensive, although during the past two years he had retired from many previous activities.

He married Miss Mary A. Fontaine of Charlestown in 1881. His widow survives him, together with two children, Mrs. Raymond E. Pinkham of Orange, N. J., and Mr. Selwin E. Prime of Melrose Highlands. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin S. Wiley of Somerville and Mrs. Fred S. Nelson of Eliott, Me.

The funeral services are to be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence, 18 Prospect street, Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church officiating. The burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery.

EDWARD L. GILLETT

Edward Levi Gillett of 8 Sheffield road passed away at his summer home, North Sutton, N. H., on Tuesday, Sept. 7. He was of the firm of E. A. Gillett and sons of Everett, formerly of Charlestown and was born in Cortland, N. Y., 67 years ago, but for many years lived at 123 Cross street, Somerville and for the past nine years in Winchester.

Mr. Gillett is survived by two brothers, Arthur Gillett of Memphis, Tenn., and H. Augustus Gillett of Winchester, his widow, Minnie Gillett, a son, William E. Gillett of Winchester and a daughter, Mrs. Grace Marshall of Weymouth.

He was a member of the Calumet Club and of Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Winchester.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley at his former home, 8 Sheffield road at 2 o'clock, Friday, Sept. 10.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

"More wets than dries" will have to be proven by ballots in the November election. The wet vote is increased when dry people stay at home and do not vote, for it is the ballots that are remitted on election night. A majority of ballots in a Congressional district elects its Representative; in a state, its United States Senator. Both these officials will be called upon to vote on prohibition many times in Washington. Ballots in November, not the number of dry people, will decide the wet or dry majority in Washington. It is well known and deplored that, of the qualified voters in the United States, nearly one half do not vote. Many organizations are working this year as never before to get out the vote. What percentage of non-voters are church folks is not known; but it is enough to make many women sincerely think it is enough and pray for law enforcement. Prayer is absolutely necessary. We pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," but we all know that hard work has to be done before the bread is ready for the table. White ribboners prayed for the removal of the cause of liquor, but they also worked with the law-making bodies, until laws were made. Now we are praying that these laws may not be nullified or repealed. But that they may be enforced. And we find we must register, learn to vote and then go to the polls and vote. For prohibition is the whole world is dry. Keep on praying, but be sure to cast your vote in the Primaries.

Miss Olive Roberts who has been visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Roberts of Webster street left this week for Akron, Ohio, where she enters upon her third year as teacher of Physical Education in the public schools of that city.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

On the Labor Day week-end a canoe racing regatta was held at Canobie Lake, Salem, N. H., under the auspices of the Lawrence Canoe Club. In spite of the constant drizzle of rain, the meet was very well attended, entries being made from nearly all of the canoe clubs of the Eastern Division, American Canoe Association, Ernest Riedel and Scott Hutchins, both from Englewood, N. J., were in attendance and their entries brought added interest due to their renown as paddling experts. Winchester was represented in the meet by Kenneth Pratt, Edward Sandberg, John Caldwell and Alan Hovey. They made up the club four, single and double blade crews. For the tandem-double blade race, Sandberg and Hovey entered as one team while Pratt and Caldwell made up the other. None of the local entries succeeded in placing but the competition has nevertheless served as good experience and they are hopeful for better results in another year. The most spectacular event was the war canoe race, in which the Crescents of Waltham was the victor. Edward Sandberg and Pratt represented the Onirion-Hella Club of Waltham in this. Sandberg was given the responsible position of helmsman, a job which he proved well qualified to fill, as he kept a steady course throughout the race. Ken Pratt very ably filled in at number eight. The "O. D.'s" supplemented by these two Winchester men, kept very much in the race, only to be tossed out of third place by the crack Dedham crew, at the finish line. Herbert Miller, Lars Sandberg and Winthrop Palmer also attended the meet, camping over the week-end with the Winchester "delegation."

There will be a regular club dance on Friday evening, Sept. 10, at the club house, starting at 8 o'clock. As most of the club members are now home from their vacations, a very good attendance is expected. On Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11, an informal regatta is to be held, the events taking place in front of the club house. In addition to the usual novelty races, two events are to be run, in which the girls will have an opportunity to show their prowess as canoe ravers. Medford has been invited to this meet and they should do much to make the competition keen. If possible, a Medford-Winchester club four race will be run. The novelty events are to be as follows:—tail end race, girls' 1-8 mile race, single blade, hand-paddle race, standing gunwale race, tandem, single-bladed, tip-over race, hurry surry race, mixed tandem and a tilting tournament. The regatta starts promptly at 2.30.

WINCHESTER JUNIORS AWAY TO GOOD START

Winchester started off at a great pace on its 1926-27 Bay State Junior League schedule Saturday, defeating Victoria A. at the Shirley street grounds, 5-1. The locals were runners up for the State "B" title last season and are out to be returned winners this year.

Winchester had the best of the going from the opening, swarming around the Vic's goal. Dahlman and Shallop each tallied twice, while Herrell scored the other goal. Anderson got the only tally for Victoria A.

The summary:
WINCHESTER: Tallberg, g; Granlund, rf; Tothe, lf; Dahlman, cf; Swenson, cf; Lundin, lf; Eklund, rf; Herrell, cf; Shallop, cf; Dahlman, lf; Bernheim, lf.

ST. MARY'S AT WOBURN TOMORROW

The second game of the Championship series between the Ribley Shop team, titlist in the Woburn Sandlot League and the St. Mary's C. C. baseball nine of this town will be played this Saturday afternoon at 3.15 on Library Park, Woburn. The game had originally been billed for Labor Day in connection with the Woburn Legion's Carnival, but rain made the match impossible. The first battle on Manchester Field last Saturday resulted in a win for Winchester and Ribley's will be out to square accounts. Kelley will probably work for St. Mary's.

Colored Picture Wire

It is now possible to buy picture frame wire in all colors, such as gold, tan, brown, green, silver, white, etc. This makes it easy to secure wire which will match the color of the walls—thus having it fall into the background rather than glaring out conspicuously.

Wonderful Machine

Probably the most wonderful piece of mechanism of its kind in the world is the scale used in the Bank of England. It stands about seven feet high, and weighs approximately two tons. It can weigh a grain of dust, or hundreds of pounds of gold.

ST. MARY'S WIN OPENER FROM RIBLEY

St. Mary's got away to a good start in its series with the Ribley Shop team last Saturday afternoon when it took the champions of the Woburn Sandlot League into camp, 8-4, on Manchester Field in a game which was a thriller all the way.

A good crowd was on hand to witness the battle. Not an old time Woburn-Winchester gathering, but a good game an independent ball goes today. Those present surely got the entire worth of their money, a little bit of everything being crowded into the nine thrilling frames.

The "Ribleys" came onto Manchester Field exuding confidence at every pore. They had been returned victors in a catch-as-catch-can series with the Midgets for their recent title and figured they were too good to lose to the team which had been representing Winchester of late.

St. Mary's, however, had its full strength Saturday and when like that is not too soft for any man's hall club in the independent ranks. Big "Harpy" Fitzgerald at first base gave the team strength at its weakest point while the return of Frank Tansy to the outfield added a heap to the batting punch of the club. If one could throw out the work of "Charlie" O'Donnell at 3rd base, he'd find the St. Mary's boys clearly outplaying their rivals from Woburn, and before pausing "Spiky" too vigorously remembered he was playing in an unfamiliar position in a game with plenty at stake. He looked "tough" out there at the hot corner, but he more than redeemed himself when he busted a tie score wide open with a rousing single in the 7th with two away.

Old reliable "Mex" Kelley was on the hill for St. Mary's and the big right-hander pitched his usual sterling game. Four runs are chalked up against him in the scoring record, but try and figure them on an earned bases. Mark pitched pretty close to shut-out baseball last Saturday with good support.

Imposing him was "Tony" Colucci, ex-Woburn High and Lake Forest Academy twirler. "Tony" got his bumps, being found for 11 solid bingles by the locals who apparently took kindly to his benders. He was relieved by "Dan" Linscott in the 5th after being badly hurt when hit with a thrown ball.

The "Ribleys" counted in the opener. Snyder, first up, singled over second and moved up on B. Coates' sacrifice. Both O'Donnell and Kelley ran for the ball and when Snyder saw the hot corner uncovered he dashed for 3rd. Fitzgerald hesitated and then pegged wildly into the crowd and the Woburn left fielder jogged home. O'Donnell took Colucci's hoist, but "Chris" Coates got a life on Flaherty's error and stole second. Linscott walked, but Melly made a nice running catch of Nolan's foul to retire the side.

St. Mary's came right back. With one away Tansy singled to left and went own on Kelley's one-shot over 2nd. Colucci bore down hard on "Filzy" and one of his fast ones got away from Peahody letting Francis score and Kelley made 3rd. "Harpy" walked and stole second. Kelley rounded while Linscott was throwing out O'Donnell and Fitzgerald was over on "Dandy's" muff of Flaherty's roller. Chamberland fanned to end the frame.

Woburn went into the lead in the 5th when St. Mary's staged a comedy of errors. Peahody opened up with a single to left which Chamberland allowed to trickle between his legs, the runner making second. Costello singled over second, scoring Peahody and advancing on the throw. Snyder rolled in Fitzgerald, Costello making third from where he scored when O'Donnell lost B. Coates' grounder. Colucci hanged a hit off "Spiky's" glove at 3rd. With a chance to force Coates' at 2nd O'Donnell threw wildly, allowing the runner to make third and score when the local 3rd sacker lost Tansy's sharp throw to head the former off, a cheap run. Colucci made 3rd on the play, but Kelley made C. Coates foul to Melly and fanned Linscott.

St. Mary's evaded the count in its half. With two out Kelley got a life on Linscott's error and role all the way home on Fitzgerald's mighty triple to far center field, a prodigious feat which on a lively field would have rolled a mile. O'Donnell ended it by striking out.

With two out in the 7th Winchester won the game. Tansy singled to left and Kelley hit a one-shot to right. Colucci decided not to pitch to Fitzgerald and the latter was purposely passed, filling the bases. With the count two and nothing against him "Spiky" O'Donnell gamely stayed in there until he was all even at three and two before blasting a clean single through shortstop to score Tansy and Kelley, Fitzgerald making 3rd. Both "Harpy" and "Spiky" counted on Flaherty's single to right and Linscott replaced Colucci who had been hurt. "Vin" Ambrose, who had taken O'Donnell's place at 3rd, rolled to C. Coates for the 3rd out. The Ribley's threatened in the 8th when Colucci, C. Coates and Linscott singled in succession. Kelley, however, proved equal to the emergency. Nolan hoisted to Fitzgerald and Colucci was forced at the plate on Tansy's rap in Kelley. "Mex" got a great hand when he fanned "Clint" Peahody for the final out. A lanky throw by Tansy after Linscott's single alone prevented Colucci's scoring. Three double plays were made during the game.

TOO GREAT A HURRY TO REACH CEMETERY

Officer James Donaghey of the police claims it the most novel excuse for speeding that he has ever heard in his years of experience. Last week, after stopping Max R. Leheur on Washington street for driving a Willys-Knight touring car at an excessive rate of speed, the patrolman asked the former why he was in such a hurry.

"I want to get to the grave-yard before noon," replied Leheur. It was then 11.40 a. m.

Officer Donaghey occasioned much merriment in the District Court at Woburn when he told his story.

Judge Morton was interested but not sympathetic. He inquired if Leheur was headed for the cemetery when stopped.

"He was," answered Officer Donaghey. "He was getting there fast," opined "Hizzoner," $100 Leheur paid.

ROSARIO: THE "CHICAGO OF ARGENTINA"

Discussion over the problem of getting the American farmer more money for his crops directs attention to one of his chief competitors, Rosario, Argentina.

That city has become the leading port for grain shipments in South America. It now stands second only to Montreal in the volume of grain dispatched from ports of the Atlantic seaboard of both North and South America.

Spreading Buenos Aires, the only metropolis over 2,000,000 anywhere south of the Equator, throws a deep obscuring shade over Rosario, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Wheat Service Station

Rosario proclaims that it is premier port for Argentina's premier product and calls itself the "Chicago of Argentina." However, Buenos Aires could be divided into six Rosarios and there would still remain a suburb or so.

Its strategic position has brought 300,000 people to Rosario to join the 50,000 population of 50 years ago. Warehouses are mounted like so many tanks on the edge of the steep cliff 30 feet above the river. Ocean steamers come abreast and cut off their engines. A chute takes the place of a hose and down the chute flows pungent grain wheat in bulk or in bags. Rosario can fill the hold of a 4000-ton tramp steamer in five hours. The engines start. Two hundred and forty-five miles down the river the tramp passes proud Buenos Aires as she carries the waves on a non-stop voyage to Liverpool or Rome. Rosario is hidden from the traveler. If one approaches the city on a steamer journey instead of on a railroad run, five hours from Buenos Aires, the very bluffs which have contributed so much to Rosario's prosperity screen the town. "Business is business" the wharves and warehouses seem to say, and once up the bluff the visitor finds the river advertisement not misleading. Five hundred thousand square miles of rich country is tributary to Rosario, it is said, so the 350,000 resident must be up and doing to meet the needs of 4,000,000 pampas people in the Rosario sphere. The city, therefore, is an array of offices and homes with less of the flamboyant architecture than is found in many South American cities.

Belgian Electricity and British Water

Inhabiting these busy streets is a cosmopolitan population. New York may have more Irish than Dublin and more Italian than Rome but its majority is American. Paris is still French. Marseilles may come nearest duplicating Rosario's complex human collection, which is itemized as follows: French origin 20 per cent; Uruguayan 15 per cent; German 15 per cent; Italian 15 per cent; Spanish 10 per cent; and Argentine 8 per cent. Behind these groups come Brazilians, English, Russians, Belgians and "several others."

The port development is a concession to a French company. The city's water is supplied by a British company. A Belgian corporation serves electricity to the population. Gas is under the direct control of a municipal organization. Of the eight railroads that make Rosario a transportation center four are English, three French, and one Argentine owned.

Galvanized Steel and Grasshoppers

Argentine wheat, which is a factor in determining the price of American wheat, was shipped out of Rosario in a recent year to the tune of 1,217,000 tons, which would require about 174 average size steamships. Wheat, however, is only one-third of Rosario's grain shipment store, while corn is another third. Looming large in the city's imports is the odd item of galvanized iron sheets. Argentine suffers enormously from the grass-hopper plague and these sheets, imported chiefly from the United States, are her barrier against insect hordes. Coming out of the tropics, north locusts advance south with the summer, increasing their ranks as they move. Bible descriptions of locust plagues are not overdrawn. Witnesses of the flying armies say. Most destructive are the young grasshoppers which crawl but do not fly. It is against the crawling young that the sheet steel barriers are erected. Millions of the insects are turned aside into pits where they are destroyed. Argentina spends more than $5,000,000 annually fighting grasshoppers. Its Department of Agriculture has enough sheet steel to make a barrier clear around the world.

Advocates More Use of Flowers as Food

To suggest that we add flowers to our daily menu would to many people seem like foolishness. But a famous French food authority expresses surprise that we do not make more use of flowers in this way. He reminds us that we eat cauliflower, artichokes, and Brussels sprouts, all of which come under this heading.

In China flowers often figure on the table as part of a meal. One of the national dishes is a soup made of the day lily, used 4,000 tons of the bloom being used for this purpose every year.

A chrysanthemum salad is one of Japan's most highly favored dishes. The flowers are carefully washed and served in the way that we serve lettuce or watercress.

In some eastern countries the petals of the yellow water-lily are used as frequently for dessert as apples and oranges in this country.

Winchester people will doubtless be glad to retain Mr. Thomas R. Bateman to the State Legislature again this year. He is the logical candidate and deserves to represent this town on the first occasion of its controlling its own Representative from its own individual district. Representative Bateman has served the district wisely and faithfully, giving careful attention to the measures and needs of this section. He should by all means be returned as Winchester's choice.

Winchester will make a great mistake in allowing another building to be erected on the corner of Main and Thompson streets. There is now an opportunity to do something toward beautifying our center which has long been our "Bite Noir." If the town cannot afford to buy this corner why not sell off some of the lots cumbered unsightly by the removal of the many school buildings. This corner if left open would be worth to the town much more than the money spent in the widening of Thompson street, the expense of which the town did not hesitate to assume at its last Town Meeting. Isn't there interest enough among our citizens to take this step toward making our town the most beautiful suburb of Boston substantiating the claims of our real estate dealers in their advertisements.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

An automobile accident occurred on Thompson street Wednesday afternoon when a Ford sedan driven by Helen L. Robertson of Wildwood street and a Ford truck owned by the Winchester Conservatories, and driven by Olaf Johnson of Arlington came together. The truck also struck a pole. Both cars were damaged.

"Ride out and walk home" parties were numerous in Winchester over the holiday from all reports, and as late as Wednesday one woman on Ridge street called upon the police to assist a party of three girls to their homes in Somerville after they had stepped out of a car driven by three men. Three other girls were reported sleeping on a piazza of a house in the Hill district also at an early hour Wednesday morning.

The police were asked to locate a woman by the name of Clara Mather, Monday by the Boston officers. According to their story a woman by the name of Bessie Carr dropped dead in a Boston drug store. She was reported to be living with the Mather woman here, having made Winchester her home since May. The police were unable to obtain information of either women.

Complaint was made by an Arlington resident that two dogs from houses on Dunster lane and Henry street this week had killed eight of his hens this week. The remains of the fowl were viewed by the police, and it is presumed the hens were pronounced officially dead. They have the matter under advisement.

Marriage intentions were filed with the Town Clerk this week by Madison Adelbert Knowles of Laconia, N. H., and Miss Ruth Hammond of Hancock street. The wedding has been set for Sept. 18.

A collision occurred between two automobiles in the square Monday afternoon, when a Ford touring car went against the light and hit an Essex coach driven by Alfred C. Morris of Woburn. The Ford was driven by John E. Lyman of Chelmsford and was traveling south on Main street. Both cars were somewhat damaged.

The fire department was called out yesterday forenoon shortly after 9 o'clock for a blaze at the residence of Mr. Richard A. Hull, 7 Glengarry. No serious damage was done, although the kitchen of the house was considerably scorched and some lace curtains which were undergoing a cleansing process with gasoline were burned up. It appears that a maid in the household was cleaning the curtains near the gas stove. Fumes from the gasoline ignited from the stove during her absence, starting a lively blaze. The fire was extinguished by the firemen with hand chemicals, following an alarm from box 55.

Miss Mabel Wingate and Miss Oriana Wingate of 8 Stratford road have returned to Winchester after a visit to their sister Josephine, Mrs. R. A. Knudsen, in Oakland, Cal.

Mrs. Alexander MacDonald and her small son and daughter have returned from Nova Scotia where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McDonald have returned home from an auto trip to the White Mountains.

Miss Ethel Hersey of Yale street has returned from a visit with Mrs. Howard F. Bidwell who is summering at Falmouth.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Batchelder are at their home on Main street for a few days. They will return to their summer home at Great Moose Lake, Me., for the remainder of September and part of October.

Miss Ethel Drinkwater was a week-end guest at Gray Gables Inn, Buzzards Bay.

At the regular meeting of the Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., held on Thursday evening, a presentation of a very attractive Past Master's Apron was made to Worshipful Master, T. Parker Clarke. The presentation was made by Senior Warden, J. Wharton Whitlock in behalf of the lodge. W. M. Preston, E. Corry of the William Parkman Lodge was an honor guest of the evening. Matches Miss Goddard won six, lost one and defaulted one and has won two prizes.

A son, Rocco, has also been born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferraina of 49 Irving street.

Mrs. Janet Goddard was tied for first place with Mrs. Quimby in the woman's golf tournament at the Plymouth Country Club held Tuesdays throughout the summer. Out of eight Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grazino of Olive street are the parents of a son. He has been named John.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ladd and Miss Marion Ladd have returned from a three weeks' tour in the White Mountains.

JONAS A. LARAWAY

for Winchester
Representative to the General Court

As a result of the redistricting of the State into new political divisions, Winchester becomes for the first time a representative district by itself. It is fitting that we should send to the Great and General Court the man who best represents the town, who best knows its needs. Mr. Jonas A. Laraway offers himself for your consideration. He has lived here many years, his business has been here, and what success he has made of this life has been made in this town. No one is more interested in the welfare of the town than he. Starting in a small way, by industry and the application of that great common sense for which he is noted, he has risen to become one of the largest tax payers. He is opposed for the nomination by Mr. Thomas R. Bateman, who is seeking his third nomination, which if he is successful will give him six years of continuous service in the House of Representatives. In the four years he has already served, he has not taken a prominent and influential position on any matter of legislation. In order to merit three terms in the Legislature a man should have taken a prominent part in legislation, and should have acquired a position of influence. It is not enough to have been merely one of two hundred and forty members. In the absence of any outstanding record it takes considerable nerve to seek a renomination and election. From the standpoint of the ability and influence that we require in our representatives Mr. Bateman has failed to measure up.

FORMER HOME OF THE LATE HON. REP. FOREST C. MANCHESTER WITH SEVERAL ADDITIONS AND MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Fondly remembered by old-timers, because "Manchester Field," fruits of his two years' service as Winchester's Representative "on the Hill." "What has Mr. Bateman done in 4 years?" "In earn 2 more?" Present home of Jonas A. Laraway who has through eight years' effort with his committee, and Mr. George Hyne, compelled Woburn to build a sewer without costing Winchester one nickel, which will eventually clean up the Aberjona Valley, Whitney Pond and Mystic Lake to the Ocean. I believe it I am elected Representative that I can secure means to be spent in cleaning and improving the Aberjona River and ponds. Do you want my efforts in this direction?

Theodore Roosevelt said on one occasion after he had made up his mind to try for the presidency of our great and glorious country, "My hat is in the ring." So say I, "My hat is in the ring." Only my hat is in the ring for a job several sizes smaller than the one Teddy was after, namely—for the job of representing this town of Winchester in the great and general court on Beacon Hill. I want to represent you all in the Massachusetts Legislature.

You all know I was the first "Mayor" of Winchester, when I was Chairman of the Board of Selectmen. When I was "Mayor," everybody knew I was "Mayor," and some of my successors were kind enough and honest enough to say I was a good "Mayor," and carried on the town's business in a businesslike and economical way. Now, I want to be the first Representative Winchester will have when she comprises a district by herself.

Of course we cannot have two Representatives, the present incumbent and myself; so the man who now is asking to be returned to the office will have to stay at home and carry on his law business. Most of you know Tom is a lawyer, I am not. I am only a business man. If you look over the list of names of Representatives or Senators upon the "Hill" and then look over their occupations as they are stated on the list, you will see that most of them are lawyers, and only a few acknowledge some other way of making a living.

We all know there are altogether too many lawyers up there, and altogether too few business men. Laws are made by the hundred up on the "Hill" every year. After they have made all this multitude of laws, nine out of every ten of them have to be interpreted by the courts, and the lawyers who made them get jobs trying to say what they mean, or trying to tip them over after they have made them.

One great reason why I want to go up on the "Hill" where they make laws, is to try for all I am worth to see that they don't make so many. I will help to make any really necessary laws, but I won't try to help make unnecessary laws.

We are "lawed" to death. Another reason I want to be your representative is because the Aberjona pollution business or rather the effort to stop it has got to be watched more closely than Mr. Bateman watched it.

You know I have been a member of the Committee to stop the business of making our ponds and streams a sewer for Woburn tanneries.

We did good work. We worked hard and we are going to get relief from our trouble pretty soon. "Tom" was up on the "Hill" four years, but he did not do a thing to help stop it.

I will promise you, my fellow citizens, that I will be on the job all the time, and I won't sit like a dumb man while I am there.

I will do my very best for any other thing Winchester is interested in or ought to have, and when I say "I will," I don't mean "maybe."

MANY LIVES SAVED

Twenty-Five Hens Lost Out of Three Hundred

Winchester firemen, especially Everett Kimball and Edward McKenzie, saved many hens from an untimely death early Wednesday morning when the truck in which they were riding was burned by fire and tipped over at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets. Chief DeCoursey and Asst. Chief John Gorman directed the rescue.

The truck, hauled from New Hampshire points to New Bedford is said to have caught fire on the State road. While looking around to locate the blaze, N. Shaer accidentally tipped the machine over. Twenty-five of the hens were killed outright. The others were either liberated or in immediate danger of roasting, when the firemen arrived on the scene in answer to an alarm from box 51. Hand chemicals saved the outfit and the firemen aided the driver in recovering his load from various points of the neighborhood. The front of the truck was somewhat damaged.

HAWLEY—CARRIE

Miss Esther Dorothea Carrier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Hawley of Lloyd street and Wheeler Hawley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hawley of Hartford, Conn., were married last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, D. D., pastor of the First Congregational Church. Only immediate relatives were present.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Virginia Carrier, as maid of honor and the groom had as best man his brother-in-law, Arthur Billings of Windsor, Conn.

Mrs. Hawley graduated in 1923 from the Winchester High School and is of the Class of 1927 at Boston University, College of Liberal Arts. She is a member of the Gamma Phi Beta Sorority and was president of the Women's Athletic Association. Mr. Hawley was graduated from Trinity College in 1924. For the past two years he has been studying at the Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences where he received the degree of A. M. in 1925 and where he is a candidate for his Doctor's degree.

Sunday Night at Camp

After supper on Sunday night, Mr. Butters read the first number of the Senut paper, The Good Turn, which was published at camp on that day. After that we went down to the shore and built a fire for a marsh-mallow roast. After the roast, Mr. and Mrs. Bridges told stories that held everyone interested until it was time for bed. Everyone went to bed happy.

The Track Meet

On account of the rough weather Monday afternoon, the motorboat trip was postponed and Uncle Art decided to hold the track meet. This suited everyone and we all climbed into our jerseys and shorts. We used our own grounds for the jumps and shot put. The dashes were held in the road. The officials were Mr. Butters, Dick Clark, Ken Barrett and Mr. Bridges. In the high jump our good friend showed us how not to jump, but in the shot put he showed his strength. It took about two hours to run the whole thing off. That night everyone was pretty tired. The fellows showed their ability as athletes and we are proud of some of them.

The winners of the events were as follows:

Junior 50 yard dash—Brown, 1st; Newell, 2nd; Shiverick, 3rd.
Junior high jump—Edwards, 1st; Newell, 2nd; Brown, 3rd.
Junior standing broad—Edwards, 1st; Brown, 2nd; Shiverick, 3rd.
Shot put for Juniors—Brown, 1st; Shiverick, 2nd; Edwards, 3rd.
Potato Race for Juniors—Brown, 1st; Shiverick, 2nd; Edwards, 3rd.
Senior 100 yard dash—R. Whiting, 1st; Gillett, 2nd; Hession, 3rd.
Senior High Jump—McKee, 1st; N. Whiting, 2nd; E. Hitchbourn and Gillette tied for 3rd.
Shot Put—R. Whiting, 1st; McKee, 2nd; Wilson, 3rd.
Cross Country—R. Whiting, 1st; Hession, 2nd; E. Hitchbourn, 3rd.
Senior Stumbling Broad—McKee, 1st; N. Whiting, 2nd; Gillette, 3rd.

The highest man, Junior and Senior was Bill Brown who had a total of 24 points; Bob Whiting was second with 15 points; Bill Edwards was third with 11 points.

The Swimming Meet

The water sports were held during swim period of Wednesday morning. The following events were run off and the results were Junior 25 yard swim, Bill Brown, 1st; Dick Caldwell, 2nd; Shiverick, 3rd. Senior 25 yard swim, Ed. Hitchbourn, 1st; Red McKee, 2nd; Gillett, 3rd. Junior Dive, Brown, 1st; Caldwell, 2nd; Shiverick, 3rd. Senior Dive, Bob Whiting, 1st; Wilson, 2nd; Jones, 3rd.

The scores on the water sports for both classes were 1st, Brown with 10 points; 2nd, Caldwell with 6 points; 3rd, the between Hitchbourn and R. Whiting who both had five points.

Total Scores for Sports

In the scores for both land and water sports Bill Brown was high man having a score of 30 points. Bob Whiting was second with 20 points. Red McKee holds third place with a total of 16 points.

The Ghost Hunt

The ghost hunt took place on Monday evening. Dick Clark and Ken Barrett had been down to the Inn. When they came back they said that they had seen some spirits running about.

We went looking for them. Ken took us up into the bushy field where we saw a white figure. We plugged rocks at it and then charged. It was only a white sheet tied to a bush. Uncle Art saw a plume of golden red which he said was a ghost. We mobbed it and pulled it up. Then we went back to camp.

While we were going down the path to the tent, we saw a white figure. After it was chased and captured, it was found only to be Red McKee.

Everyone went down into the mess hall porch after that and told stories. Soon after we lit the hay. No one was carried off by spirits during the night.

Indian Sports

On Tuesday evening we were all told to meet in Bingo for an Indian track meet. The first thing, we counted off by two's and the one's stood the two's.

The contest began by three members of each side sitting at opposite sides of the table. A paper bag was blown up and played in the middle of the table. At the word to start, both sides blew at the bag and that side won which first blew the bag over the other edge.

The second event was a raising eating contest. A raisin was placed on the middle of a string and each end of the string was placed in the mouth of the contestants. At the word "go," they would start chewing string. The first to reach the raisin was the victor.

The third event was the bread eating. This was done by lining all the one's up and giving them a piece of bread. On the signal they all started eating. They were timed after all had eaten and whistled. The two's then went through the same process. The team finishing in the shortest time won.

The fourth and most exciting was the Japanese boxing. It is done by blindfolding two contestants of each team and giving them a paper club in one hand and the end of a neckerchief in the other. They fought for a minute. The one hitting the other the most times won.

The last thing was a story read by Dick. We then all went to bed feeling very happy.

The Motorboat Trip

After being postponed for two days, we at last had our motorboat trip. Captain Goodwin arrived on time at 12:30 and rowed us out to the boat. We all looked it over and Caldwell wasn't satisfied so he got in the rowboat on behind. Some were on the top, sides, front, and cabin. We saw Gillette's Light on the way to Dark Harbor. When we arrived at Dark Harbor we saw little sailboats, private yachts, and big steamboats. We then sailed through Dark Harbor and stopped outside a beach. Pat, Bob, Smithy and Norm went ashore after clams. They soon came back without any and Captain Goodwin had to go back with them. After about half an hour they returned with a full bucket and reported that they were very numerous. We then pulled up the anchor and put farther out to sea. We then started fishing and Norman was the first to pull in a cuinner. After everyone got about a million bites (more or less), Warren pulled in a big rood.

Soon Captain Goodwin ordered all the lines pulled in and up came the anchor. He said that some of the fellows would steer going home. Pat got in the tender and rode in there all the way home. You could see that it was someone else besides Captain Goodwin that was steering by the way it was going. We arrived at camp about 5 o'clock and Captain Goodwin rowed us ashore. Arriving at the cabin we weighed the two fish. Norm's cuinner weighed one pound and Warren's cod weighed three pounds. We all voted it a fine time.

Bayside Swim

We left about 10:45 this morning for Bayside to go in swimming. When we reached there Mr. Butters left us to go for fry and told us not to go in until he came back. In about half an hour he arrived. He at once changed his clothes and was the first to jump in. Bob Whiting showed us how good he would dive off the wharf. He also made an attempt to dive off the post about four feet higher but got cold feet. After nearly all went in we had some fun raising Bill Brown and throwing him in. Blabmouth followed him in and Smithy and Norman thought that they had better try it alone and succeeded. Then came the surprise. "Billy" also dove off the wharf and he said he would dive off the post, but he got cold feet. Then someone said that they would give him a nicker. This was followed by others until the swim was 25 cents. Billy then got up on the post but Bob pulled him down and got up himself. Bob, after standing about 10 minutes, finally dove. After he came up he went back and did it again. Billy then got up and after standing three about 15 minutes he also dove.

We then piled into the old reliable and started home. Billy said that he was cold and Mr. Butters told him to put his feet on the fire. We'll all say we had a great swim.

—Pat

Trip to the Movies in Belfast

Tuesday night after dinner, as it was pouring, guns, all the gang piled into the baby. Linnin and started for Belfast, but before we got into Liz, we had to hike to the Northport postoffice as the road from camp to town is too rough to take the crowd in the truck over. On the way to Belfast we had a good time yelling at all the "hicks," etc., along the way.

When we got there Ken said that he had seen the show and said that it was rotten. He was mistaken, however, because it was good in my estimation. Dick smiled at the girl in the ticket office and got us in for half price. There was much room when we came in. One woman said, "I'm glad we came in early so we could get a seat." Pat Wilson, the comedian, was in the show as a comedian. All in all it was a rich show. At the end we piled out into the rain. The side curtains in the truck were put down and we all had nice soft seats made of water. There were many songs on the way home. At Northport Ken took half the crowd home in the truck the first load and soon came back for the others. We all arrived home weary and wet, but cheerful.

Tests Passed at Camp

The following have passed their boat tests: McKee, Hession, N. Whiting, R. Whiting, Gillett, Brown, Shiverick, E. Hitchbourn, Jones, Hunnewell and Caldwell.

This morning Warren Hitchbourn, who did not swim when he came to camp, swam his 100 yard swim. Bill Edwards, who came to camp as a non-swimmer, covered about 35 yards. Roger Newell is working hard on his swimming and took about six strokes by himself this morning. Several who were working on swimming and life saving merit badges have found the water too cold to stay in long enough to finish their work on them.

Scout tests have been passed as follows: Bill Brown, first class first aid; Judging, carpentry; Bill Edwards, first class first aid; N. Whiting, first class first aid; Hunnewell, first class first aid; Smith, carpentry; E. Hitchbourn, 50 yard swim, scout mile; Jones, 50 yard swim; R. Whiting, merit badge in poultry keeping. Several fellows have done work on their athletic merit badge.

Also Wilson passed his boat test. Newell has done second class signaling and fire making. Brown passed use of axe. N. Whiting has credit for his 50 yard swim.

—Bob Whiting

Fourth Ball Game

The fourth camp ball game was played this afternoon between the cabin and bingo, and was a win for the bingos. This evening the series—two games being won by each side. Possibly it will be planned so that a rubber game may be played tomorrow before we leave for Winchester. In the first inning the bingos made three runs; but by the fourth, the cabinians had pulled ahead. In the sixth the bingos started to pull up the score and left Uncle Tom's valiants behind in the dust. The game ended with a score of 13-10. Red and Pat pitched, Smith, Wilson and Edwards caught for the cabin.

Bob Whiting pitched and Bus Hunnewell caught for bingo.

That Last Night

The last supper and the last night of camp grows near. The smell of beefsteak and onions and many other good things ascends to the printing room from Uncle Tom's work shop. Some of the huskies are developing muscle over the crank of the ice cream freezer. The councilors are putting on the waiters' aprons to get down and do the dirty work for once.

News of awards to be made has reached the printing rooms. To Red McKee goes the greatest of the camp honors. After lengthy consultations the councilors have decided that he has won the place of best all-around camper. The second place for best camper has been awarded to Bob Whiting and Gordon Gillette. To Pat Hession goes the award for first place in inspection.

Marshmallows have been received from Johnny Blahk which makes it appear that a marshmallow roast will follow the banquet festivities.

Camp Statistics

Most Popular: Smithy leads by a large margin and Hunnewell trails along behind. Most Eater: Wilson is so far in the lead in this respect that there's no use in mentioning anyone else. Most Cheerful: Red McKee wins with 13 votes and Brownie comes on with 3. Laziest: Lizzy because it never goes without driving. Slowest: Fat man, shoe man, and his cat all seem to be in the same class. Yes, its Allen.

Most Ambitious: Red. Best Athlete: Bill Brown and his two legs. Champion Fisherman: Bob Whiting. Warren ought to come in here somewhere since catching that cod.

Most Popular: It seems to be old Red McKee. Strange as it may seem there are 7 votes for Ken and 7 votes for Dick. Brownie pulled in 3. Inspection: Averages: Smith 87, McKee 88, Edwards 88, Gillette 87, Wilson 88, Brown 88, Shiverick 88, R. Whiting 87, Hunnewell 86, Burns 86, E. Hitchbourn 87, E. Hitchbourn 86, Newell 85, Jones 87, Uncle Tom's Cabin 84, Tent 84, Bingo 84.

Hash Page

Smithy: Are we going to the movies? Uncle Art: No we're going on an overnight hike to the raft. Ken: What you got "Red"? Red: Curious. Ken: Are they alive? Fat: In swimming? Oh, Mr. Butters, I've got a holly nicker!

Mr. Butters: Well then, a big fish of you must be nothing. Dick Caldwell: There was a good serial of the movies. Ken: You We had a good serial for breakfast.

Uncle Art: I'm coming into the clock man: Fix this cuckoo clock. Check Man: That's not a cuckoo clock, that's a sure let it just struck half past thirteen.

For a high jumper, Fat would make a good low diver. Look out Smithy! hold on tight, Brownie, here comes a ghost!

Allen's coat has been mated up with Dick's pants as public property. After Sept. 1 they will be for rent at 5 and 12 Wildwood street, Winchester, respectively.

Norm Whiting, being too lazy to hold his fish line, believes in fishing with a lob. Fred had and little cunnors. What's going to happen to all of us? There were 13 of us (and then some) in the room of spooks at Bingo the other night when the lamp cracked the mirror. Uncle Art was all for throwing the lamp into the wash tub. By the way, they say the electric light got into the electric light wires the other night after the camp meetings closed. Oh, and I forgot to mention that that big boy Barrett, the one we call Kenny, he's a veritable follow too; he was all for taking the broken mirror up on the roof and reflecting the sunlight from Mars up onto the big house to appease the wrath of those who are in spirit.

Mr. Butters claims that he could run a canoe as well as the old boys whom he saw performing at the Heights last Sunday night. Of his art after supper. He will open office on Monday he commenced the development hours: (to be announced later) at 16 Park avenue, Winchester, for private readings. Complete satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only cheerful messages delivered. Hearing that Wilson is to be a member of a party leaving Bayside for Boston tomorrow evening, the Eastern Steamship Co. is ordering special air bullets to be installed for the event on the Camden. Gee, its tough to be the fat man of the camp isn't it. Sing au-revoir, but not good-bye, this camper's doomed, but not to die. The Pelater folds away his sheets for a long winter's rest, but we hope that again next summer the front porch of Bingo may be turned into a printer's room for the summer edition of the Good Turn.

EVEN THE SPARKLE OF THE DIAMOND

The brilliant surface of the diamond, so skillfully worked and finished, is entrusted to gas for the last delicate process of polishing. Diamond cutters realize the importance of even, controllable heat in working with precious gems; it may mean the saving of a valuable stone.

The polishing of diamonds is done by mounting the stone in a lead tool which gives the finished jewel a hexagonal shape. One side is polished, then the lead is softened by placing it in a gas flame so that another side can be polished. Gas is the most satisfactory fuel for this because the flame may be kept at just the right temperature. Too high a heat injures the diamond—too low a heat would not soften the lead—exact precision is necessary.

The success of gas in the diamond industry only proves further that whatever the job, from smelting of great metal masses to the delicate polishing of precious jewels, you can do it better with gas.

JEWISH MEMORIAL DAY LAST SUNDAY

Last Sunday witnessed the observance of the Jewish Memorial Day with the annual visitation of the cemeteries in Montvale just above the Winchester line at the Highlands. This visitation, which takes place on the Sunday preceding the Jewish New Year, has in the past attracted thousands to the two Montvale burying grounds and has been the signal for a particularly busy day for the local police, most of the motorists passing through Winchester on their way to and from the cemeteries.

The crowd this year was characterized as one of the smallest for some time, the inclement weather having apparently kept many from making the trip. One estimate places the number of visitors to the two cemeteries in the neighborhood of 10,000 which is unusually small. The motor traffic was much lighter than a year ago and was largely confined in the afternoon to those returning from the Highlands. At no time was traffic tied up as has been the case in previous years.

The entire Winchester police force under the direction of Chief William E. McIntosh was on duty during the day and kept things moving without a hitch. Traffic in the square was handled by Sgt. Thomas Cassidy and officer Farrell while Sergeant Rogers and officer M. Kelley were on duty at the cemeteries. The morning traffic detail included officer Noonan at Washington and Mt. Vernon streets, officer Donaghey at the Catholic Church, officer W. Cassidy at Swanton street and Park avenue, and officer Regan at Forest and Washington streets.

In the afternoon officer Donaghey covered from Mt. Vernon street to St. Mary's Church with officer D. Kelley at Swanton street and Park avenue, officer C. Harold at Forest and Washington streets and officer Dempsey at the cemetery. Motorcycle officer Hogan was on patrol all day. Special cars were run by the Eastern Massachusetts Railway from Winchester center to the Highlands and a bus line operated from the cemeteries to Medford and Arlington squares.

Only two auto accidents were reported to the police during the day. The first took place at 11:45 a. m. when a Ford touring car owned and operated by Nathan Specter of 358 Bryant street, Malden, while going south on Washington street collided with a Studebaker touring car which was leaving the driveway at the Watch Island Factory. The Studebaker was driven by Hyman Kaminsky of School street, Stoughton. Both cars were damaged but no one was injured.

At 1:45 in the afternoon as Visdar Levinsky of Holliston was driving his wife's Ford sedan south on Washington street he was in collision with a second Ford sedan owned and operated by Wilfred DeLaurier of 183 Sheridan circle who was coming into Washington street from Irving street. Again no one was injured, but both cars were somewhat battered up.

HOW THE TREE CANS SUNSHINE

Theories discussed before the British Association for the Advancement of Science about the lifelike qualities of plants is a reminder that the tree, from data we already have, is a mechanism that in many ways transcends human ingenuity, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Man is apt to consider the tree according to its uses to him, the bulletin continues. The home owner thinks of it in terms of lumber, the sportsman looks to it for fishing poles or golf clubs, the painter is concerned with the varnish it yields, the musician considers its qualities for rosin or the making of violins, the publisher watches its yield of pulpwood, the summer picnicker asks only its shade.

Pumping Is One Tree Function
And so the list might be multiplied, for trees donate literally thousands of commodities to mankind's use. But what of the tree from its own point of view?

A tree pumps a water supply to its crown, even though that crown be 300 feet or more in the sky. Then it completes the cycle of circulation by sending the water back down as sap, loaded with food to build up the living part of the trunk, the sheath of new bark. It also fortifies its bark overcoat with a new layer every year.

Moreover, the tree is a self-operating chemical laboratory possessing "trade" secrets yet unknown to the best human chemists. With water, mineral matter and carbonic gas from the air it manufactures its food, part of which is stored away as wood. If you would know how much of this product is made out of air and water and how much is mineral matter sluiced through root and cell canals from the ground, cut a block of wood, weigh it, burn it, and then weigh the ashes. The difference is what a tree manufactures out of insubstantial air and water. The warmth from the fire is literally canned sunshine released by combustion.

The tree's chemical laboratory requires, in place of gas and electric power, light and heat from the sun. So it spreads a net of marvelous mesh to catch the sunlight and heat. Man calls the net leaves.

Defies Extremes of Climate

In the Temperate Zone, at least, a tree is a more stalwart individual than all members of the animal kingdom and most fellow members of the plant kingdom. What animal, for example, can go from a New England summer to a New England winter without putting on heavier clothing? Most plants curl up and die. The tree turns off the water system to keep it from freezing, hauls in its sunlight net (winter sun is not so much, anyway) and fuses the music of the bitterest northwest winds.

Man has taken the olive branch as the emblem of peace but there is little peace in the whole arboreal family. A tree not only feeds for itself, it fights for itself. If trees did not fight for themselves man would have little use for them. A tree is a bush on stilts. In the tree world the upper dog wins, so it is usually the tree which battles its neighbor for light and because it is armed with a better and longer stilt it lives and thrives.

Extinct Trees Provide Coal

While it is easy to visualize the capture of sun heat by a tree and its release on one's shins from a fireplace, it is more difficult to appreciate the heat we get from prehistoric trees. Fossil forms in coal show that trees were important and perhaps the chief dwellers of the rank jungles that laid down their lives in the carboniferous age to be fuel for 1926.

The tree forms of that era were different from those we know; many of them gigantic ferns and palmlike trees. But the pines, which control half of the world's forests today, are close relatives of prominent prehistoric tree families.

One of the densest jungles on earth today lies along the Motago River in Guatemala. Should Nature, by the process of the Coal Age, transform that jungle into a coal seam, it would be only a few inches thick. What a forest of tree life it must have been to produce the seams of coal which we mine today! One of the thickest on record is 66 feet.

Colors From Prehistoric Times

While Nature was storing away the sun heat captured by the prehistoric jungles, Nature also put away the color of that tropic world. Within the last 50 years chemists have discovered vats of every imaginable color concealed in gummy black coal tar. Modern styles for women's clothing quickly took possession of these color "mines" so our avenues are brilliant with the hues of luxuriant herbage which we may imagine beautified our earth millions and millions of years ago.

The total value of products of contemporary and prehistoric trees produced and imported annually in the United States is more than 11 billions of dollars. This figure is necessarily approximate and decidedly conservative. Major products that roll up this total: paper, lumber, coal, rubber, coke oven by-products, chocolate and cacao, canned fruits, rayon, dried fruits, fresh fruits, turpentine and rosin, coal tar products, and nuts.

Blood Pressure

The maintenance of the circulation of the blood requires a certain amount of pressure in the circulatory system. This pressure varies from 125 to 156 millimeters of mercury.

Far Back in Science

The first dated scientific instrument known is a Persian portable astrolabe used by travelers to calculate time in the year 884.

MR. THOMAS R. BATEMAN
Nominated from the 1st District by Winchester Republican.

PRIMARY ELECTION

Small Vote Turned Out Here on Tuesday

Representative Bateman Wins in Local Contest

Notwithstanding the magnificent weather, but a small portion of Winchester's voting strength turned out at the polls on Tuesday and the primary election resulted in a very small vote. Local interest centered in the contest for the Republican nomination for State Representative and outside this feature the election appeared uninteresting to the average voter. Even with the local contest on, the total vote was but 1353 out of our total voting strength of 4632.

As compared with the primaries of two years ago, when 1979 votes were cast and the weather was not comparable with that of Tuesday, this was very small. This year's vote comprised 1297 Republicans and 86 Democrats, and 799 men and 534 women.

Interest centered largely and solely in the contest for State Representative, Mr. Thomas R. Bateman, former chairman of the Board of Selectmen and present holder of the office, being opposed by Mr. Jonas A. Laraway. As Winchester enters a new district this year and will send for the first time in its history its own Representative to the Legislature, the interest was considerable as to whom the honor should be awarded. The voters were largely unanimous in their selection of Representative Bateman, who defeated Mr. Laraway almost three to one.

Mr. Laraway will, however, again contest the office with Representative Bateman at the November election, he having filed as an independent candidate previous to the primary election, and his name will appear upon the official ballot. It would appear from the decisive vote accorded Representative Bateman that he will unquestionably be elected in November, however.

The polls were not crowded during the voting period and the tellers made short work of counting the ballot, the result being announced at 6 o'clock.

The following election officers served:

A SAGA OF A SEA ISLAND

Address by Miss Rosa B. Cooley First Congregational Church, Sunday Morning at 10:30

An address of unusual interest will be given next Sunday morning at the First Congregational Church by Miss Rosa B. Cooley who for 29 years has been conducting an experiment with negroes in a secluded island settlement which is a little world by itself. So dramatic has been Miss Cooley's work that it has attracted not only the attention of leading educators throughout the United States but of European educators as well. The results of her experiment have penetrated even into the jungles of Africa. Her work has been written up several times in the Survey Graphic. Mr. Childs of Bulundu, Africa says:

"Far from being a side eddy on the edge of life's ocean, I've found in this little island a laboratory demonstration of the strongest and best of the great sweeping currents of the world's life. Study, observation, inspiration have been afforded me without stint. I only hope that we may be able to do the same sort of thing ourselves."

In these days when the Negro is coming North in increasing numbers any light that can be thrown upon him is of special interest.

Miss Cooley is on her way South from Europe on her first vacation in 29 years. She is a speaker of more than usual interest, and the public is invited to hear her. No collection.

WINCHESTER COUPLE SURPRISED

15th Anniversary Brought Friends and Gifts to the Dally's

The occasion of their 15th wedding anniversary brought friends and gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Daly of River street, Wednesday evening. When they were surprised by over 200 visitors from this and many surrounding places and presented with money amounting to over $300 and many handsome and valuable gifts. The evening came as a surprise to them both, neither having the slightest intimation that their friends and neighbors contemplated such an observance, but their popularity and the esteem in which they are held could not be overlooked.

It was nearly 8:30 when Mrs. Daly, busy at a task of preserving, was summoned to the door, and she needed fully the support her husband rendered when he responded to her call, for the gathering outside and prepared to enter appeared to comprise the larger part of Winchester. Indeed it did the North End, for there were few residents in that section who were not present.

By the time the first shock of surprise was over and the intentions of the company were made known, Mr. and Mrs. Daly were further surprised by most beautiful and substantial unique bouquets, absorbed all interest.

Aside from individual tokens, the presentation of two beautiful and These floral gifts were made up largely of bills, cunningly surrounded by asparagus-fern and greenery. They were presented first by Mr. William H. Vay, who was spokesman for a group of neighbors and friends, and then by Mr. Edward Boyle, who represented a group of fellow workmen at the patent leather shop of the Buggs & Cobb Company, where Mr. Daly has been employed. The bouquets were not only valuable but beautiful as well, each bill being cleverly fastened in place by wires, with just enough green and blossoms to off the green, white and yellow of the hills.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Daly were overwhelmed, but their thanks were just as sincere and heartfelt as those for their words of appreciation. With the two bouquets were a handsome electric table lamp and a huge box of candy.

A most pleasing program of singing, piano selections and dancing was then enjoyed. Solos were rendered by Mr. Mark Kelley of North Cambridge, a member of the nifty quartet, who was assisted at the piano by Mrs. Kelley; piano solos were given by Mrs. William Foley of Wakefield, Mrs. Mary McGrath of this town, and Master Joseph Barrett sang several selections, and several selections were rendered by the Portsmouth Quintet, a group of young men who summer at that city and practice close harmony. These gentlemen included Messrs. John Smith, John F. Cassidy, Charles O'Connell, Frank Collins and Joseph Scott. Jack McCarthy presided at the piano. Fancy dancing was much enjoyed also, the artists including Mr. James Bradley and Mrs. Della McHugh and Mr. John McCarron of Dorchester and Mrs. Harry Short.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Daly were also prevailed upon to give a number, and Mr. Daly sang with his wife at the piano.

General dancing was then enjoyed in the barn, the male guests having been busy during the early part of the evening clearing and sweeping until it was put in spic and span order for the company. An interesting incident connected with the affair was that the same orchestra which provided the music was that which was present in the same house 30 years previous to the day for the wedding of Mr. Daly's sister, Mrs. John McCarron. Generous and substantial refreshments rounded out the evening to a complete and satisfactory ending.

Mr. and Mrs. Daly have made their home in Lynn, where Mrs. Daly was formerly Miss Alice Mahan.

MARK KELLEY DAILY

Tomorrow on Manchester Field the fans will gather at the last game of the season to pay tribute to the greatest of all pitchers which Winchester has ever produced. A real ball player, a good fellow, a fine looking cop. Mark Kelley!

The Committee in charge have left no stone unturned in their efforts to make this a memorial day in baseball, both for the fans and for "Mex," who has struggled valiantly the whole season to keep a ball team in this town which would be worthy of the reputation of teams of former years. He has done this freely and without thought of recompense and it is fitting that the proceeds of this game should be used for a testimonial to his unselfish efforts.

In this game St. Mary's have chosen for their opponents the strong Midget team of Woburn, champions of the Amateur League. The well-known "Kiko" Weaver of Tufts College will pitch for Woburn. A good game is expected. Come and lend your support.

With many others from the First Congregational Church at the time of the new organization Miss Cummings transferred her letter. Till the day of her death she was a faithful member, an exemplary Christian, a Sunday School teacher and a great worker for the cause of missions. Quiet and unassuming her daily life was a wholesome influence upon all with whom she came in contact.

It is to such a sincere Christian woman that the three Winn brothers, Arthur, Harry, and Frank are giving in memory of their aunt a bell to be hung in the tower of the new church. It is the first memorial gift to a charter member who was as regular in attendance at the Sunday and mid-week services as the ringing of a church bell. What more fitting memorial could have been thought of! It is a fine gift, beautiful in spirit and worthy of example. God bless the givers.

AFTERNOON EVENT

FRONT OF NEW BUILDING FELL

About 20 feet of the front of the new building being erected on Main street near the Pike Garage, opposite the Whitney factory, fell out last night, the top cornice of cast stone crashing to the sidewalk along with a large section of the brickwork. It was about 10:40 when officer Regan was attracted by the noise of the crash, and upon investigating he found the sidewalk covered with debris. It was fortunate that no one was passing at the time, for the quantity of brickwork and the heavy cornice stones would have caused serious injury.

HELD FOR ROBBERY AT SCHRUFFT HOME

Winchester residents learned Saturday of the robbery at the home of Mr. William E. Schrafft on Arlington street, which occurred on the 25th of August, when Peter Nurezynski of Brighton was arrested by the police of that place. He is charged with the theft of $2000 worth of silverware, watches and other valuables from the Schrafft residence.

Brighton officers went to the man's home early Saturday morning and arrested him after a struggle, he being turned over to the Winchester police and held in $2500 in the District Court for a hearing next Saturday. It is said that Nurezynski is a first class tool maker and is foreman of a machine shop in Cambridge. The only article comprising the loot taken from the Schrafft house, which had been

W. C. T. U. NOTES

A very interesting and profitable meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held on Friday, Sept. 10 at the home of Mrs. George H. Hamilton. A discussion on the value of the primary followed an article read by Mrs. Anna Dunning. Mrs. Ella A. Gleason read the names of the various candidates for election to our National, State and County offices and urged the members to vote for those whom they know would work for enforcement of the 18th Amendment. The social which followed the meeting took the form of a farewell to Mrs. Hamilton. Mrs. Annie H. Blood and Miss Eugenie M. Elliott, who leave on Sept. 18 for Los Angeles where they will be delegates at the National W. C. T. U. Convention. These ladies are anticipating a pleasant journey going by special train from Chicago. The trip includes side trips to Niagara Falls, the Grand Canyon, Yosemite Valley and San Francisco; returning via Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs and Denver.

DR. BUSTARD TO PREACH

Rev. William W. Bustard, D. D., who is considered one of the most popular preachers in America, and until recently pastor of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church of Cleveland, Ohio, known as the Rockefeller Church, will preach at the Baptist Church next Sunday morning and evening.

It will be remembered that Dr. Bustard preached last August at two of the Union Services held at the Baptist Church, and because of his large congregations, was induced to return Sept. 19.

Dr. Bustard's topic for the morning will be, "God's Solution for World Problems," and in the evening, "The Rarest Man in the World." It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear this gifted preacher. All seats are free.

Miss Esther Page (now Mrs. Niel Jordan) entertained 20 young ladies at a luncheon and bridge at her home on Everett Avenue last Friday.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Co-operation With War Veterans' Committee Formerly Soldiers' Welfare Committee

Responding with zest to our new name, bestowed upon us at the Biennial Conference held at Atlantic City in June, we have passed a busy, interesting and gratifying summer co-operating with the boys at the hospital in West Roxbury.

Throughout the entire summer, members of the committee have made the usual Friday visits to the wards, bringing flowers, fruit, candy, books, cigarettes, entertainment, comfort and good cheer to the lads confined there. Seventy-six boys have been given automobile rides to the country and sea-shore, a pleasure which is universally appreciated.

So many good things have been done, both individually and collectively by the committee that it is difficult to enumerate them all. The following, however, will serve as evidence of the infinite scope of this particular division of our club work.

Upon learning that the wife and four children of one of the disabled men were in need of immediate dental work, this was arranged for and the service was rendered them free of charge.

During one of the visits to the hospital it was learned that one of the men, who was blind, had but a short time to live. He was very lonely and longed to have his wife near him. She resided in Westbury, R. I., and was withheld from visiting him because she had not funds to cover the expense of the journey. Upon investigating the facts and finding them true, the committee immediately secured passage for this woman that she might visit her husband before he passed on. Thus, through the financial assistance of the committee, a lonely heart was eased in its pining.

Having learned that the Providence town line would take the boys on a day trip to Provincetown and back without charge to them, five members of the committee conducted a party of 24 boys on one of these trips, furnishing both dinner and supper for them, a day of days out on the dipping line, away from grey walls and hospital routine.

Through the courtesy of the New England News Company the boys are now having the pleasure of reading the current magazines. Thus, the news of the day is being brought to them while it is still warm.

All through the summer 11 ladies have been busy knitting the yarn which has been donated from many sources and now ten afghan scarves are to be sent to the men at Rutland.

It has been a summer of untiring activity and fruitful remuneration and we are now opening the door to an equally full and engaging winter in this appealing work.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

After the long summer vacation, a full attendance is expected at the first meeting of the fall season, next Wednesday evening, Sept. 22 at 8 o'clock in Lyceum Hall. The following committees will be in charge at this session: refreshments, Past President, Allie E. Davidson, Trustee, Bernice Gorman, Chaplain Katherine Fallon, Marshal Edna Gilchrist, Organist Josephine Power and Guard Frances Dinnien. Entertainment—Fin. Sec., Ethel Horn and Treasurer Annie Hannon. Hospitality—Vice-President Emily Scholl and Guard Mary Fenton.

Most important business will be transacted at this session. The matter of filling a vacant office will be in order. A very interesting proposition from "The Eastern Elk" will be brought before the assembly.

President Anna W. Lechman announces a Halloween party for the October social night. Arrangements to hold same will be made at this meeting and the committee appointed. As this is the real fun-fest of the year every member is expected to do her share towards making it a general goal time. As not much time is to be given to the affair, the committees appointed will meet after the business session.

As Chairman of the Sick Committee, Mrs. Bernice F. Gorman, is enjoying a vacation trip to Canada, members should notify the President of the illness of any sister. Notification of change of address should be sent to Secretary F. Sullivan.

WINCHESTER BOY ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Neff of Ware, announce the engagement of their daughter Gladys, to Mr. Lloyd D. Fernald of Springfield and Winchester. Mr. Fernald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Fernald of Winchester. Miss Neff was graduated from Walnut Hill Preparatory School and from Vassar College in the Class of 1922, of which she was President. Mr. Fernald prepared for college at Middlesex School and Phillips Andover Academy. He was of the Class of 1915 of Cornell University. During the World War, Mr. Fernald served as Ensign in the United States Navy. He is at present engaged in the Investment Banking business in Springfield and is Vice-President of George A. Fernald Company, Boston.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The opening affair on our fall-winter program will take place on next Thursday evening in K. of C. Hall in the form of a charity whist and cake sale. This party is in charge of a very active band of workers under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. H. DeCourcy assisted by Mrs. F. H. Dineen, Mrs. M. C. Ambrose, Mrs. John Fitzgerald, Miss Ruth Ambrose and others. The prizes, large in number, include useful and practical articles and should prove an attraction to whist fans.

This is only a fore-runner of a very busy program. Next month we will direct our attention to our annual Halloween party.

School supplies at Wilson's.

ST. MARY'S BEAT ST. JOHN'S

4-1

Behind the masterly pitching of Mark Kelley, St. Mary's came from behind to win a well-contested game from the strong St. John's nine of North Cambridge. Francis Tansey and "Jimmy" Fitzgerald were back in the fold and their good work both offensively and defensively helped in no small degree, to beat the fast-stepping outfit from North Cambridge. The features of the game were prodigious home runs from the bats of "Jomna" Dolan and Flaherty. The work of Cote, diminutive short-stop of the losers, was the shining light for the losers.

Tomorrow the fans of the Town will have their opportunity to pay their respects to Mark Kelley and incidentally it will be the last chance to see the St. Mary's club in action this season. A good game is assured as the management has secured the Midjerts, champions of Woburn as the attraction. The teams have beaten each other once and tomorrow's game is the "rubber." Mark Kelley will pitch for St. Mary's with Melly catching. "Jimmy" Fitzgerald will be on first, Flaherty on second, "Jomna" Dolan at short, O'Donnell on third and the outfield will have Chamberland in left, Tom Dolan in center and Francis Tansey in right. "Kiko" Weaver will throw them over for the "Champs" from Woburn.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. John Craughwell, an old Winchester boy who has been located in the West for many years, is in town visiting his mother, Mrs. Annie Craughwell of Swanton street.

Not until Wednesday did Edward Bostwick, our well known old-time citizen, realize that the pain he experienced in his shoulder since falling from a bench on Manchester Field last Saturday while the crowd was dodging a foul tip, was a broken collar bone. Edward is still about—and he knows now what the matter is.

Winchester fans, especially in the Highland District, are watching with interest the work of the Cincinnati team in its fight for the National League championship. This interest is due to the presence of Horace Ford, at shortstop. Ford makes his home on Kenyon road during the winter in a house he purchased there a year and a half ago. Horace played with Minneapolis until six weeks ago, when he was purchased by Cincinnati and since that time he has filled the hole that the team had at short. He will probably be declared the most popular player on the team should it win out.

A lost pocketbook containing $50 was found by a local boy. The child took it home to his mother about the time the owner was frantically trying to locate it. Needless to say the owner was glad to get it back; in fact she was so glad that she asked the child's mother for permission to take him to the drug store while she changed a half-dollar "so she could give him a dime!" Honesty is the best policy, but why the dime?

Miss Katherine Valley will enter the Chandler Secretarial School this month.

Thy delegates from Winchester Post, American Legion, to the convention at Salem are Messrs. Robert Hamilton and George D. LeDuc. Mr. Harold Senenbough of Main street has as his guests, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Markey of Montreal.

Marriage intentions have been filed at the office of the Town Clerk during the past week by Mr. Charles Z. Fratus of Stoughton and Miss Mary C. Mooney of this town, and Mr. Frederick V. Wood of this town and Miss Charlotte H. Shaw of Brighton.

Miss Anna McKenzie returned this week after two months spent at West Chop, Martha's Vineyard.

Miss Alice E. Chapman returned to her home on Highland avenue this week after spending the summer at New Found Lake, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stockwell have opened their house on Sheffield west after a pleasant summer spent at Alford.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Denison of Brooks road have returned from Gloucester.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Barr, who have been spending the summer at Clifton, arrived home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forno and Miss S. L. Richardson arrived in town this week after spending the summer at Duxbury.

Miss Florence Crenner of Forest street has returned from a two weeks vacation spent at Prince Edwards Island.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Rundina of Highland avenue are home from West Rindge, N. H. where they have been spending the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wightman are home from Falmouth, where they spent the warm weather.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Boynton of Church street, who have been summering at Duxbury, are home.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Kilder and their daughters Carolyn and Mary of Everett avenue have left for a trip to Yellowstone Park.

Miss Ellen Anderson of Kimball & Earl Company is spending her annual vacation at North Conway, N. H.

HUMAN FLY HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

The one and original human fly has arrived in Winchester. Possibly our "fly committee" will be interested, for he, along with our other flies will be in the centre this Saturday evening and crawl up the side of the Niles Building on Main street. His name is George G. Polley. He is the man who climbed the 37 stories of the Woolworth Building in New York and has made other sensational climbs throughout the country. He gives his exhibition at 6 o'clock. If our fly committee will withhold its active campaign for the extermination of the other flies until after this date and hour, no doubt Mr. Polley's feat will be quite popular hereabouts, and this energetic committee will probably get a few pointers for its file for future reference; the fly being so closely related to the mosquito.

WINCHESTER RESIDENTS MAY SEE ELECTRICAL REFRIGERATOR HERE

Winchester representation of the Kelvinator Electrical Refrigeration will now be in the hands of a local company, instead of a branch of the Boston office, as formerly. This announcement is made this week by the Metropolitan Refrigeration Equipment Co., which will maintain an office and show room at 6 Common street, which was formerly operated by the Kelvinator Boston.

In addition to the Kelvinator, it is announced that the new company will carry a very complete line of ice refrigerators. Among the leading makes of refrigerators in their stock will be the Leonard, McCray, Roal, Seeger and Eddy. In addition to these they will also have the agency for the Jewett.

The new company is incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts with a capital stock of $100,000 authorized, and the main office is at Winchester. Mr. J. A. Deyo, formerly with the Kelvinator is manager and associated with him will be Mr. C. C. Horn, formerly with Kelvinator, Mr. J. W. Lieberman, formerly with the Metropolitan Ice Company, Mr. Ralph L. Lincoln and Miss M. C. Harrigan, Food Chemist.

It is announced that the purpose and aim of the company is to give the people of Winchester a service covering refrigeration in all its forms and carry a stock of refrigeration equipment which cannot be excelled in even the larger cities.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Don't be a solemn shadow in the light of love and light.
The pleasure of doing good is about the only one that will not wear out.

Think with your own brains and listen to others.
No manner trick was ever perpetrated that to unjustly abuse a worthy man.

If you want your flowers appreciated send them today.
If a man has used his hands and failed to succeed, how would it work to try his head.

In proportion as a man is wise will he control his anger.
Being hard up is really trying to catch up, rather of a rough road.

The new Highland School, on Highland avenue and in Winchester Highlands, affords a "high-land" view of Mt. Wachusett, which can be seen very plainly from its portals. Incidentally Mt. Wachusett is exactly due west from Winchester, and if one views it on an exceptionally clear evening, the setting sun silhouettes the hotel marvellously against the sky line. It is hard to get away from the "Highland" end of the new school—as the new scholars will probably demonstrate and proclaim when they attend it.

It has been stated that the sewer problem will probably be settled in the end satisfactorily. The State Board of Health, it is reported, favors the construction of a new trunk sewer, and has not lost sight of its need upon the completion of the new Woburn sewer. The trunk sewer is also advocated by the Metropolitan District Commission. This matter is to be taken up over the coming year. During the controversy over the proposed Woburn sewer, now an established fact, it was felt that nothing should be started regarding the new trunk sewer, the Winchester matter being of prime importance.

taken up next year as a conservative measure. It appears, therefore, that when the new Woburn sewer is completed, or within a short time thereafter, a new trunk sewer will be underway to relieve this district.

With the arrival of another September the kiddies and older boys and girls gather themselves together from a summer of pleasure at sea shore, camp or playground and commence the first big of their 10 months in school.

For two of the groups awaiting the doors' opening the occasion is of real importance. "Tax first day" is of growing moment alike for the little tot entering the primary grades and for his big brother or sister commencing the first year of a high school course. In both instances the careful co-operation of the parents with the school authorities is necessary to ensure the best results from the pupils' efforts.

In the case of the youngster beginning school this co-operation is reasonably certain. The interest in the new experiences through which the child is going is generally sufficient to keep the parents' attention focused upon his progress or lack of progress as measured by that of his playmates. Most children are reasonably sure of getting a good start in the primary grades.

Often those entering upon high school courses are not so fortunate. They are older, and in many instances are allowed to shift rather too much for themselves. The first year of high school is of especial importance in that upon it depends largely the success of the last three years. The freshman to a great extent lays his own foundation for good or "not so good."

Parents should make sure that their offspring understand the new work they are assuming, that they grasp the essentials of the more difficult subjects encountered in the high school course. Visit the teachers, if the children are not making reasonable progress and are reiterating the time worn excuse, "I don't understand." You will, or should find those in the schools glad to discuss your problem and offer advice based on training and impartial observation. Above all do not stand for the indiscriminate changing of courses.

Decide upon that best suited to your child's needs and stick to it. Insist upon regular hours for home study from the start and, given the reasonable intelligence possessed by most children, you will find your particular high school pupil will get along swimmingly and complete his course ready for college or a career of usefulness in the world of business.

The enormous weight of an old boiler being removed from the plant of the Beggs & Cobb Company on Swanton street caused the truck on which it was loaded to break through soft ground in the yard Monday. Considerable work and the greater part of the day was spent in getting the truck and its load back on hard ground again.

WAYS THAT ARE DIFFERENT IN PARIS

Americans recently have been reminded on high authority that they will find many things that are different in Paris, and that it is the part of courtesy, as well as common sense, to accept the Parisian ways of doing things when one is in Paris.

There is no doubt about the difference in many customs, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Sometimes the Parisian way seems most welcome, at other times it seems strange, but in either event, one has not far to look to find there is a reason back of every custom.

A Novel Meal Check Device
At times the Parisian seems to have outdone his American friends in efficiency. For example there is the billing device of some of the larger sidewalk cafes. Each plate and cup bears a price mark—50 centimes, one franc, and so forth—and the refreshments are served in containers bearing the proper cost mark. If a second cup of chocolate is ordered, the empty cup will be set to one side, and another cup bearing the first mark served.

When the customer is ready to pay he does not have to depend on the memory of the waiter, or scan a bill of fare, nor does the waiter have to juggle with checks. The addition of the empty containers is obviously the amount of his bill.

In contrast is the rather cumbersome method of hooking a seat in a Paris theater. In some theaters, at least, one must first purchase the right to sit in a certain part of the house—the orchestra, balcony, or a box. This coupon then must be taken to another desk to have a seat assigned. Even if one buys a designated seat, this exchange always is necessary.

Finding a Theater Seat

The patron next turns to a head usher, who leads him to the program seller and after he has purchased a program, a custom which also prevails in English theaters, he encounters the peculiar Parisian practice of having an usher charge to show him to a seat. And there is little hope of his finding his own seat because seats are identified only by numbers, not by rows which are lettered, and then numbered by rows.

The American, impatient at his circuitous progress to his seat, and having reached into his pocket three or four times so far, is apt to become annoyed and conclude he is being overcharged. This often is his feeling even when he was buying a seat which, at an exchange rate of about three cents for the franc, cost him less than $2, even adding in the price of program, the price of being shown to his seat, and the 50 centimes collected if he went to a lavatory between the acts.

Theater Prices Very Low

This price is for the best orchestra seat in the best theaters in Paris, when comparable locations would have cost him $4 or $5 in any New York theater, even without the speculators' tax which he would have to pay there for popular shows.

And the Parisians have reasons for each of the charges; for there is not one, but there are several taxes, levied on theater seats and these vary with the locations in the house.

Several features of the best Parisian theaters, however, must appeal to even the casual visitor. One is the large amount of standing room provided for and sold at a low price, so that anyone who is alone, wishes to remain only an hour, or is skeptical about the merits of a show, may go in for a short time, and go on his way without having expended the full price of a seat. Another feature which adds to the enjoyment of Paris theater attendance is the large promenade and refreshment rooms which permit a stroll between acts and make it possible to sit down at a table and enjoy a beverage or a smoke, or to walk about and do some "window shopping" at the many displays and exhibitions which merchants have contracted for in these super-lobbies. The length of intermission, of course, is much longer than those in American theaters, frequently being from 20 to 30 minutes.

The Search for Soap

Another difficulty which the visitor in Paris might as well make up his mind to accept is that his hotel room, no matter what the price, nor how elegantly it may be furnished and provided with every other comfort, is not going to have any soap. One explanation of this lack may be in the fact that all toilet articles are expensive, being heavily taxed; a more plausible one, in view of the fact that good Paris hotels stop at no expense or pains for their guests' comfort, is that the Parisian regards the soap he uses much as we do a toothbrush, as a peculiarly personal and individual thing, not to be provided by someone else.

Ice is scarce in Paris, as it is in England. In neither London nor Paris is the climate such that cold drinks are necessary to comfort; anyway the Europeans may be right in their belief that chilled drinks impede the processes of digestion. Many American doctors concur; and nobody will argue with the French about astro-nomic topics.

File Case for Napkins

It is almost unnecessary to inquire, "Where is a good place to eat in Paris?" One can hardly go wrong if he visits a Paris cafe, serving Parisians, and having the earmarks of a reasonably good establishment. Here again the Parisian habit, which prevails all over Europe, of allocating small charges which we simply sum up in "overhead" may give rise to misunderstanding. At the price of the franc in recent months one may eat in any French hotel or cafe, which is not one of the few places especially designed to cater to "foreigners," a beautiful meal, prepared by the world's best chefs, at a price which seems ridiculously low. At French cafes which are world-famous for their cuisine it is hard for one to spend more than the equivalent of a dollar for a meal. Yet the charges on the bill, included in that amount, for cover, service and even for napkin, being unexpected, loom large in the visitor's mind.

The extreme thrift of the French is nowhere better illustrated than in some of the smaller cafes where regular patrons file their napkins in a sort of rack, suggestive of the rows of shaving mugs in our old-time barber shops, and may once a week for the laundry of that bit of linen.

On a street car in Paris one pays only for the distance he wishes to ride. This is done by zoning the routes, and requires considerable bookkeeping on the part of the conductor, and also obliges the passenger to keep his receipt to be shown on demand, if he remains on the car to another zone.

Where Taxi Troubles Arise

Few visitors patronize street cars; the taxis are too convenient and too cheap. The tariffs are ridiculously low. Here again, however, arise misunderstandings because, after 11 o'clock at night taxi drivers can put down their white metal flag (which ordinarily means that the taxi is empty and is required to accept any fare at the regular tariff) and may charge double fare. Unfortunately the meters do not register the excess fare, the driver usually cannot speak enough English to explain the reason for asking twice as much as the meter indicates, and there ensue frequent arguments.

No one can be in Paris long without being impressed by the courtesy of the policemen; Americans, however, may fail to note, or noting the fact they may rebel at the custom, which is to touch one's hat to a policeman when asking him a question. Now the Frenchman, who is one of the most liberty-loving and independent persons in the world, sees nothing demeaning in that practice. And anyone who does it receives a salute and a bow in return which more than atones for his pains.

A visitor in Paris cannot help wondering what would happen if the policemen, public officials, shop keepers, and many pedestrians on the downtown streets of any American city were some month suddenly to be accosted all day long by foreigners who either addressed them in a strange tongue or bombarded them with questions in lame efforts to speak their own language. But that is what occurs in all the boulevards and principal streets of Paris during the heavy tourist seasons; and the courtesy with which the Parisian official or layman tries to understand and, understanding, the trouble he takes to give information or directions, is one of the finest evidences of his innate courtesy.

CARRARA TO SUPPLY CROSSES FOR AMERICAN SOLDIER DEAD IN FRANCE

White Carrara marble is reported chosen for the permanent crosses to mark the graves of American soldiers in France.

Civilizations stretching back to the centuries before the birth of Christ have used this marble, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Carrara marble served to honor pagan gods before the Christian Dity. As the deeds of American legions will be written in Carrara, so were the deeds of Rome's legions.

A 2000-Year-Old Description
It is rare that geographical description can be used 2000 years after it was written but there is one of the Carrara that stands the test:

Of these Luna is a city and harbor; it is named by the Greeks the harbor and city of Sele (modern Marina di Carrara, port of Carrara). The city is not large, but the harbor is very fine and special containing in itself numerous harbors, all of them deep near the shore; it is, in fact, an arsenal worthy of a nation holding dominion for a long time over so vast a sea. The harbor is surrounded by lofty mountains from whence you may view the sea and Sardinia and a great part of the coast on either side. Here are quarries of marble, both white and marked with green, so numerous and large as to furnish tablets and columns of one block; and most of the material for the fine works, both in Rome and other cities, is furnished from hence. The transport of the marble is easy, as the quarries lie near the sea.

That was written by Strabo, Greek historian, a few years before the birth of Christ.

Leonardo Originated Cutting Method

Ships will call at the same harbor to bring away the white marble crosses for the American graves in France. The marble will come down from the lavender-tinted Carrara Mountains, scalloped against a blue Italian sky, via the leveled course of the Strada Ferrata. It will be cut out of quarries (there are more than 400 in the district) that probably served the Romans and the Medici and the Venetians before America was discovered. Indeed, the method of cutting marble in the quarries is supposed to have originated with Leonardo da Vinci.

Little needs to be added to Strabo's description. The visitor first sees the great mounds of marble chips as dustlike whitewash smeared on the sides of the steep ravines. The three ravines holding most of the quarries are tributary to Carrara, a city of 25,000 quarrymen, quarrymen's wives and children, and crippled quarrymen. Carrara is dusty with dust of precious marble. It hums to the tune of 75 marble cutting factories. The noise of chip, chip, chip is ever in the air. In Carrara even the poorest houses have chaste white marble lintels and steps. The marble railway takes passengers free up the ravines where great white gashes, memorialize marble even as marble statues later memorialize men. Somewhere a whistle blows. A pause. Then a dull explosion. Great blocks are swung out by booms to waiting wooden skids for a ride down to the railroad, and down to the sea.

Planned Mountain Memorial

Carrara came near being the site of an enormous carving similar in concept to the Stone Mountain Memorial in Georgia which will carry the figures of Lee, Jackson, and other southern leaders. The sculptor who

Burned Up Dollars

"When the old-timers chopped down walnut and oak and oak trees to feed the hordes and the hordes it never occurred to them that it was like burning up dollars. Some persons are almost as improvident with their trees today. It's high time that we get busy restoring the forests to make amends for our thoughtlessness. We owe it to those who will follow us."

It has been noted, says the writer of the above, that tourists seem to be more enthusiastic over the trees they encounter than any other feature. Especially on hot and dusty days, when the earth appears almost baked, does the traveler welcome the cooling shade he finds in passing through some old forest from which the fabled ax has been withheld.

Artificial Emerald

A crude method of making an emerald is to cut two pieces of crystal with many facets and leave a small flat cavity between them. This cavity is then filled with a green liquid. The two crystals are sealed together and the liquid sealed in between them. The effect is brilliant and deep color. Either imitation, however, can be detected at a glance by submerging them in a certain oil and holding them against the light. All synthetic stones, no matter how excellent, have telltale marks. The modern apparatus for testing the more deceptive specimens is complicated but reliable.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Last night in Lyceum Hall the Court held the most successful whist which it has so far conducted. Mrs. Minnie O'Connor, chairman, and Miss Katharine O'Connor, assistant chairman, were assisted by the following Sisters: Kelley, McGowan, Murray, Fenton, Young, Power, McDonnell, McCue, McLaughlin and Cassidy. The proceeds of this party are to be turned over to the Charitable Committee to aid in the work of the Christmas fund.

Many of the Court members will be on hand tomorrow at Manchester Field when tribute is being paid to pitcher Mark Kelley of St. Mary's team. Sister Mary Kelley, trustee of our Court, will have the seat of honor in the grand stand as she is the mother of the local celebrity.

Truster Brown, together with Mr. Brown and their three girls, will spend the next week-end on a motor trip through the White Mountains. Their plans include a visit to South Effingham, N. H., Mr. Brown's birthplace and boyhood home.

Organist Mabel M. Coty has been confined to her home this past week with a severe cold.

The October plans of the Court include a clam-bake at Plum Island, following a trip by motor launch up the Ipswich river. Details of this outing will be completed at the first business meeting in October.

Sisters Ethel Keen and Marie Lynch are enjoying a week's visit to New York City.

The congratulations of the Court have been extended to Sister Maria Coty upon the advent of a new baby granddaughter, born Thursday morning at the Winchester Hospital.

CYRENAICA: WHERE ITALY TAKES IT TURN

Another revolt has been quelled in North Africa, according to news from Rome. Senussi tribesmen and an Italian detachment battled at a dry creek bed deep in Cyrenaica.

Many nations have endeavored to put the Cyrenians in their place, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., that place being, of course, in control of a re-organized power.

The list begins with Greece in 700 B. C., and A. D., and is jeweled with such emperors as Rome, the Moors, and preceding Italy, came Turkey. But no matter what the title line, the text of every chapter in Cyrenaica's history, has the word "revolt" sprinkled liberally through the pages.

The Gibson Headland
Perhaps it is because there are few schools that the natives never learn to read the treaties solemnly signed in Paris, Vienna or elsewhere which have given Cyrenaica to this nation or to that. Or it may be that Nature leads the revolt. Possible the nation which can oppose dom of the blaz-is that news of ral plateau is not drum against which the affair was staged is one to make a civilized audience sit up and take interest.

Cyrenaica can be called a Gibson headland of North Africa. The round low of it facing across the blue Mediterranean toward Greece is surmounted by the pompous rharacteristic of the Gibson girl in the form of a range of limestone hills. They rise from the shore almost as steeply as a cliff and then slope away toward the back. Benghazi, port on the west, and Sidi Barrani on the Egyptian border, are in the position of temples to the headland. Cyrenaica runs inland as far as British Libya, covering an area almost as large as Texas. The British say that British Libya runs as far north as Cyrenaica. Exact location of the border is a secret whispered by the roving sands of the Sahara and understood by not more than a few very close-mouth Arabs.

Nevertheless great men have been born in Cyrenaica. When civilization was in swaddling clothes the Greeks knew the limestone ridge as the Gardens of Hesperides. From ancient Cyrene, a city of 100,000, up on the ridge amid groves and grass, came poets, and philosophers and statesmen to contribute to the glory that was Greece. Cyrene today houses a few dirty Bedouin families in the rifed tombs of the largest and finest graveyard in the world preserved from the wreck of the Greek era. Elevea Months of Summer—One of Spring

Even back on the central plateau which drops off to a line of salt marsh oases and then merges with the desert, there are remnants of a dead civilization. One comes upon broken bits of pottery and other mystifying relics in a region which is blasted and blistered by the red sun for eleven months of the year. The 12th month is the brief season after the January rains. Every dried shrub miraculously produces olive green leaves. The magic wand of water recreates grass from under the bushes whose branches have protected the grass roots. Beautiful flowers carpet the plain. Larks sing and robins down from Europe for the season, hop blithely about. Spring is just as wonderful in a land that has no winter.

Thermos Bottles of the Desert

Nothing meets the eye on the level Cyrenaican plain except the little humps of well mounds. The North African well or "bir" is such an important institution from Tangier to Palestine that it deserves a description. Upon approaching one of these well mounds, it becomes apparent that the dirt pile of eight to 10 feet high is the pivot for a hinge of two long and low rock wall arms. These converging arms stretch up a rock slope which has a slight rise. In the peak of the V is a small black hole 18 inches across which is the "bir." When the scanty rain comes it drains between the water walls to the well. To look down into the hole is to find a chamber widening like a bottle to a diameter of about 15 feet and 12 feet deep. Depending on the season and the frequency of travelers, the "bir" will contain a quantity of sweet, cool water.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

WIZARD OF ELECTRICITY PREDICTED GAS REFRIGERATION

The great Steinmetz, over two years ago, stated that the refrigerator of the future would be gas fired. Scientific developments have borne out this prophecy, and the increasing demand for automatic refrigeration for both domestic and commercial use proves the practicability of gas cold.

There are those of us who recall the days of the spring house where fresh food was kept cool in a shaded stream; there are others who remember the crock wrapped with a damp cloth reaching down to a pan of water; and we all know the more recent ice box. But each "refrigerator" has in turn been supplanted by improved methods, until at last gas refrigeration has been developed as the perfect means of adequate, efficient, dependable, wholesome preservation of food at a minimum cost. And now, so the refrigeration engineers tell us, we may expect soon to see a gas refrigerator in every modern home just as there is a gas range in every modern home. Housewives have discovered that no matter whether it's done with heat or cold—you can do it better with gas.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

The past week was a particularly active one at the boat club, as a dance was given Friday evening, at which there was a good attendance, and on Saturday afternoon an informal regatta was held, the events taking place in front of the club house. The regatta was very well attended and at least 18 of the Winchester club members entered into the water sports. Medford, however, did not enter. The first event was the tail-end race, in which George Cummings led the way across the finish line. James Fitch followed Cummings closely for second place, and Kenneth Pratt placed in number three position.

In the tandem-single blades race, Edward Sandberg and Winthrop Palmer were the winners. Pratt and Breen were second and the Cummings-Stewart team third. Canvas canoes were used in this event and it was run over a quarter mile course.

Next came the girls' single-blades race, which was the first of its kind run in a Winchester regatta in many years. In this, Miss Mary Brown finished first, Miss Nancy Wilson was second, and Miss Marian Ladd, third. All three of the contestants are skilled canoeists, but Miss Brown proved to be the best racer crossing the finish line with a comfortable lead. Miss Wilson was very much in the race at all times, as was Miss Ladd. In future regattas, this event is sure to be included as it is certain that Winchester has a few very able girl paddlers.

In the jumping, or standing gun-wale race, Kenneth Pratt was the victor. Jim Fitch drew second place and Lars Sandberg, third. Pratt got away to a poor start, but gained in leaps and bounds as he journeyed over the course, finally nosing Fitch out of what seemed a sure win.

The hand paddle race was won by Edward Sandberg and Winthrop Palmer. George Cummings and Leslie Stewart second and Miss Nancy Wilson and Jim Fitch, third. Miss Wilson and Jim Fitch have proven quite successful in this race before, having secured second place at a meet held by the Medford club in August.

The mixed tandem, quarter mile race followed, Miss Wilson and Edward Sandberg winning. Miss Ladd and Kenneth Pratt were second and Miss Mary Brown and Mr. Breen, third. The mixed tandems is another race to be run in future regattas as it proved to be a popular entry.

The special novelty race was a new event altogether. Each team consisted of two men. A plank was placed across the middle of each canoe, the paddlers sitting on the out-boards as best they could. No immersions resulted but many near disasters were reported. If one of a team had lost his balance, his team mate would have joined him in a swim. Fitch and Court won this event, while the Cummings-Stewart and E. Sandberg-Palmer teams, finished second and third respectively. The hurry-scurry race, consisted of swimming from the club float to the canoes which were moored out 50 yards, picking out a boat and paddling in. This race calls for swimming ability as well as paddling skill. Jim Fitch was first, Dan Barnard, second and Win Palmer, third.

Following this came a club four race. Instead of the usual cedar racing shells, ordinary canvas canoes were used. The paddlers found themselves in pretty cramped quarters and with overcrowded boats, no great speed was attained. The crews made up of E. Sandberg, Hovey, L. Sandberg and Geo. Cummings, won by a very narrow margin over Palmer, Fitch, Stewart and Pratt. The third crew consisted of Barnard, Gardner, Hawley and Randlett.

The tilting tournament wound up the afternoon of water sports. In the first heat, Gardner, tilter, and Hawley, paddler won over Stewart, tilter and Cummings, paddler, in one round or meeting. The second heat was speedily captured by Lars Sandberg, tilter, and Pratt, paddler over Court, tilter and Hovey, paddler. The finals was of longer duration and after considerable jockeying, Lars Sandberg exhibited some "nifty" foot-work. His opponent, Harry Gardner went overboard. Sandberg lost his balance at the same time, but succeeded in jumping into Gardner's boat, thus escaping a ducking and drawing a win for the Sandberg-Pratt team.

Ex-President Eastwick was judge at the finish line of the races. Fred Bates, former club member, clerk of the course and Gleason Buckley, starter.

The weather was ideal for the meet and it was a success from start to finish.

BOGOSLOF ISLAND: WHERE THE WORLD IS IN THE MAKING

Bogoslof Island, in the Aleutian chain off Alaska's mainland, has been in eruption again.

A Japanese ship sighted Bogoslof in volcanic action and radioed St. Paul Island of the Pribilofs, where the United States government maintains a guard over the fur seal herds. St. Paul radioed Cordova, Alaska, a thousand miles farther east and Cordova telegraphed the United States.

"Jack in the Box" is the nickname of this curious volcanic island which is up one day and down the next, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., on Bogoslof Island. Bogoslof is just north and west of Dutch Harbor which, two years ago, was a vital air port for the American Army "round the world" flyers. It is not safe to give the dimensions of Bogoslof Island. Tomorrow they may be different. Probably the recent eruption has made all current information out-of-date.

Up From the Ocean Bottom Bogoslof takes its name from a Russian admiral who discovered it in 1790. At that time it was but one island, now called Castle Island. In 1886 Bogoslof's "Jack in the Box" stunts began to be known. A new companion to Castle Island appeared which was called Fire Island. At first the two were connected but when American Navy officers visited the place in 1900 the land "hyphen" had sunk. Observations at that time showed that Bogoslof was really a deep sea volcano. Less than four miles away the ocean is 6000 feet deep.

A communication to the National Geographic Society in 1909 reported that four years earlier a new peak on Bogoslof appeared between the two recorded.

This peak was surveyed by the officers from the United States Revenue cutter and was named Perry Peak, says the communication. During the winter of 1906 another peak appeared, absorbing about half of Perry Peak and making the island one. Officers of the Cutter McCulloch surveyed this peak, which was 2000 feet through and 495 feet high, and named it McCulloch Peak.

Names Can't Keep Up With Bogoslof

Naming natural features on Bogoslof Island has its hazards. The world is in the making here faster, probably, than any other spot on the globe. Name branders must work fast to keep up with the "Jack in the Box."

McCulloch Peak disappeared in 1907, leaving a fine harbor. About Sept. 1 of the same year, Bogoslof exploded, it is thought. A heavy cloud hung over it and ashes were sprinkled on Iluliuk, 60 miles away. The next visitors found the island much changed. The peak memorial to the Cutter Perry had disappeared. The harbor was closed and there were various other radical changes in the map of Bogoslof.

Up to the present time progress of natural events in Bogoslof has been too rapid to invite colonization or even habitation. While the "Jack in the Box" keeps its head above water, it is United States property as a part of Alaskan territory.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

In a home not afar from Winchester a grandmother told the Spectator of her grandfather. He was a carpenter, and well known for his reluctance to wear a hat. On days uncomfortably cool and on days of such heat that sunstroke was highly probable, he went bareheaded to his work. As he lived to be 83, the exposure does not seem to have done him any harm. But neither does it offset the well-proven fact that many men who braved the tropic sun uncovered have paid dearly for it. All these unusual stories amount to is that they show a more than common resisting power. They do not show that the normal safeguards of life are unwise.

Within an hour's ride of Winchester the Spectator has seen a tall farmer-hand who seemed to barely recognize what most Winchesterites would count as serious annoyances. One scorching day he came in from the field, observing that the flies were troublesome. He had been stung several times by bees or yellow-jackets. While he felt an unpleasant sensation he did not feel it as one of more sensitive organization would have done. The Spectator had known a man who had repeatedly gone on voyages and never had the least touch of seasickness. He had not been trained to the sea, nor had he lived near it, yet no seaman could have more enjoyed what we call rough weather. Salt air gave him an appetite, and no pitching or rolling lessened it. It is quite as true that mental and more tests which are severe to the bulk of the race offer little difficulty to some of unusual type.

Alighting from a bus a Winchester young woman complained that the motion always caused her nausea. How rarely we hear this now, and yet there was a time when many persons dreaded a ride in a steam car or even in a wagon. The Spectator has known children to whom a trip to Boston was a trial, but what Winchesterite has not seen children who could spend an afternoon on the merry-go-round?

Here was a case well attested. A Winchester young man delighted in whatever work bore on an automobile. Several cars were damaged, and in the extreme heat of the summer just closing, work crowded on him. Night and day for nearly a week he was toiling until it seemed that human strength could not bear any more. He said that he was interested in the work, and did not pay much attention to the heat and fatigue.

The Spectator

RESUMPTION OF GLORY LOST

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Our friends who low in dust now lie,
On the heavens once bent their eyes,
The spangled vault admiring gazed,
And all its gorgeous beauty praised;
Yes, living friends, this self-same might
Have marked the glory of human sight;
Certain, in this that a pleasure dwells,
Which half the grief of absence quells.
Kind nature yields an influence
Which gently soothes the grateful sense,
Calms raging passion, soft to rest,
Enkindles love within the breast;
And leads man's soul brought to praise
The Almighty God whom Nature's self obeys.
So calm, so fair, in silver light
It seems a paradisaic night,
And you same stars on Eden shore
Which wake the sigh for glory gone
Of this dark earth, by Sin defiled,
And doomed full soon to pass away
A vale of tears, a desert wild
Such passing loveliness displays;
O, what is heaven, the region where Nor sin, nor sorrow e'er appear
Where, on life's sea no longer tossed Man shall resume his glory lost.
—Eugene Bertram Willard

No More Rejection Slips

At last I have discovered the secret. After all these years of heart-breaking, back-breaking, almost fruitless toil to land my manuscripts in print I see ahead the road in success. I have discovered a method of eliminating the rejection slip.

I do not assume all the credit myself. I cannot truthfully say that I am entirely a self-made man. Many are the conscientious editors whose wise words have pointed out the way. Yet it has been my ready comprehension of basic truths, my ability to read between lines, that has brought it all about, and I modestly take myself for all I am worth.

Yes, at last I have discovered the secret, the true method of eliminating the rejection slip. I am going to stop writing.—Kansas City Times.

GIFTED STUDENTS ENJOY YEAR OF FOREIGN STUDY

Nine specially qualified juniors working for their degrees in American colleges were sent out last fall for a year of study in colleges and universities in England, France, Germany, and Spain by the committee on foreign study and travel of the American Council on Education. Gifts by a group of interested persons made possible scholarships of $1000 each. So satisfactory has been the plan that it has been decided to award at least seven scholarships this year. The committee also encourages individual students to go abroad at their own expense for a year of study, and American institutions are urged to make provision for giving a year of foreign study and travel to specially promising students unable to finance themselves. A student to be eligible for the committee's scholarship must be not less than 18 years of age, must have been in residence at an American institution approved by the council, and must expect to return to America for the fourth year to take the degree. There are no limitations as to the country or institution, or the field of study that may be chosen.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Causal Number in Winchester Over Week-End

Winchester experienced the customary number of week-end automobile accidents, one man being injured so that he was taken to a doctor and several ladies being treated by a physician at the police station. Several of the accidents were of a minor nature, resulting in bent mudguards and broken glass, but others left the cars badly wrecked.

On Friday evening a Cadillac car owned by Mrs. Mabelle Blackler of Highland avenue, was in a collision with a Studebaker driven by Anthony V. Bruno of Chester street while standing on Swanton street. No one was injured in the collision, both cars receiving bent fenders.

On Friday afternoon a Hudson coach operated by Margaret P. McCauley of Woburn, traveling into Common street from Church street, collided with a Ford truck driven by Daniel Callahan of Washington street who was traveling down Church street. He was accompanied by several children and was taken to Dr. Bennett and treated for bruises and abrasions. The truck was badly damaged and the coach had a bent left front fender.

It was on Friday night that a truck owned by the Lowell Bleachery ripped off an electric light on a power line on Main street, opposite the Metropolitan Garage, the rope of the load falling to go under it.

At 5 o'clock Saturday evening a bad smash occurred at the junction of Highland avenue and Main street when an Essex coach traveling north on Main street and a Ford sedan going down Highland avenue failed to make negotiations to pass. Tommy Caunani of Woburn was driving the coach, and he had five ladies with him. They were taken to the police station and treated by Dr. Quinn, none being seriously injured. The Ford was driven by Moses A. Nunez of Stoneham. Both cars were badly damaged.

Early Sunday morning two other cars failed to pass each other in Cambridge street and were badly wrecked. This accident occurred near Gullin's filling station. One car was a Durant driven by Adeland Beland of Boston and the other a Cleveland driven by William E. Pendergast of Charlestown. One of the cars had to be towed away, and the other, while running, was in bad shape. Fortunately, no one was injured in this smash.

Shortly before 12 o'clock Saturday night a Ford sedan driven by Clement R. Ounada of Wilmington was in a collision in the center with a Dodge touring car driven by Edward R. Bateman of Washington street. Bateman was turning into Mt. Vernon street when the accident occurred. Both cars had damaged running gear.

ON A EUROPEAN SLEEPER

Life on a Continental "sleeper" is described in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The bulletin is one of a series dealing with current European travel.

French sleeping cars are different from the usual sleepers in America, although they have some things in common with the most recent American compartment coaches, says the bulletin. An aisle extends down one side of the car, about the length of an American coach, and from this aisle doors open into the compartments. The latter have a floor plan somewhat like that of a grand piano; they are narrow at the entrance door, and flare to a greater width at the other side of the car. In the scallop is a door leading to a small lavatory which is sandwiched between two adjoining compartments and is shared by their occupants. An ingenious device bolts both the lavatory doors at once, insuring privacy. You are almost ready to believe that the electrical designer sought to play a joke on the passengers. Switches are cleverly hidden so that they seem a part of the decorations. You poke about until you are lucky enough to touch them by accident.

Tricked Out With "Gadgets" In the compartments two bunks may be prepared, a lower and an upper, placed across the train, not in the direction of travel as in America. No curtains are used and you necessarily share the little room rather intimately with whomever the other ticket has been sold to. Ticket agents must, of course, be exceedingly careful in their sales. There can be no haphazard selling of uppers and lowers to men and women as in America.

Continental sleeping cars are filled to overflowing with "gadgets," particularly the upper berth, by way, perhaps, of consolation for loss of the lower. Little nests of nickled hooks fold out of each other fanwise so that you may hang every garment you possess on a separate hook, and still have racks and nets and hammocks besides. The lower berth even has a special little sloping plush rest and hook for your watch so that you may hang it open beside your head. From the ceiling a broad web strap extends down to the side of the upper berth at the middle to keep its occupant from rolling out—the original, no doubt, of the similar devices now being introduced into America.

Complete Sleeper Etiquette The generally accepted custom at bed time is for the holder of the lower berth to surrender the compartment to his fellow traveler until the latter retires, and then to retire himself. In the morning the order is reversed; the occupant of the lower rises first unless destinations differ and the upper traveler must leave the train first. There are no smoking rooms on Continental sleepers. In the corridor, held against the outer wall by a spring, are hinged seats which may be lowered. Here one sits and smokes if he likes, while his compartment companion dresses; and at other times if he prefers the scenery on the corridor side of the train. When lowered, unfortunately, these seats pretty well block the aisle, so that you must hop up whenever passengers or train attendants wish to pass.

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. ## In Miami—or Winnipeg

Whether it be just a little heat for a little while, in the chill damp days of Fall or Spring—or consistent heat for days at a stretch in coldest Winter—Klean-Heet gives exactly the right amount—at the right time.

This is the Klean-Heet ideal—and this is its achievement!

For the Klean-Heet burner is instantly efficient! Heat is needed. In a moment Klean-Heet is working—automatically—at full efficiency. The need satisfied, Klean-Heet rests. It is not strange therefore, that Klean-Heet should be most economical of fuel!

Klean-Heet is not an adaptation of the industrial oil burner. It is "engineered to a standard"—to do one task perfectly—to heat homes!

For over six years, Klean-Heet has performed that task—unfailingly—economically. It is because of this record of performance in thousands of homes—under every test of climate and season—that Klean-Heet is so dominantly the choice of the well informed.

DINING ON A EUROPEAN TRAIN

The striking differences between the continental dining car and that of the United States are brought out in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The French dining car is divided into two compartments, one for smokers and one for non-smokers, says the bulletin. In some of the cars the aisle is in the center with tables on each side, seating four diners. In others the aisle is slightly to one side of the middle, the tables on one side seating six and on the other, two. There is no a la carte service. The waiters know exactly what you are going to have, and you are hardly seated before they begin a rapid distribution of the food. The service strikes you as extremely efficient, but it is amazingly efficient; and if you can forgive the food's being virtually flung at you (as many rant) you will admit that it is usually excellent in both quality and preparation.

Bottles, Bottles, Everywhere

When you take your seat your table looks like the annex to a bar. On it will be a little forest of bottles; a cheap sour wine, a more expensive dry wine, wines half-dry, and sweet, red wines and white wines, beer, perhaps a bottle of champagne, and one of mineral water. If one of these will be of course in extra on the bill. Down the aisle hustles the car's summelier, custodian of the bottled goods, pausing expectantly at each table. If a diner indicates a bottle, whether of wine or water, he quickly lifts it, draws the cork, and has the upper bottle held before the patron in the twinkling of an eye. He carefully deposits the cork in a little basket or plate; for through the corks the government checks up on the beverage sales and collects its tax. The waiter not ordered at a table are nimble.

In front of each diner is a stack of three or four plates, another factor in continental dining car service which surprises the American. Into the top plate goes the food of the first course. When you have finished, this used plate is whisked away almost magically by an attendant who seems barely to pause at your table. And the second plate has hardly been exposed when a waiter, hard on the heels of the plate-smasher, deposits on its the food of the second course. This procedure continues until the last plate and the last course appear almost simultaneously. The waiters do find time, however—how they know how—to offer you second helpings of nearly every course.

Meet the French "Ice Cream Carver" When the bottom plate comes into view you usually find a waiter standing beside you with a large pyramid of ice cream on a platter held in one hand, while the other clutches a heavy carving knife. Your plate is lifted by a hand (you don't know which one), and poised near the pyramid; down swishes the knife, and a slice of ice cream falls into the exact mathematical center of your plate. Before you can figure it out a slab of identical thickness has fallen into your neighbor's plate, and you get a confused idea of slices falling all about you. If there is any more expert and expeditious handler of food than that unexpected figure, the French "Ice Cream Carver," the writer has yet to make his acquaintance.

After the dessert is consumed, coffee is offered you. You pay several francs extra for this. On the heels of the coffee vendor the summelier appears once more, this time bearing a sheaf of liquor bottles—cognac, Benedictine, Chartreuse—and soliciting your purchase of a thimbleful. Machine-like Service—But You Are Fed

Last comes the cashier with a tin box of change and a pad of bill forms. He scribbles out your bill hurriedly, his eyes scanning your table for empty bottles, coffee cups, and liquor glasses, his evidence for extra charges. On each bill he sticks the inevitable French revenue tax stamps, for which you also pay.

Your bill paid, you find yourself rushing maily back to your compartment, for the habit of the last three-quarters of an hour hangs on. Europe may civilize it wishes at the quick lunch counter of America, but the French dining car actually paces its patrons to utmost speed. It feeds an amazing number of people without a hitch; so perhaps the machine-like service justifies itself.

"TOY HORN" STARTS ALL EUROPEAN TRAINS

The familiar "All aboard" of American railway conductors and any suggestion of a vocal equivalent is lacking on European trains, says a communication to the National Geographic Society from a recent traveler on the Continent, issued as a bulletin of the Society.

You may travel for weeks, says the writer, before you realize that such starting of your train from a station is preceded by the faint little half-hearted toot of a horn. Then you grow to listen for it and to marvel at its impotent sound, almost lost among other noises, and its potent results.

Signaling Instrument Elusive When I learned of the horn's existence I set out on a still hunt for it; but it always managed to evade me. If I looked on the left of the train it sounded on the right; if I searched at the front, it sounded at the rear. It seemed almost a fairy trumpet.

Then one day on a slow-moving accommodation train in Italy I saw it. The conductor, or whatever he may be called, was walking along the platform of a drab way-station in Istria, jauntily swinging what at first I took to be a shiny little swagger stick. Then I realized that it was the horn, the device that starts thousands of trains in Europe each day. I halted to have a closer look at it; but its custodian raised it to his lips, blew a stolid blast, and disappeared through an open door as the train, responding to the magic sound, got under way.

Used in Various Countries It was the only view of such a horn I had in more than a month. But the same type of instrument is used in the various countries; for the same weak little signal comes to your ears, whether you are in France, Italy, Austria or England.

The horn itself is apparently of brass, is about eight inches long, is slightly curved, like an old-fashioned hunting horn, and has a somewhat flattened oval cross-section. The sound it produces is like nothing so much as the toot of a child's cheap toy horn. It has been battered about and has lost its pristine "beauty" of note.

"Magi" Buried at Cologne

The name "City of the Three Kings" is sometimes given to the city of Cologne, Germany, because it is the reputed burial place of the "Three Kings," "Magi" or "Wise Men," who came to Bethlehem to offer gifts to the infant Jesus. According to the legend, their bones were brought from Milan to Cologne by the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa in 1162, and given to the archbishop of Cologne. The skulls of these "Magi," crowned with diamonds, with their names (Balthazar, Gaspar and Melchior) inscribed in rubies, are shown to visitors in the cathedral.

Candidate Laraway staged a monster automobile parade in town on the eve before the primaries, many automobiles, reported by some to reach 100 in number, and decorated with banners advertising his candidacy, traveling over the principal streets. During the drive red fire was plentifully used, and few were left unaware of the fact that he was running for office.

Contrary to rumors which have circulated, no steps have been taken, either by the town or milliners, to purchase the corner at the road crossing which has recently been cleared of wooden buildings. Presumably the price, said to be $75,000 is too high. It is reported that the reason why further work has not been done on the lot towards erecting the nine-story block of stores which is reported to be built there, is because the contractors are waiting the arrival of a steam shovel.

WINCHESTER COUPLE FIGURE IN ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Horace K. Libby, Sr., of 165 Forest street, this town, figured in a bad auto accident last Saturday afternoon while on their way to their camp at Lake Colibusseseconteen, Gardiner, Me. Three miles this side of Gardiner, a truck, loaded with stone, forced them off the road and before they could gain the road again the dirt on the side of the road gave way and they went head on into a tree. One wheel held the car from going down a steep embankment. The car, a new Buick brougham, was badly damaged. Mr. and Mrs. Libby were not seriously hurt, but were badly shaken and bruised.

VIANOS SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

Beginning next Monday night and matinees, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, The Somerville Players will present "Spooks" a mystery comedy drama by Robert J. Sherman.

The play is so cleverly contrived and so startling are its developments that it is all you can do to stop screaming out loud. It is impossible to conjecture what is going to happen next. However, the tension is relieved at frequent intervals by the injection of splendid comedy.

During the play, the theatre is plunged into darkness, then in the distance is heard the mysterious rumbling of a ghostly something which gives the uneasy feeling that events suggestive of the supernatural are about to happen.

The story is that of an electric old man who died leaving a will stipulating that his four heirs—two nephews and two maidens—nieces—must remain for three nights in the house occupied by him for many years and which had the reputation of being haunted. If any of the heirs refuse to remain for three nights his or her share is to go to those who stayed.

Things began to happen from the moment the heirs put in their appearance and they kept right on happening until the final curtain.

"Kiki" is the current attraction and Marion White is creating a sensation in the leading role, while Mr. Ashton is living up to the reputation he established last week.

William Melville and Jack Westerman, ably assisted by William Florence and the balance of the cast are more than adequate.

MISS MONAHAN SHOWERED

Babin of Melford which is to be solemnized with a nuptial mass in St. Mary's Church on Oct. 12.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Two Winchester boys in their sophomore year at college bid fair to win regular berths on their respective varsity elevens. Big "Jim" Fitzgerald has been playing a regular tackle on the varsity team at Tufts since the opening of the football season and will apparently take a lot of bending for the assignment. At Harvard "Art" French has been retained among those from whom the varsity backfield will be picked for the Crimson's early games and many of the "wise ones" give him a better than even chance to "make the grade" regularly barring injury. Both boys were mainstays on their freshman teams a year ago and were all around stars. "Fitz" winning his numerals in football, basketball and baseball, while "Art" won his in football and track.

Two slight accidents occurred in the center Thursday afternoon which resulted only in superficial damage to the machines involved. In the first instance a Cleveland car owned by a Winchester man collided with a Ford sedan while the latter machine was stopped at the railroad crossing and at 4.10 in the afternoon a Ford sedan and an electric car were in collision at the traffic beacon. None of the machines involved were disabled.

Quite a crowd was attracted late yesterday afternoon in the square when a Ford sedan, the property of the Kelley and Hawes Co., and driven by Loring G. Hawes of Stoneham, was in collision with a Hudson speedster operated by Carmelia Partida of 8 Spruce street. The accident occurred at the junction of Mt. Vernon and Main streets. No one was injured but both machines were damaged, the Ford being especially badly smashed about the rear-end.

WINCHESTER HIGH OPENS GRID SEASON TOMORROW

Winchester High School's football team will open its 1926 season tomorrow afternoon on Manchester Field when the Red and Black will oppose Stoneham High in what should prove an interesting battle.

A year ago Stoneham sprang a real surprise when it defeated Coach Mansfield's charges in a close contest on its own field and the locals are out to square accounts Saturday. It will be Winchester's first game of the season, but the boys from the hockey team saw service last week against Medford, being soundly trounced by the city high school at the Fulton street grounds. The trimming is not apt to do Stoneham any good and Coach Mansfield's boys should have at least an even chance to come through with a victory.

How the locals will shape up is problematical. Winchester lost many good men by graduation last June and several upon whom Coach Mansfield depended to fill the gaps did not return to school or later for one reason or another became indigestible. The new material is mostly light and inexperienced and it will be some time before anything like first-class football can be expected from the squad as a whole.

Coach Mansfield is well satisfied with his first team and expects it to compare very favorably with that of last fall, but in the matter of replacements he is rather pessimistic.

He is particularly hard hit in the matter of linemen with any sort of weight and it may be necessary to take some of the backfield men from behind the rush-line in an effort to bolster this noticeable weakness.

Six letter men are available this fall and all will be in the starting lineup tomorrow. Captain "Spike" O'Donnell will start at one of the ends with "Bernie" Murphy, another veteran, on the other extremity. A. Amico, a letter man, will play a tackle with Nelson, a new comer, and "Bo" Franklin is the experienced guard to team with Doherty, a rookie.

G. Amico will play center. "Archie" Taylor is down to start at quarterback and he will have two letter men in the backfield in "Henric" Knevelton, sturdy half-back of parts and rangy "Ronie" Simmonds at full back. A new comer, Ghirardini, is down to start at the other half and much is expected of him.

Others who are pretty sure to see action are R. Murphy and Drohan, quarterbacks; H. Halwartz, Bove, Montague, Dowd and Ross, backs; Clark, Tompkins, Lynch, Woodbury and Coss, linemen.

The season's schedule follows:

Sept. 25 Stoneham at Winchester
Oct. 2 Medford at Medford
10 Lexington at Lexington
18 Saugus at Saugus
23 Wakefield at Winchester*
30 Melrose at Winchester*
Nov. 6 Arlington at Winchester*

MALMEDY AND EUPEN, WHICH GERMANY MAY BUY BACK

Belgium considers selling to Germany, according to cable reports, the two border cantons of Malmédy and Eupen.

If cabled facts in the transaction are correct, this deal in international real estate equals any flights of fancy prices in America, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Belgium has been the owner of Eupen and Malmédy for six years. They are both hill towns. The first has 14,000, and the second 4000 inhabitants, and the whole 382 square miles of territory contains not more than 60,000 people. The wooded countryside offers no such rich agricultural perspective as the fertile Belgian plain further west. The hills contain no minerals of importance. Yet the tentative price is reported to be 1,000,000,000 gold marks. At current rates of exchange this is equal to approximately $40,000,000, which is a six-year profit any American realtor can appreciate.

Two Towns Near Liege
No one of the present generation can forget Liege, so it is easy to locate Eupen and Malmédy by fixing the former 25 miles east, and the latter 25 miles southeast, of that near yred Belgian town. Eupen can almost claim to be suburb of Aix-la-Chapelle, or Aachen, as the Germans call it. From Eupen the Germans stepped across the border on Aug. 5, 1914. Malmédy is farther south along the German-Belgium frontier, which is only 40 miles long. Directly across the line from Malmédy is Spa. Not a spa, but The Spa, whose health springs attracted crowned heads of Europe during the first part of the 19th century.

At Versailles, in 1918, Belgium wanted 14 cantons in the so-called Eifel district of Germany adjoining the Belgian border. She claimed them as lost Walloon territory taken by Prussia by the Treaty of Vienna in 1915. Belgium is half Walloon and half Flemish. The Walloon half is the forested uplands nearest France. Walloon speech resembles French and the religion is Catholic. Flemings, on the other hand, live in the fertile plain, are Protestants, and speak a Dutch language. At one time, Walloon families may have outnumbered all others in beyond the border cantons but the Germans changed that. Indeed, Eupen, a wool weaving center, is said to be German now but Malmédy, isolated in the hills, is still Walloon.

500 People Without a Country
Neighbor to Malmédy and Eupen is Moresnet which is a freak of border barter. In neutral Moresnet live 500 men, women and children without a country.

The town sits over a zinc mine which has been worked for hundreds of years. When it came to laying a border line neither Belgium nor Germany would consent to the other owning Moresnet and its mine. They compromised to create neutral Mores-

net. It is not a State, yet it belongs to no one. Moresnet is measured in acres instead of square miles, 1400 acres according to one authority and 800 acres according to another. One year it has a German burgomaster, the next a Belgian burgomaster. Customs revenue is collected by German agents and divided between the two countries.

A Rush On Moresnet
Moresnet came near to being overcrowded shortly before the World War because its inhabitants, being citizens of no country, did not have to serve in the army. Belgians and Germans wishing to escape military service flocked to Moresnet until the two godparent countries put a stop to that. A glimmer into Moresnet's economic life is afforded by its taxation policy. Funds to run this village without a country are obtained through subsidy from the mining company and a license on draught dogs.

BREST-LITOVSK, WHICH AMERICANS MAY RE-CONSTRUCT

American funds have been offered for the restoration of another war-ravaged European city—Brest-Litovsk, Poland, according to a news report from Warsaw.

Brest-Litovsk, which is famous for the separate treaty which representatives of Soviet Russia and Germany signed there, today consists of a line railroad station and practically nothing more. Buildings which housed 50,000 people were laid waste and the large refugee population lives principally in caves and huts.

Before the war Brest-Litovsk was one of Russia's most important trading centers and fortresses on her eastern borders, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Center of Communications Web
Complete restoration of Brest-Litovsk would mean recreating a city busy with buying, selling, carrying and transferring the products of a large agricultural region. Railways from Odessa, Kiev, Moscow, Warsaw, Vlna and East Prussia intersect at the lonesome new railroad station. But Brest-Litovsk is more than a rail center. It lies upon the inland waterway from the Baltic to the Black Sea. A canal east of the city connects the Mukhovets River and the Pripiet River, which are, respectively, finger tips of waterway arms reaching from the north and south toward each other. Thus the city is served by a well-high perfect system of communication, extending in all directions.

Brest-Litovsk lies 100 miles due east of Warsaw. Normally half its population was of Jewish blood, and it long has been a Jewish stronghold. It never developed an industry, but depended instead upon commerce. During the 16th century the synagogue of the city was regarded as the first in Europe.

Flax For Ireland, Lumber For Danzig

Grains, hides, soap, wheat and timber were the staples of its extensive trade. The lumber in which it dealt was floated in great rafts down to Danzig. Flax, some of which went to Ireland and Belgium to make Irish and Flemish linen, was extensively grown in the country surrounding the town and formed another important article of its trade.

The familiar geographic reason for the existence of a town, namely two rivers meeting, gives Brest-Litovsk its excuse for being. The navigable Bug and Mukhovets rivers join and at the point of confluence once stood the city fortress. Older fortifications were east of the city and covered four square miles. The defenses were the pride of Russia.

But the World War showed what history had been reporting for years; that Brest-Litovsk was far from invulnerable. It was first mentioned in ancient documents on the occasion of its capture by a Polish monarch in 1020. Next Casimir the Just of Poland built a tight castle. Princes of Galicia, Vlohyina, Lithuania, grand masters of the Teutonic Knights, Tatar chieftains and kings of Poland held and stormed the city in turns, and going out they gathered spoil from the countryside.

Stage For Climax of Russian Tragedy

All of Brest-Litovsk history, however, records no such high moment as it experienced late in 1917. Things looked black for the Allies. Russia, which had been holding Germany on the east, had collapsed internally under the pressure of war. Korsensky, who still espoused the Allied cause, was soon displaced by the Soviet regime. Germany had driven deep into Russian territory. With this setting the last act of the Russian tragedy took place in Brest-Litovsk, which by that time had degenerated into a war camp and nothing more.

At the headquarters of Prince Leopold of Bavaria, Soviet representatives signed a separate peace with Germany which put the entire burden of carrying on the war on England, France, the United States, Italy and their Allies.

STRANGE WAYS OF ADVERTISING

Announcement by the British Post-office that firms may buy advertising space on dies used for postal stamp cancellations calls attention to some unusual phases of European advertising and selling methods, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Proprietors of the great Parisian department stores bemoan the lack of advertising media, such as our great daily papers. It is not possible for them, as it is for our merchants, to "cover" their city by using space in two, three or four daily papers; therefore they resort to whatever substitutes are available. They use theater tickets, menu cards in cafes, and engage men to distribute leaflets among the patrons of the sidewalk cafes.

chandise they have show cases in their theatre lobbies and in hotel lobbies. Their own windows are largely lost to them because they place their bargain tables on the sidewalks outside the store. One thinks he is coming upon some market when he sees crowds of women gathered about stands; and then the visitor realizes it is "drygoods" that is being sold and goes closer to see one of the unusual sights of Paris, thousands of women lingering over the bargain stockings, waists, ribbons, and other articles of the sidewalk tables.

Inside the huge Paris department stores the goods must tell their own stories; therefore they are spread out in profusion, and confusion, on tables. Only the most valuable articles, such as jewels, are in the show cases.

Huge Department Stores

Incidentally a visit to one of these stores is a Paris experience that even the male visitor should not miss. There are five department stores that are reputed to do a larger grass business than the busiest American store—a business amounting to more than the equivalent of a hundred million dollars a year for each of them.

And some of them do it in spite of sales methods that seem circuitous to the American. One makes a purchase from a sales clerk, and the sales clerk conducts the buyer to the accountant of her department. There seems to be no central cashier desk. This accountant makes out the bill of sale and the price and next, still with the customer in tow, the sales clerk proceeds to the cashier for her department. Then, and not until then, does she accept the customer's money. She presents that to the cashier with the sales bill, obtains the change, and gives it to her customer. She may have been away from her counter or table five or ten minutes.

Store Like Opera House

One of the newest of these huge Paris emporiums has only galleries instead of upper floors, and resembles, in architecture, a large, stageless, opera house. Stairways are affixed in what seems to be airy fashion outside the galleries, and they spiral around the tiers of balconies. Elevators also are suspended outside the edges of the galleries, and since the curved sides of these tiny elevators, facing the great court of the store, are made entirely of glass, one has a curious sensation of being carried aloft on a platform from which he may tumble at any moment into a vast pit of merchandise below.

Electric signs, both in London and Paris, are not so elaborate as those in America, but the lettering is much larger, as it is on the unlighted sign boards. A department store in Paris announces its name in letters that cover the greater part of one side of an eight-story building. Fronts of London buildings are occupied by signs of only a few words which spread over the entire wall space. Nor are they less spectacular than American signs in their locations. A series of signs flashes nightly from the famous Eiffel Tower.

Government Heavy Space Seller

London uses the outside of its street cars and busses for signs as well as the inside. The government also sells advertising space in stations, on railroad trains, and in the station lunch rooms to advertisers. There is much less excuse for unsightly outdoor advertising in London than in Paris because in London newspaper advertising is developed along the lines employed in the United States, and newspapers with enormous circulations reach every strata of society.

Newspapers in London do not employ newsboys who cry their wares; instead the newsboys and newstands are provided with bulletins which announce the leading "stories" in huge black type. Even "sandwich men," who do not sell papers, are employed to stroll the busy streets with announcements of the features in latest editions.

"Ads" on Sleeper Tickets

One surprising continental advertising medium is the "sleeper" ticket. When one obtains a reservation he receives what looks like half a tabloid newspaper. Only the left hand column constitutes the ticket proper. The remaining nine-tenths of the "broadsheet" save for brief bilingual official notices, consists of announcements of cigarettes, railways, and automobiles or of statements of the comforts of hotels from Paris to Constantinople. Even the bills on the continental dining cars have their liquor advertisements tucked away at the bottom.

In Italy the first class compartments have various advertisements affixed behind glass on the walls, somewhat after the manner of our street car advertising cards. The feminine passenger who wishes to apply powder to a dainty nose before the mirror of a first class compartment in Italy must dodge the ever-present liquor advertisements. They are not posted on the surface but are built in, so to speak, behind the glass.

Famous Chamber

The Star chamber, famous in English history, was the hall at Westminster in which spectral civil and criminal cases were tried. Its name is said to be derived from the stars originally adorning its roof.

Unlucky Inventor

William Lee, the inventor of the stocking frame, is said to have died of disappointment, at Paris, about 1610. The hand-knitters opposed him, and he was unable to sell his machine in England or France.

HYDERABAD: MOSLEM HEART OF INDIA

Hyderabad, one of the most nearly independent of the native states of India, in whose government the British have had only a limited part, has recently added a number of British officials to its governmental staff, thus coming more closely under the influence of the central government. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society deals with this important territorial unit of India.

Hyderabad stands forth in many ways among the hodge-podge of some 600 native states, great and small, that, with the British territories, go to make up the Indian Empire, says the bulletin. With its 82,700 square miles, it is the greatest in area, though it is pushed very close by Kashmir, which—thanks to the shawls our mothers wore—has gotten the greater publicity. The ruler of Hyderabad is the Nizam, and the state is often referred to as "the Nizam's dominions" as it is by name.

Subjects Mostly Hindus. Politically, Hyderabad is of great importance. The Nizam is the highest ranking Mohammedan prince of India, and his dominions are the heart of Moslem feeling and activity for the whole peninsula. Yet, by one of the strange quirks common in Indian affairs, the 1,000,000 subjects of this ruler are predominantly of the Hindu faith. This situation is reversed in Kashmir, where a Maharajah of the Sikh faith (built on Hinduism) rules over a populace almost wholly Moslem. Hyderabad is the gathering point for all Asia for the chief holy of pilgrims to Mecca each year, and the expenses of many of the travelers are paid by the Nizam from his well-filled private coffers. This potentate makes in the Moslem world very close to the kings of Egypt and Iran.

The state of Hyderabad has a status not easily defined. The British Empire, through its aspect, the Indian Empire, takes care of all foreign relations, and the Nizam undertakes to furnish certain troops for empire defense; but otherwise the state is almost as independent as Afghanistan or Persia. It mints its own money, runs its own postal system, has its own army, and maintains the other machinery of independent sovereignty. The Nizam lives amid all the splendor and seeming power of the Oriental potentate of tradition. His zenana or ladies' department, while not so extensive as Solomon's comes closer to that of the Biblical king, probably, than any other existing harem.

Land of Golconda. The public finances of the state have often been in bad shape; but the Nizam's private wealth is tremendous. Doubtless that is to be expected, for before Hyderabad acquired its present name it was the kingdom of Golconda—a name which has become a synonym for fabulous wealth. From a Golconda diamond mine, it is said, came the Koh-i-noor, perhaps the most famous of the world's huge diamonds.

Hyderabad City, capital of the state, and chief residence of the Nizam, has a population of half a million and is the fourth city of India. Most of its inhabitants were once and built; but many have been rebuilt with brick during the last quarter century. The Nizam's palaces, those of the nobles, and numerous government buildings, all of stone, add to the present substantial appearance of the city. In the exact center of the walled area rise four lofty minarets, spired in a quadrangle, dominating the sky line. From these towers four broad streets run to the four quarters of the city. Over each a short way from the towers, is a huge arch.

Mosque Shelters 10,000. The minarets are not connected with a mosque, but at a little distance from them is one of the largest temples of the Moslem world, the Mecca Mosque. Under the huge twin domes of this structure 10,000 of the followers of the Prophet may assemble.

In size, the Nizam's dominions are almost exactly equal to that of Kansas; and as in that State, sun-reigns are comparatively dry, Kansas would have to be moved to southern Mexico, however, in order to lie in latitudes corresponding to those of Hyderabad. The country abounds in dry rocky ridges and buttes, especially in the southern part. In that section the streams dry up in summer and water must be impounded in tanks. These small artificial lakes dot the entire countryside. On the black lands of the north and west cotton is grown.

Walled villages all over Hyderabad testify to the turbulent conditions that prevailed before English influence became established in India. Most of the populace are agriculturists. Famines have been frequent, caused by a deficiency of rain in certain years. During some of these times of want hundreds of thousands of people have perished.

Valencia: CITY OF DREAMS—AND IRRIGATION.

"Valencia, in my dreams it always seems I hear you softly call to me."

"Valencia, where orange trees forever tempt the breeze beside the seas."

Commerce reports add a third line to the now popular song which proclaims the Spanish city a paradise of love and romance. The third line being:

"Valencia, two tiny bridges, sewer system, city hall and central market."

For Valencia has embarked on an ambitious program of public improvements, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Song's Music Like City. The music of the song is like the city, the bulletin continues. The band crashes into the opening measures with every brass and every drum, then levels down to a thin little melody before it recovers courage. The city of Valencia greets the visitor with a blare of prosperity.

But the music changes and one catches as an interlude and undertone the refrain of old Valencia. Moorish life, to which gardens were more important than cigarette factories, has survived more strong in this third city of Spain, it is said, than any other in the peninsula. Darker eyes and deeper complexions are met with on Valencia's streets than in Barcelona, to the north. Irrigated orchards that are more like gardens than groves still mark Valencia's country-side away from the busy hubbub of the port. The scent of the Andalus the Moors called it. Spaniards know their city of 250,000 people as Valencia del Cid. Thus do they surrender the city once more to the Cid, a Robin Hood bandit, who is quite livable at a distance of nine centuries.

A Remarkable Open Air Court. A practice in harmony with the old Valencia can be witnessed every Thursday morning at 10 o'clock before the door of the Apostles, main entrance to the 500-year old cathedral. Here meets the Tribunal de las Aguas, the Court of the Waters.

The Tribunal's court room is the pavement, open to the blue sky, and has been for five centuries. The judges' bench is a sofa, upholstered in green. It appears from some mysterious hiding place. Following the judges' sofa runs the bar of justice, a portable iron railing. And in due course seven judges. But how can these men judge? They have no long black robes. They have no wigs like the English judges. They have not professionally serious faces. They are dressed like peasants, in Sunday black with black felt hats. Indeed, they are ordinary peasants clothed by the peasant masters of the Huerta or gardens of Valencia's countryside.

Every American who has had any contact with the furious controversies which have marked the history of irrigation in the United States, will be interested in the procedure and the remarkable history of the Tribunal de las Aguas of Valencia.

No Place For Lawyers. Before the Tribunal announces a peasant official of the court. The court is unadorned. The plaintiff, a peasant in person, makes his statement to the court. Any interruption brings a fine. Then the defendant, also a peasant, states his side of the case. Our judge announces the verdict of the court. There is no appeal from the decision. Neither the governments of Spain nor of Valencia have any part in the court, yet they honor its decisions. Some of its decisions are ever recorded. No lawyers are permitted to appear before the judges of the Waters. They are men who know what their rulings will have on the families concerned. They use water to grow oranges, olives and rice. Our who watches the judges depart, the sailing and soft disappear, feels that there is a fatality in this justice inherited from the Moors. Prosperous orchards and farms throughout the irrigation district give evidence that it is also successful justice. Paper y tinta y poca justicia, goes the proverb of the peasant. Paper, ink and little justice.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

C.M. BUT IT FELT GOOD!

Fourteen hours and thirty-one minutes in the icy waters of the English Channel . . . the shore at last . . . rheumatism . . . congratulations . . . excitement . . . ramblers . . . clicking of canes . . . and then a hot tub! Take the word of the only girl swimmer who has ever conquered those stubborn traits, it was a mighty welcome luxury to relax and enjoy the soothing tingle of a good hot bath.

That hot bath saved the discomfort of stiffness even after her muscles were feeling sore. It gave her the appetite to eat much-needed food, calmed her nerves and refreshed her tired body. "Um, but it felt good!"—can't you just hear her sigh of contentment after that day's work was done and she'd had a restful relaxing hot bath?

Do you know the pleasure and tonic of a satisfying hot bath. Have you a gas water heater to supply an abundance of hot water instantly, no waiting—when you're tired? If so, you can appreciate how the little American swimmer felt when she had snaked the strain and weariness right out of her system in that first joyous hot tub.

Historic Islands

Bellevue Island, on which the Statue of Liberty stands, was ceded to the United States government for the purpose of harbor defense and it was occupied by Fort Wood. We do not find a record of any military prison on the island, though soldiers may have been held in detention there. The neighboring Governor's Island has a military prison. It is interesting to note that Bellevue Island or Liberty Island has lately been transferred to civil status, having heretofore been considered a part of the military post of Fort Wood. Its proclamation, in 1924, the statue was made a national monument and its base a national park. The government now makes separate appropriations for the army post on the island and for the upkeep of the statue, most of this being for lighting—Washington Star.

Where Performance alone is considered

Anyone who can afford to own a home can afford Klean-Heet.

It is, then, especially significant that in homes whose wealth permits them to enjoy the absolute best of everything—homes where performance alone determines the method of heating—the leadership of Klean-Heet is so marked.

Take Lake Forest for example—world-known for its magnificent estates—and the list of Klean-Heet owners and the Social Register are almost interchangeable.

The result, of course, of the recognized superiority of Klean-Heet engineering.

A superiority revealed through six years of unflinching performance—in homes of every size—and in every type of heating plant. Revealed, too, under every test of climate and season.

STOLEN CAR COLLIDED WITH ANOTHER LAST SUNDAY

William F. Hobbins of 97 Ash street, Manchester, N. H., reported at police headquarters last Sunday evening that as he was driving his Dort brougham along Cambridge street about 7:30 o'clock his machine was sideswiped by a Hudson coach which was attempting to pass him, both cars being headed for Arlington. The operator of the Hudson did not stop after the accident, and this police found that the machine was the property of a Medford man. Further investigation disclosed the fact that it had been stolen from in front of one of the churches in that city about one-half hour before the occurrence of the accident on Cambridge street. The car was later recovered in Arlington.

LYNN DOLLAR DAY SATURDAY, SEPT. 25

A huge city merchandising event is announced to take place on Saturday, September 25, in Lynn, which will be known as Dollar Day.

Many readers of this paper no doubt made a special trip to Lynn last year to attend this annual event, and realize the many advantages that it presents.

A report coming from the Retail Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce includes the following information which is thought to be of great importance to every thrifty member of this community.

Eighty-seven Lynn retail merchants have procured wonderful values in every line from the finest markets in America, especially for Dollar Day. The very newest fashions in apparel for all members of the family will be displayed by all the clothing establishments, and all the department stores, specialty shops, drug stores, furniture stores, etc. In fact, every store that is co-operating on Dollar Day, is brimful of bargains that are not equalled at any other period of the year.

"All Roads Lead to Lynn" is the slogan adopted by the official publicity committee of the Lynn Trade Bureau.

Permission has been obtained from the Lynn Police and traffic departments to do away with 90 per cent of usual parking restrictions in the more concentrated shopping areas for Saturday only.

The stores offering Dollar Day values will display official Chamber of Commerce Day signs in their windows. Shoppers at all these stores are assured every possible attention, quick service, and courtesy.

Lynn stores remain open until 9 o'clock Saturday evening so those families who find it inconvenient to shop during the day will have ample time to take advantage of the hundreds of wonderful offerings.

All the restaurants and well known eating places in Lynn have arranged special menus for out-of-town shoppers who intend to make extensive shopping tours throughout the day.

A general request made by the Chamber of Commerce to the residents of Lynn through the city's newspapers, urges that every consideration be accorded out of town shoppers.

Visitors not familiar with one way streets and traffic regulations will consequently be gladly advised and directed, upon request to any local citizen or police official.

It is deemed advisable to suggest that those families who can visit Lynn early on Saturday, and complete their shopping before noon should do so. Not only will time be saved but they will make it much easier for their neighbors and visitors from other cities who are compelled to shop later in the day.

Apparently all stores are determined to break the records in every respect of previous Lynn Dollar Day events which have grown to be exceedingly popular in Essex County and which are particularly favored by every household in this community.

HUMAN FLY DID HIS STUFF

There was a large crowd on Main street at the Niles Block Saturday night to see George H. Polley, the human fly, climb that building. The stunt went off very well and undoubtedly proved a paying venture, and the crowd was well satisfied with the exhibition and went on its way happily at the conclusion. A collection was taken up previous to the climb, Mr. Polley explaining that if he should fail to climb the building the money would be returned. As he explained that he expected everyone to put in a dollar bill, had he failed and the return been made on that basis, many in the crowd would have made a material financial gain.

There was considerable speech-making, with a short lecture at the recess at the first story, and the stunt occupied in all about one hour. Polley swarmed up one of the brick piers beside the main entrance until he could catch the window ledge of the second floor, pulling himself inside. After a rest and speech he climbed to the third floor, using the window half shut as a starting point and the pier as a brace. This was a good climb and he got a nice hand.

After further speeches the climb to the roof was started. The first try, made at the point of entrance to the third floor, was given up and a try made further along the building near the corner, Polley explaining that he was taking no advantage by so doing and that the brickwork was unsafe. After trying out the second location and making another speech, he went back to the first place for another try. This was again given up after a time, and he then went to a side window of the block near the corner. From this window he reached the cornice at the corner and eventually the top ledge, where by swinging his body from side to side he got a leg over the edge. From then on it was easy work for him, and he gave the crowd several thrills by faking falls before hauling himself over the edge.

The climb completed, he stood on his head at the top corner of the roof. The crowd was well satisfied with the exhibition and the three police officers detailed to preserve order and keep a lane open in the street for the passage of traffic had their hands full. During the climb Polley advertised the popularity of the Hudson and Essex automobiles and the shoes he wore.

MRS. LORENCE M. WOODSIDE APPOINTED

Among the names recently announced by the American-Scandinavian Foundation of 12 American students who received fellowships to educational institutions in Denmark, Norway and Sweden during 1926-27, the "Elephant" is delighted to find the name of one of our Council Directors, Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside, wife of Major Alonzo F. Woodside of Winchester.

Her appointment is for the study of literature and language in Oslo, Norway. The announcement reads, that the selections were made by a jury of university and technical leaders who considered approximately 100 candidates, nominated by American Colleges and Universities. This annual student exchange, which has been conducted by the Foundation since 1911, has for its purpose the fostering of mutual understanding and friendship between the Scandinavian countries and ours.

The fellows are looked upon as unofficial representatives of America and one of the requirements is that they must be American-born.

Ever since her first visit to Norway in 1906, when she made a pilgrimage to the home of Bjornstjerne Bjornson and met many other writers of the day, Mrs. Woodside has been interested in the translation of Scandinavian literature and has lectured extensively upon Scandinavian books and writers.

During the World War, as an expert gardener, her whole energy was directed to the work of conservation and increasing the food supply, and she was made a member of the Massachusetts Food Administration by Governor McCall.

Upon the attainment of equal suffrage Mrs. Woodside became a member of the Republican Town Committee, and the line showing of Winchester women in registration and at the polls is in large measure due to her unceasing efforts as chairman of the women's division. She was the founder of the Women's Republican Club of Winchester and served for three years as its president; Vice-President of the Fortnightly Women's Club, from which, in order to accept the fellowship, she recently withdrew her nomination as president, she is the Eighth District director of the Massachusetts Council of Women, member of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, the Women's City Club of Boston, and many local civic and philanthropic organizations.

While her principal interest abroad will be along literary lines, with her natural bent for politics, it is safe to say that she will also keep an open eye for the social and political activities of Scandinavian women, and will have much of interest to relate upon her return. [The Massachusetts Elephant.]

ADVISES HOT LUNCH FOR THE SCHOOL CHILD

One of the causes of undernourishment in school children is the lack of a proper lunch, states the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. The child who must remain in school through the lunch hour should be provided with a well-balanced lunch, including is possible, milk or a hot drink or hot dish. This is important in addition to the food value of the lunch, in making the child's appetite keener, and in helping digestion. Too many school children make their noon meal of dry sandwiches alone, or worse still they lunch on candy. Sandwiches made of dry bread and butter with a nourishing filling, plain cake or cookies, and dessert consisting of a milk pudding or fruit will comprise the rest of the school lunch.

MORE THAN 2500 A DAY BATHED AT SANDY BEACH

The report of Life Guard William A. Murray at Sandy Beach, Wedgmore, on the shore of Upper Mystic Lake, for the bathing season which closed last week demonstrates the growing popularity of this beach which is under the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan District Commission.

Sandy Beach has been used for fresh water bathing for about seven years and the Metropolitan District Commission has maintained a life guard there for five years. It is convenient for residents of Medford, Arlington, Woburn, Stoneham, Somerville and Winchester.

The many bathers who could not secure bathhouse facilities at the beach during the past summer have created a movement to secure the erection of a large bathhouse for men and women. At present there are two small wooden bathhouses. One is 30 by 20 feet, and the other, for children, is only 12 by 15.

Practically 75 per cent of the bathers use their autos as a place to undress. Others, who have no autos, undress in the woods.

An association is reported as being formed to take up the matter with the Metropolitan District Commission, the Governor and the State Legislature.

The records of the season from the opening day of June 21 to last week show that more than 2500 persons per day bathed at Sandy Beach during the fairly warm weather. In hot weather this figure rose to 3500 and 4000. During the extreme hot spells of August as many as 5500 persons have been in the water in a single day. The average in the cooler weather was never less than 500 a day. The patronage was 50 per cent higher than last year and more than 60 per cent higher than two years ago. Much of the bathing has been in the evening.

The beach is considered very safe. The two deaths that occurred were due to heart trouble, and the drowned persons were both swimmers.

Life Guard William A. Murray and his assistant, Matthew V. Norton, a Tufts Medical School sophomore, and others who form the group known as "the Sandy Beach Brownies," rescued more than 20 persons during the season.

Mr. Murray received a letter of appreciation from Capt. Edward Woods of the Middlesex Fells Division of the Metropolitan District Police last week on the orderly and safe manner in which Mr. Murray and his assistant, Mr. Norton, took care of the bathers.

Mr. Murray co-operated with the Red Cross life-saving and Massachusetts Humane Society units in giving free instruction in swimming and life-saving methods last month. The Humane Society instructor taught swimming to three classes daily for a week. Several hundred boys and girls up to 16 years of age learned to swim. The Red Cross swimming and junior and senior life-saving classes in August resulted in the qualification of 60 swimmers.

Mr. Murray paid special attention to the smaller boys and girls who went to the beach in the morning. They averaged from 300 to 400 a day. Their mothers and older relatives frequently accompanied them. Not a single child lost his life.

Mr. Murray was a life guard for 14 years at Revere Beach before he was assigned to Sandy Beach at Wedgmore. He was one of the original South Boston 1-street bath "brownies" and was for a time instructor in swimming at Phillips Academy, Andover. Later he was swimming instructor at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He served in the United States Navy during the World War and is at present a member of the Naval Reserves. He resides at 20 Blanch street, Dorchester.—[Boston Globe.]

"A NEW WAY TO SAVE MONEY"

The First of a Series of Health Articles From the Massachusetts Department of Public Health

Everybody would like to have money; not for the money itself, but for what money will buy. One way to get rich is to save money. Another way is to spend it. Spending money for health will make you win out in the end.

Take your teeth, for example. Most of you realize that if you visit the dentist regularly twice a year to have the small cavities filled, there will not be the big bills for abscesses and extractions. The same principle applies to the rest of your body. An annual physical examination by a competent physician will be a big economic gain to you in the future. The physician will be able to detect conditions which might mean the beginning of serious disease, if neglected. He will be able to advise on diet and general habits of living, so that you will not only feel well, but full of life and vigor and pep. Everybody who has an automobile appreciates the need of keeping it in condition—the need of sufficient supply of gas and oil, of regular overhauling of the engine. Your body is a much more valuable "engine," which should be overhauled at the doctor's office regularly.

Outside of physical examinations, there is the question of daily health habits. The business girl or man who tries to save money on lunches by standing over a cup of coffee and a piece of pie is bound to lose in the end. Success almost never comes to the individual who hasn't health. Work demands alertness, initiative, clear-thinking, and energy to go through with the job. This applies to mother as well as the business man. If she neglects her health she will eventually sacrifice all these qualities. Each day will be "the daily grind" instead of a new experience. On the other hand the person who takes care of himself, who eats properly, sleeps sufficiently, takes time for outdoor exercise, will be repaid by the desire and power to do, to accomplish, and to succeed.

ROME'S "SEA-GOING HACKS" ARE PASSING

The decision of the municipal authorities of Rome to retire some of the horse-drawn public carriages that ply the streets of the famous city, and at the same time to increase the taxi-cab supply is announced in news dispatches.

Few sojourners in Rome have escaped riding in these conveyances of a by-gone day, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The tourist, often newly arrived from Paris, where taxis swarm in all the thoroughfares, is struck immediately by the few seen on the streets of Rome. The lack is all the more marked because the Italian-made taxis are excellent vehicles. Vehicles, Horses, Drivers, All Old

At the station or at his hotel the visitor can obtain a taxi-cab with little delay, but sooner or later he will stand on a street corner vainly trying to find one unoccupied. Then he will convince himself that the open Victoria rolling sedately down the street will serve and in he will climb.

No doubt there are relatively new carriages doing public duty in Rome, drawn by energetic horses; but the casual visitor seldom encounters them. The carriages are of the kind dubbed sea-going hacks before the flowering of the gasoline age drove them from our streets. They are reminiscent of our Capital's Pennsylvania Avenue, and numerous other city main streets of the late nineteenth century: a low step between curved fenders, a single low seat for passengers, a steep upward sweep in front to a high driver's seat. The combination usually met with consists of an old vehicle, drawn by a nag long past his prime, and guided by an ancient mariner of the reins and whip.

Conquest City's Narrow Streets

One's first impression is surprisingly favorable. Rested by the step to take the passenger aboard, the horse starts off at a smart trot. But this pace lasts for less than a hundred feet, then drops to a slow, dejected walk. The cabby goes through the form of administering a few half-hearted whacks to his draft animal, then accepts the routine which is evidently well established. You gather, roughly, that every self-respecting Roman carriage horse insists on walking three times as far as he has trotted before he feels equal to the strain of making another dash.

Naturally these easy-going equipages interfere with traffic, especially in the narrower and more crowded streets. They are seen at their worst in the gleaming, white, tiled traffic tunnel that dives under the grounds of the Quirinal Palace. Tram car bells clang at them, taxi horns screech belligerently and truck drivers curse; but if a walking period has arrived the four-legged object of all this din walks while traffic piles up; and apparently nothing can be done about it. That is, nothing but the removal of this particular factor of Rome's transit system. Tourists who have had similar experiences can picture some busy official, held up by one of these ancient vettures, rushing back to his office and impatiently penning the recent order that is to make Roman cab service less a matter of horse-flesh and more a matter of gasoline.

Great English Queen

Decidedly No Beauty

The Boston Transcript, in an editorial taking exception to the statement of the director general of the Atlantic City beauty pageant, denies that "most pretty girls have heads as empty as their faces are beautiful," and cites a number of women in history who were brainy as well as lovely to back upon. But it weakens an argument otherwise good by prominently mentioning Queen Elizabeth of England, as one whose "unhappily handsome face was joined with the most extraordinary mental powers." It is strange that the best that anyone has been able to say of Elizabeth's intellect countermands into use that word "handsome," which is not the highest adjective applicable to a woman. "Her features," says the Encyclopedia Britannica, "were as handsome as Mary's (Queen of Scots), but she had no fashion." This can mean only that Elizabeth was not a beauty, and no contemporary portrait of her now extant makes her anything but a decidedly homely woman.

Published by the Winchester Board of Health

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

A very good attendance marked the first meeting of the Fall season, last Wednesday night and the session proved to be most interesting. The real thrill of the evening came when Past Marshall, Mary E. Laraway, presented the Club with a much needed Bible. The book is a very beautiful one, leather-bound with special lettering on the cover, and is the gift of herself and husband, J. A. Laraway. This present is but one of the many kind favors Mr. and Mrs. Laraway have done for the Club and certainly deserves the most demonstrative praise that President Anna W. Loehman bestowed in the donors in her speech of acceptance.

Vice-President Emily A. Scholl gave a detailed report of the Entertainment Committee's activities during the summer months, and Trustee Bernice F. Gorman, reported on the whist party given in July to establish a budget for the Sick Committee of which she is the chairman. A proposition from "The Eastern Elk," whereby the club may be benefited to the extent of 50 cents on each subscription, was accepted and a committee of volunteer workers will be very busy for the next two months canvassing for this object.

Trustee, N. M. Nichols of the local lodge of Elks was present and in his usual genial manner extended an invitation to the club to assist with the annual entertainment for disabled war veterans at the West Roxbury Hospital, Nov. 5. Last year the efforts made by the club were greatly appreciated by this gentleman and he hopes to make up as successful a program this year.

President Anna W. Loehman announced a Halloween party for the second night in October, i. e., Wednesday the 27th. A committee on refreshments was appointed with instructions to meet and report at the next business meeting, Oct. 13. The entertainment will be under the direction of Secretary Frances Sullivan and promises to be of a very lively character. Further details of this affair will be published in the Winchester Star.

NEW TRAIN TIME SUNDAY

The new time on the steam railroad will go into effect Sunday, when the daylight saving ends and the standard time will prevail. Commuters should note the change in the trains and secure one of the new convenient pocket size timetables put out by the following Winchester firms:

F. E. Barnes & Company,
E. H. Bulfinch
Edw. T. Harrington Company
Washington Street Cash Market
Winchester Taxi Company
Winchester Trust Company

There are many minor changes, which although too numerous to note, make much difference in catching a train. On week-day trains none have been added or cancelled, and the outward trains late at night remain the same. The two last inward trains will leave at 10:17 and 10:20, a change from the present schedule. One additional inward Sunday train has been added, it leaving at 2:01 p. m. and arriving at 2:15. The last inward Sunday train leaves at 10:27 p. m., being advanced from the present time.

WINCHESTER MAN PRESENTED ORGAN TO "Y"

Mr. Preston Pond of this town has presented to the Boston Young Men's Christian Association a fine Mason and Hamlin cabinet organ which is being installed this week and which will be first used next Monday morning in connection with the "Morning Watch," an old time devotional service which has been revived by the "Y" and put "on the air" at 7:45 a. m. each week day through station WEEL. Mr. Pond's gift is an instrument which has been privately owned by himself and which has been thoroughly overhauled and put in excellent condition to fill a long felt need at the Y. M. C. A. quarters. His attention was called to this need by Mr. T. Grafton Abbott, also of Winchester and one of the Huntington Avenue's staunch supporters. It is planned to use the organ regularly in connection with the "Morning Watch" which during its three year revival has been warmly commended as a unique radio feature, bringing to life a once famous New England custom.

NOTICE

The rummage sale to be held in the Town Hall Sept. 30 from 9 until 5 under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the First Congregational Church bids fair to have much of interest and value. Mrs. Edward A. Tucker and Mrs. Maurice F. Brown are the chairmen and their able planning will make shopping there as easy and attractive as possible. It will be greatly appreciated if those having articles for this sale will leave them at the Town Hall as early as possible on Wednesday so that they may be marked and allotted to their proper department.

RAJPIPLA: INDIA'S MIDGET STATE

The prospective visit to this country of the Maharajah of Rajpipla, who recently arrived in London accompanied by a royal white elephant, recalls his sojourn in New York and Washington during the summer of 1922 when he was received at the White House by the late President Harding.

A recent bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society says:

Of approximately 400 native states in India, Rajpipla is among the smallest, somewhat resembling, in importance, large county in one of our several States.

Maharajah A. Real Potentate Rajpipla is about 200 miles north of the city of Bombay, in the north-western part of India. The state is slightly larger than Rhode Island and has about two-thirds the population of Providence. The Maharajah is king and boasts family supremacy since 1470. He is entitled to be addressed "His Highness" and to a salute of 11 guns when approaching any possessions of the British Empire. Except for a British Agent who resides in these Indian states, the Maharajah has unrestricted power over his subjects. His power is rarely questioned except when a British subject is involved. Through tribute to neighboring states, his domain is protected and protective forces within the borders of Rajpipla are apparently unnecessary, considering the size of his Army, which consists of 111 men.

Wild Natives Predominate
Two native tribes—the Bhils (bowmen) and the Kolis—make up the greater portion of the population of Rajpipla. The Bhils were once in power in India. Under the rule of the Moguls the Bhils were submissive and occupied the lowlands but other tribes treated them so cruelly that they rebelled and fled to the hills from which a few of them have returned. They used the bow to defend the mountains fastnesses and repel invaders. In 1818 the British tried to subdue them without success. In 1825, through the use of milder methods, a British Agency was established in the state.

Mark Royalty With Blood
In many of the central Indian states the princes, on succession, have their foreheads marked with blood from the thumb, or toe of a Bhil. They believe this a mark of Bhil allegiance, but it is more probably a relic of days when the tribe was in power in India.

They have binding oaths. The most sacred is that sworn by a dog, the Bhil proving that the curse of a dog may fall upon him if he breaks his word.

For centuries Hanuman, the monkey god, has been the chief divinity of these people. Offerings are also made to the much feared goddess of smallpox and stone worship is still found among them. Many have become Moslems and Hindus.

Poisonous Kodra One of Chief Foods
Little more than one-third of Rajpipla is cultivated. Cotton is the principal crop while rice and kodra are also largely grown. Kodra, a grain grown on the hillside is one of the chief foods, particularly of the Bhils. Unless washed several times before consumption, however, it is slightly poisonous, causing giddiness and faintness.

In the southern portion of the state are teak forests. Bamboo matting, baskets, and grail stones are also produced.

Miss Marjorie Aseltine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Aseltine of Cabot street left town Tuesday for Carmel, N. Y., where she will enter Drew Seminary on the Hudson.
